300 Applaud Four Symphony Selections

By RUTH DILLENDER

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra played four selections in a concert at 8 p.m. last night at the armory.

The concert was sponsored by the Council of Arts. Financial guarantors were the Daily Standard, the First National Bank, the Security National Bank and the Bank of Sikeston.

The orchestra was directed by Eleazar De Carvalho, conductor and music director.

De Carvalho is a 49-year-old Brazilian who has conducted most of Europe's major orchestras as well as many in this country. He is in his third season with the St. Louis orchestra.

The orchestra, which is now in its 86th year, played "Overture to Benvenuto Cellini" by Berlioz; "Symphony No. 4" by Tchaikovsky; "Evocation, Fete A Dieau, Triana From Suite Iberia" by Albeniz and "Three Cornered Hat" by De Falla.

The orchestra is the second oldest symphony orchestra in the country and has a surprising number of young people in it.

The armory's acoustics were not the best for the musical presentation and often when the brass section was playing its loudest tones, the orchestra personnel's and the audience's ears took a beating.

The string sections of the group displayed excellent precision in playing pizzicato, the plunking of the strings.

The cello section was featured in several passages and displayed a rich and mellow sound.

The two-hour program was well accepted by the audience. Dan Norton, chairman of the Council of the Arts, said that between 300 and 500 attended the concert.

The orchestra performed for school children at the armory today. Concerts were at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

No Civil War in Viet Nam, McNamara Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today Communist forces in South Viet Nam are taking their orders "not only day to day but hour to hour" from Hanoi.

McNamara told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the Vietnamese war stems from flagrant Communist aggression and intervention.

He offered that description of the Asian struggle after chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., asked whether U.S. treaty commitments cover intervention in a civil war.

McNamara said if Fulbright was implying the Vietnamese struggle is a civil war "I strongly dissent.

McNamara said that before U.S. combat troops were sent into South Viet Nam thousands of Communist North Vietnamese had infiltrated into the South.

Today, McNamara said, 20,000 or more North Vietnamese fighting men are in South Viet Nam.

McNamara testified before television cameras and a capacity crowd in support of the administration's $917 - million million military assistance program. The bill does not include military aid for South Viet Nam. That is part of the defense budget.

McNamara told the committee the nation's military strength is so great it has been possible to commit 325,000 men to the Viet Nam war without calling up Reservists or controlling the economy.

"No other nation in history has ever been so strong," he added.

"Never has any other nation —never has the United States — carried such great military strength with so little burden on its society."

When McNamara completed his statement questioning quickly turned from the bill itself to the Southeast Asian situation.

McNamara's appearance came a day after Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford "went pretty far" when Ford charged the administration with "shocking mismanagement" of the war.

"In what respect is it shocking?" Dirksen asked at a news conference Tuesday. "Who are the shockers?" Dirksen also said: "You don't demean the chief magistrate of your country at a time like this when the war is on. You stand up to be counted."

Ford had no comment on Dirksen's statements, but told a newsman he thinks "we've got McNamara on the run."

McNamara did not elaborate in his testimony on the 325,000 figure. But he evidently meant the 240,000 U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam, some 60,000 with 7th Fleet ships operating off Viet Nam, some 13,000 in Thailand and thousands of others on Guam where B52 bombers are stationed.

Kiwanis Pancake Day Tuesday

President Lee Shell announced plans for the Kiwanis Club's Pancake Day Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn at the club meeting yesterday.

Earl Williams, executive director of the Delta area of the Economic Opportunity Program, Portageville, explained the six-county efforts to reach 56 per cent of the population of the Bootheel.

Williams was reared near Diehlstadt and he has been an educator. He now lives in Anniston.

Last year, June, 1965 to June, 1966, the office was alloted $1,400,000.00 to carry on education training projects in Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscott, Dunklin and Stoddard counties. Approximately $245,000.00 was budgeted in each county.

There are four board members in each county on the area board of directors. Sixteen men have formed the new corporation, responsible for securing the government grant money and the handling of the disbursement of the funds.

The objective is to train poor people in order to help them help themselves. The educational work consists of (1) Medicare's 4,000 people sign up drive for elderly people; (2) the homemakers aid program headed by Tom Stroup in Scott County to send out workers to teach recipients of commodity welfare food how to prepare the food and how to improve health habits and manage their family affairs

Daylight Time Will Begin Sunday

City Manager W. Raymert Miller said this morning the city's daylight savings time ordinance has been amended to provide for fast time to begin Sunday at 2 a.m. instead of Monday at the same time.

He said that the ordinance probably would be changed later so that the DST will be abandoned Oct. 30 instead of the scheduled Sept. 5 return to central standard time.

Miller said that the changes would bring Sikeston into conformity with a new federal law.

Voters April 5 approved a daylight savings time nearly two to one. The straw vote was on a different time schedule than that provided by the new federal law which sets a nationwide uniform time for areas observing fast time this summer.

Alert For Bootheel

KANSAS CITY AP -- The U.S. Weather Bureau issued a tornado watch today for southern Illinois, southeast Missouri and extreme northeast Arkansas.

The advisory said the threat of one or two isolated tornadoes will exist in these areas from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. A few severe thunderstorms, large hail and locally damaging winds are forecast.

The greatest threat of tornadoes and severe thunderstorms is in an area along and 60 miles either side of a line from 20 miles east of Vandalia, Ill., to 30 miles west of Walnut Ridge, Ark., the Weather Bureau said.

Traffic Lights Go on Blink

Chief of Police Arthur Bruce said that the trouble was in the main switchbox. The lights wouldn't work yesterday and this morning. No one could say when service would be restored.

Four - way stop signs have been erected at the intersections of Malone and Kingshighway and Malone and New Madrid streets.

Bruce said that motorists should approach intersections having traffic lights as if they were four way stops.

Bruce said there have been no accidents resulting from the darkened signals.

Way Paved for MOPAC Merger

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals paved the way Tuesday for an easier merger of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Texas and Pacific Railway Co.

The court reversed U. S. District Judge James H. Meredith's earlier ruling that voting on the proposed merger would have to be done separately by Class A and Class B Mopac stockholders.

Mopac wants the merger to be decided by shareholders of both classes voting together.

Alleghany Corp. of New York, which owns 20,753 shares of Mopac Class B stock, opposed Mopac's plan, but Mississippi River Corp., which owns 1,085,695 shares of class A stock, favored it. The merger would be easily approved since Mississippi owns the majority of the voting stock.

Alleghany says it had made no decision on whether to appeal Tuesday's ruling.

Alliance Still Needed - Rusk

ANKARA, Turkey AP -- Secretary of State Dean Rusk told the Central Treaty Organization nations today their alliance is still needed because the Communists have not renounced world revolution.

Later Rusk was met by 200 booing students as he was entering a luncheon for CENTO foreign ministers.

Rusk turned to watch as police scuffled with the demonstrators and arrested several. Police broke up the anti-American demonstration by leftist students Tuesday on Rusk's arrival and arrested 73.

Bombers Close to Haiphong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy bombers edged closer to Haiphong Tuesday in the third straight day of raids on North Viet Nam's vital Red River Delta, blasting a railroad bridge 10 miles north of the country's chief port. A U.S. spokesman said one span of the bridge was destroyed.

Four Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles were fired at the attackers but missed their marks, the spokesman reported today.

Three other U.S. jets were lost elsewhere over North Viet Nam in the past 24 hours, raising the number of American planes shot down since the raids began 15 months ago to 213. One of the pilots was rescued in a blaze of enemy fire. The other two were presumed captured or dead.

In the south, Viet Cong raiders damaged two big U.S. Air Force Hercules troop transports in a hit-and-run attack on a small airfield in the central highlands but caused no casualties. Officials said the four-engine planes could be repaired.

Club Takes District Honors

The Sikeston Future Business Leaders of America club, organized in January, is considered a top candidate to take the state honors April 30 at a meeting in Columbia.

Yesterday in a Southeast Missouri district convention at the high school, Ken Paylor, senior, and Elaine Dockins, senior, won the F. B. L. A. and Miss F. B. L. A. awards.

Miss Dockins also won second place in public speaking. The top spot was won by Sharon Holmes of Fisk-Rombauer high school.

The Fisk and Sikeston team tied for first place in the parliamentary procedure contest.

Sikeston students dominated the spelling contest by grabbing the top three honors. The winners were Phil Tidwell, Janet Butrum and Eureda Powers, juniors.

Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, sponsor, said that more than 75 attended the convention and 25 Sikeston businesses had displays.

Charles Luckett Killed in Crash

FRUITLAND AP -- Charles E. Luckett, 21, of Chicago was killed and six other persons were injured Tuesday when his car and a trailer truck collided on U.S. 61 about a mile south of here.

Luckett's wife, Dorothy, 18, was hospitalized at Cape Girardeau, in serious condition. Three other passengers in the Luckett car were less seriously hurt.

The driver of the truck, Robert B. Brown, 30, of Jackson, Miss., and his passenger, William Thompson, 35, of Jackson, were not injured seriously.

Yesterday at 11 a.m. on Route H, one and one-half miles north of Miner, a 1965 Buick, driven by Dorothy Williams, 33, Sikeston, was damaged.

The Buick was going north, when a piece of equipment fell from a 1964 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Lee Dodd, 59, Sikeston, and struck it.

No one was injured.

Union Chief Says Papers Won't Be Able to Publish

NEW YORK AP -- Bertram W. Powers, president of New York Typographical Local 6, announced a breakdown in contract negotiations today and expressed the opinion that three merging newspapers would be unable to publish next Monday as scheduled.

Asked if the breakdown in the talks meant a strike against the new corporation on its first day of scheduled publication, Powers said: "There'll be no compositors working in the composing room."

The newspapers planning to merge are the Herald Tribune, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun.

THIS CENTURY old tree, 75 feet high, on the Daily Standard parking lot was cut down, to make way for a new addition to house the circulation department. Missouri Utilities workmen disconnect wires prior to removing poles.

Circulation Department In New Building

The old made way for the new when in the past two weeks the Daily Standard added a 50 by 20 feet fireproof structure on the southwest corner of its building at 205 South New Madrid.

The addition will house the circulation department, under the management of Glenn Greene. The department will move into its new quarters this week. Circulation growth of the newspaper makes this change necessary.

The building will have fiberglass insulation, air - conditioned, and have an overhead conveyor, running from the offset press to the wrapping and addressing quarters. Faster handling of newspapers will result.

The Sikeston Publishing Company building and improvement program has seen many changes over the past two years.

It began in 1964 with a changeover from letterpress to modern offset newspaper printing, followed by the removal of the advertisement and circulation departments from an abandoned home, which was removed last year to make room for a parking lot.

A portion of this lot now will be used for the circulation department.

Johnson Asks Private Cash to Finance Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress for legislation today to encourage private investors to take over more of the outstanding loans of various government agencies.

Johnson said that with the help of the legislation he proposed, private credits can be substituted for public credit in the amount of about $4.7 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. This compared with an estimated $3.3 billion being replaced by private credit in this fiscal year.

The essence of Johnson's proposal is the setting up of participation pools to which private investors could take over a percentage of the federal assets being offered for sale.

Students Seize Red Consulate

More than 100 members of the anti-Communist student organization Kami took over the building Tuesday, burned remnants of furniture and bundles of papers in the yard and painted anti-Chinese slogans on the walls.

They said the Jakarta military command had given them permission to use the consulate as a headquarters.

Jones Favors Milk And Lunch Program

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett, Mo., Democrat, has told the committee on agricultural appropriation that the cuts in the school milk and lunch programs, will and should be restored.

He told the house committee, according to hearings reports that the administration is aware of the fact that the house will restore these cuts, but it wants Congress to get the blame for higher spending. Representative Jones pointed out that he opposes spending under some of the programs but that he wants to continue it for "essential programs".

He said he thinks the house will approve restoring the proposed $19 million cut in the lunch program and the $82 million cut in the special milk program.

Representative Jones told the committee that there should be some research in soybeans as there has been in other crops.

He noted that there has not been improvements in the production of soybeans, or other uses, while there has been increases in wheat, corn, and cotton due to the amount of money spent for research.

He said a recent development in the production of soybeans has been that of putting hives of bees in or near the fields, and shifting them about from time to time. This pollination by the bees apparently has resulted in great increases.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

National Library Week is to be observed from April 17 through 23. It symbolizes a service and a need that are of the utmost importance in this complex modern world.

A library is many things. It is, first of all, a repository of the thoughts, the wisdoms, the failures and successes, and events great and small which marred or brightened the centuries which have passed. It holds, within its confines, the history of man and nature.

A library exists to provide knowledge and understanding. It has no limits -- everything ever known under the sun is within its province. A library is timeless, in the sense that it embraces all of time.

A library offers the reader amusement, relaxation, the opportunity to quietly contemplate himself and the world around him. It provides, from its many voices, comfort or challenge, relief from care or stirrings of ambition--whatever may be one's needs or desires.

It is impossible to conceive of a world without libraries. Never in the endless reach of history has knowledge been so important. That is true of the knowledge that lies behind the miracles of science and invention which are transforming life more swiftly than we realize. And it is true, above all, of the knowledge that comes out of the past and that deals with the principles and attitudes and values that transcend the material and give true meaning to the existence and perpetuation of mankind.

A wise businessman once said, "If you want to sell more bread -- just advertise butter."

Good advertising does not have to be direct to be successful.

Most consumers decide to make a purchase while reading the ad itself. The main goal of the hometown merchants is getting the customers into their store.

Advertisers on the local level are exceptionally lucky. By telling exactly what, where and for what price something is sold, they give a direct incentive to purchase.

Goods such as bread and butter are called complementary goods by economists. This means that when the sales of one item go up, complementary goods do likewise.

Instead of having to list each product in a different advertisement, like the national advertiser, the retailer can combine items and have complete, efficient market coverage.

The successful supermarket manager most often realizes this and uses large space in the local newspaper. His effort is well worth while and he regains many times the cost of the advertisement.

PAPER DADDY

It is now believed that paper was the invention of a high Chinese official named Tsai Lun, who lived about two thousand years ago. He used the beaten fibers of the inner bark of the mulberry tree; when these fibers were matted together, they formed a white sheet. Prior to Tsai Lun's invention, the Chinese did their writing on silk fabrics and flat pieces of bamboo.

Big Brother is watching you.

More people every day are learning about an electronic device in Washington, D. C., which clicks and whirrs and flashes lights as it carries on a continuous search for bad drivers.

The electronic device is operated by the National Driver Register Service, whose job it is to identify drivers whose licenses have been revoked for drunken driving and fatality responsibility.

People whose licenses have been revoked in one state for these two offenses often, with a self-congratulating gleam in their eyes, drive to the next state and apply for another license.

This used to be a ruse that worked. But now all 50 states routinely submit a "search request" to NDRS for every out-of-stater who applies for a license. If the applicant's license has been revoked in another state, he won't get official permission to drive.

NDRS has been operating since July 1, 1961; and the federal agency has made nearly 40,000 identifications of drivers whose licenses have been revoked.

Legislation now pending in Congress will enable states to furnish information on licenses lost for any reason, including mental or physical incompetency.

If such legislation is approved, it will be virtually impossible for a driver on any state's revoked list to obtain a license through evasion and fraud.

Even now, many dangerous drivers are being kept off the highways.

Recently, NDRS asked its electronic brain to look for the name and description of a man who was applying for a driver's license in Arkansas. The machine discovered that the applicant had lost his license three times in Texas for drunken driving. Furthermore, he had been involved in 10 traffic accidents in Texas and had been convicted of reckless driving in Kentucky.

Will the wonders of our electronic age never cease? Let's hope not.

RETURNING TO FDR'S WORK

No extraordinary notice was taken last week of the twenty first anniversary of the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Indeed, his passing had been marked by a lesser display of mourning than was that of President Kennedy. But then, so many others were dying 20 years ago. So many gold stars were replacing the blue stars in the service flags.

Yet Americans probably never were more deeply moved by a President, not even by Abraham Lincoln. There is the testimony of Roosevelt's four elections contrasted with the bitterness of Lincoln's second campaign. Actually, Americans were engaged in reworking their destiny, and President Roosevelt was so engaged with them that nation and leader were inseparable. A pattern was set which still is the American pattern.

Distinctions and differences may be noted, but Washington correspondents almost automatically write of the Johnson Administration in the terms of 21 years ago. They compare, for example, Mr. Johnson's first 100 days with FDR's 100 days. True, the achievements of two decades ago were improvised while Mr. Johnson's are carefully planned--but planned in the pattern of a New Deal for the ordinary citizen. Contemporary concerns, fundamentally, are the concerns of 21 years ago -- employment, schooling, economic reconstruction, help for the poor, the sick, the old. What motivates the "war against proverty" if not a desire to extend the New Deal?

Roosevelt was diverted by the world's bloodiest war, but he hoped that victory would enable the nation to get on with the work. No man can say whether he had an intimation of the cold war to come, and of further diversion. But except for Viet Nam, international pressures have been eased. Attention again centers on individual well being. And if the world escapes the folly of another vast war, it seems that this focus will not change in the years ahead.

The social shock of the Depression turned Americans to the compassionate and, on the whole, successful innovations of the New Deal. And today the realization that "the other America," and especially the Negro, has not yet fully benefited by those innovations is turning us again toward the goals of justice and compassion, and the achievement of an economy adequate to make them real for all. Just as Mr. Roosevelt hoped to return to the interrupted work, so the nation is now turning to it as minds and energy are being freed for the work.

The tragedy lies in its interruption by wars. Thus it has become even more important than it seemed to be in New Deal days to recognize that the responsibility for human welfare, for a better life for every man, involves a decent concern not only for our own, but also for all nations. The perfection of Franklin D. Roosevelt's work is the world's work. Nothing less is worthy of any man.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

There's always a possibility a bachelor will marry until he learns to sew on buttons. After that, a girl is foolish to waste her time on him.

If the New York Yankees win the American League pennant this year, I'll eat home plate.

Few million-dollar deals are closed by guys dressed in drip-dry shirts. When you get in that league, you don't have to save on your laundry bills.

Walk five miles a day regularly and you'll probably never beat up your wife. For one thing, you won't need the extra exercise.

If I were selling life insurance to athletes, I'd concentrate on weight lifters. They are introspective and worry more about their health more than any other kind of muscle benders. They also cry more easily.

Two-thirds of the guys you see coming to work carrying a well-stuffed briefcase aren't hard workers. They just like a big lunch.

You can have all the other actresses in the world if I can have just three - Julie Harris, Julie Andrews and Julie Christie.

Never lend money to a fellow who doesn't wear an undershirt. He's bound to have some other character defect, too.

Look at the next construction worker on the street you see using an electric jackhammer. The odds are 4-1 that he'll have a big belly.

A good business executive is often more precise in the use of words than a college English instructor. He has to be; he can't afford to say anything except exactly what he means.

It is impossible to rid ourselves of all prejudice. For example, when I see anyone wearing dark glasses on a cloudy day—although certainly it should be no concern of mine—I immediately take a strong dislike to him and put him down as a showoff idiot.

The same thing goes for a woman over 50 who wears a yellow ribbon in her hair.

Every business firm should have pasted on its bulletin board this remark by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia: "A swivel chair has ruined more men than chorus girls or liquor."

The average woman would have more dignity being hanged in public than being drunk in public.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ. . .

"Hammarskjold: the Dangerous Man" by Emery Kelen. Emery Kelen is a man who is accustomed to learning a great deal from a person's face. When Dag Hammarskjold took his post as Secretary General of the United Nations, he was a subject both challenging and revelatory. There was the softness of the lower face, the shrewdness of the midface, the spirituality of the high dome. Emery Kelen follows these and many other perceptions up with the facts of Hammarskjold's life and with his performance at the UN. Pope Pius called him his lay counterpart; Hammarskjold termed himself an instrument, a catalyst, perhaps an inspirer. Emery Kelen sees him as a truly disinterested person who "wrestled with the vast egoism of total selflessness," whose diplomacy was effective because his sheer integrity forced conflicting parties to conciliate. The style of his reckoning is highly readable. Kelen looks into his personal life -- the part played by his mother, the place of religion, his celibacy, his attitude toward death. While increasing understanding, he does not resolve the mystery of the man. He is perhaps on firmer ground with his coverage of the UN, and he brings that body alive as he relives its history with Hammarskjold at the helm. He concludes with the question, "was Hammarskjold a suicide? If so, the testimony of the grass he clutched in his death agony (and his demonstrated belief in the sanctity of human life) is false. This is the book on Hammarskjold that reduces a legend to the level of human understanding.

OPEN YOUR DOORS AND YOUR HEART

The late President John F. Kennedy, speaking of the Crusade against Cancer, said: "I . . . .hope that you will open your doors and your hearts to the two million volunteers in this great drive who will be calling on you."

President Kennedy spoke from profound and deeply felt compassion for people stricken with disease.

Our First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has carried the American Cancer Society's life-saving message from door to door herself, has said with equal meaning: "All together, volunteers, the government, physicians and scientists, we are united in our effort to conquer cancer. . .Welcome your neighbor when she calls for the Cancer Crusade."

During April a neighbor will visit you -- a volunteer in the American Cancer Society's educational and fund-raising Crusade.

The volunteer will come to your door with two vital messages: 1) How to best protect your life from cancer; 2) An appeal for much-needed funds. The Society seeks these funds not only to carry on at present levels but to enlarge its research, education and service programs and give us more effective control over cancer.

The cancer problem is big. It involves all of us. Cancer is impartial when it attacks. Bu the cancer problem is not at all as gloomy as it was a few years ago. Modern science and education have made great inroads on the disease. There are 1,400,000 Americans alive today, cured of cancer. A quarter of a century ago there were only 260,000.

Twenty years ago only one out of four stricken with the disease was saved. Now it is one out of three. It could be one out of two, that is, if all of us exercised necessary precautions. This is why education is so important -- people must know the facts and be persuaded to act in time. Action requires a health checkup by a physician every year and being constantly on the alert to cancer's seven danger signals.

Research is most important. The lives of half of those who develop cancer depend on future research. The American Cancer Society needs more research funds to support more of the projects recommended by the distinguished scientists who are on its Research Advisory Council.

So when an American Cancer volunteer calls, "open your doors and your hearts" and your minds.

PRAISE FOR THE FDA

Last February, an antidepressant drug, tranylcypromine sulfate, was taken off the market by its manufactuerer. This, according to an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association, was done "after strong pressure from the FDA, but under firm protest by the company."

Recently, the FDA announced that it was permitting the drug to return to market on the condition that adequate attention is called to all potential hazards associated with it.

That, in the AMA's opinion, is to the credit of the FDA's new medical director, Joseph F. Sadusk, Jr., M.D. The controversy, it goes on, ". . . appears to have been resolved by an objective appraisal of the medical and scientific data available." It then makes this all important point: "It would be well for the FDA to bear this in mind and to use its regulatory power with discretion in any area in which a significant segment of the medical profession agrees that a drug, even though potentially hazardous and having a certain risk in its use, can be used effectively to the best interests of patients. It appears from Dr. Sadusk's disposition of the tranylcypromine problem that he is aware of this . . . ."

The question is simply one of benefits as balanced against risks. Numbers of very valuable prescription drugs can, in a relatively small number of cases, produce adverse effects. But does this justify denying them to the many who find them of service in prolonging life and restoring health? The only answer seems to be No.

Absolute safety, if demanded of drugs, would mean an end to progress. The action of the FDA on this particular matter was strongly in the public interest.

No mistake. Women and Negroes have dictatorships over the barrel. Its up to them to use the paddle on the "fanny." Now if menfolks will heave all parties out of the window, get a referendum and recall law with teeth in it, and a secret ballot we will have em licked. H. L. Hunt Says

A HERO WHO CAME HOME

Excerpts from letter to LIFE LINE from William J. O'Sullivan, father of Captain Christopher J. O'Sullivan, the "Hero Who Came Home."

"My son had a great love for his country and thought he could best serve his country in the armed services. He believed in only one 'ISM', Americanism. He realized the only real enemy our Country had was Communism in all its forms. He knew that Liberty, as we know it, can never co-exist with Communism. He fought against Communism where it presently is the greatest threat to our Liberty and the Liberty of the free people of the world -- Viet Nam. He wrote me that he hoped his hardships and the sufferings of all young Americans in Viet Nam would not go for naught, because of the indifference of the people at home.

"You asked me if you or your organization could do anything for the O'Sullivan family. We say that there is something that you and your organization can do, and that is to try, in the name of God, to arouse the American people to the great threat to their Liberty, that is now being carried on by Communism in every corner of the world.

"It is not enough for the American people to vote for non-Communists. They must vote for Anti-Communists. They should. . . remember they are Americans first and last. Sir, the Americans who believe in the Constitution and Bill of Rights as handed down by our Forefathers, are in the majority in this Country. They should make themselves heard. It is in preserving our own Liberty that we can best help others throughout the world." HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON--Lyndon Johnson, who has been accused unfairly, of using influence with the Federal Communications Commission to role up a multi-million dollar TV-radio monopoly in Austin for Lady Bird, has a unique opportunity to combat this accusation with the appointment of a new FCC chairman.

Some advisers want him to appoint a new chairman who won't rock the boat, won't scare the TV industry. On the other hand there is no industry which needs more rocking than the huge networks and group broadcasters, many controlled by defense contractors, which with the use of public owned airwaves, have rolled up profits as much as 40 percent.

In 1964 the fifteen network owned stations made a profit of 37.6 percent. Profits have soared so fantastically that WIIC-TV in Pittsburgh was sold last fall to the Cox Broadcasting Company for $20,600,000. Since the tangible assets of the station were listed at $3,800,000, the balance, or $16,800,000 was the value of the federal license --a license owned by the American people, but granted by the FCC as the agent for the people.

That agency in the past has been pretty much the puppet of the broadcasting world, and any FCC chairman who really tries to exercise authority, such as retiring William Henry, finds himself attacked by the industry, castigated by Madison-Avenue minded congressmen, hamstrung by some of his own associates, and eventually resigns.

Meanwhile a dangerous trend has developed in the broadcasting industry which Lyndon Johnson needs to watch even closer than he is accused of once watching his wife's TV monopoly in Austin. This trend is the branching out of television into education and publishing, with control sometimes resting with defense contractors.

BOOKS AND BROADCASTERS

Profits have been so great in the TV industry that the Radio Corporation of America, which owns one of the biggest networks, NBC, has announced the purchase of Random House Books, one of the major publishing houses.

CBS has gone further. It announced, Sept. 29 last year an agreement to acquire Allyn and Bacon, probably the biggest supplier of educational materials for pre-kindergarten, high school, college and graduate work in the nation. Said CBS: "Our businesses dovetail nicely."

On top of this, CBS last March moved to acquire creative playthings of Princeton, N. J., together with learning center. The first is a top supplier of 3-dimensional educational systems for nursery schools, the second a developer of teaching techniques for children.

This means that CBS, on top of its tremendous impact on the adult audience through TV, will now increase its juvenile impact through three subsidiaries dealing with cradle to adult education.

In other words, the networks are fast encroaching on the field of the public school, the college and the university. Yet while public schools are administered by local and state school boards, subject to the will of the people, the networks are subject only to a handful of Madison Avenue executives and Wall Street directors interested in a profit of 37.6 percent.

Colleges and universities are administered by trained educators and gives the widest latitude to free speech, freedom of learning, exposure to outside speakers and teachers. A system of exchange professors bring viewpoints from England, the European continent and all parts of the USA. But not the networks. Both CBS and NBC operate a closed shop as far as outside talent is concerned. Ninety percent of network programing is produced by the nets on which they make a second profit.

This is like the New York Times Sunday magazine or the Saturday Evening Post refusing to accept articles by writers not on their staffs, or like a university barring lectures by outside professors.

Only the American Broadcasting Company accepts outside producers and programs.

IKES LAST MESSAGE

Equally dangerous has been the trend toward ownership of television by big defense contractors. President Eisenhower in his last message to the American people warned of the alliance between the Defense contractor and the Pentagon, which administered the first peacetime army and navy in America's history.

At that time Ike did not foresee a further development--the entrance of defense contractors into the broadcasting field where they can directly influence public opinion. Having NBC owned by one of the major defense contractors, for instance, is like having General Motors own the New York Times or General Dynamics own the Washington Post.

It could be one of the most dangerous conflict of public interest in the nation, especially in view of NBC's closed shop policy.

Other big defense contractors in the TV broadcasting field are General Electric; General Tire and Rubber which makes the Polaris missile; American Aviation Company, and Westinghouse. The latter, it should be noted, does a broad-minded non-closed shop job of informing the public.

These are some of the reasons why LBJ's selection of the new Federal Communications chairman will be watched so carefully.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Leaders, Angered by Medicare Operation, Plan Fight to Monitor Doctors' Bills.

Washington, D. C.: -- Some of the nation's militant labor leaders and their welfare specialists are ruefully considering advising their people to stop supporting the government's voluntary medicare program and to pull out, if they're in it.

After fighting for it for years, these unionists agree with old Publilius Syrus that there are some remedies worse than the disease.

The union chiefs are angered because they have been cut out of the program incisively by a federal scapel.

They are saying the voluntary cost -- $3 a month, $36 a year ($72 for an elderly couple) -- is too high.

Furthermore, they charge that doctors' fees will be excessive and that labor should be monitoring these bills -- and now can't.

And not the least of the labor leaders' anxieties is in being cut off from an influential bloc of people whom the unions have serviced for years -- the organized, ever - active, constantly vocal "retirees."

In some industries, such as steel and auto, workers are now annually retiring by the scores of thousands.

The union officials have been agitated by the government's decision not to do business with the labor movement in the medicare operation. In effect, this means that only a few major intermediaries will be the go - between linking perhaps 7,100 hospitals, 17,000 old-age homes and institutions and mushrooming nursing homes.

Such organizations as the Blue Cross and insurance companies will take the hospital bills, provide the money, and finally the reimbursement from the government.

In all, this is expected to exceed some three billion dollars in the first full year.

Thus, despite labor's welfare fund servicing of members over the years, the unions will lose contact with their people once they hit 65 and retire.

The words "aged" and "aging" are not in their glossary. Many are organized in the labor - led National Council of Senior Citizens, covering more than 2,000 social, religious, welfare, civil rights and union club organizations. It has 2,000,000 members in 70 state and area councils.

This is a mighty potent political force -- led by the retired John Edelman, until recently Capitol Hill lobbyist for the Textile Workers' Union. During recent elections the "over-65s" rang doorbells, distributed literature, worked the precincts on Election Day, manned the telephones on "Election Day minus one" -- call day -- and spent their leisure time stomping their areas for favorite candidates.

"So, we now are chagrined over the medicare development," said Irving Baldinger, vice president for Health and Welfare, District 65, a wholesale, retail and small manufacturing shop union, one of the most militant in the land.

"The government now, by shifting the fiscal operations to Blue Cross and insurance companies, separates the retiring membership from the unions. This will cut the final vestiges of contact between the unions and their members because this link has been based on welfare and hospitalization and retirement funds.

"Of course, you're right when you say that will also cut the unions from vital political cadres. The retirees have been doing yeoman work in all the legislative lobbying. They are veteran unionists, instilled in the old tradition and they have the time to help."

Furthermore, says Baldinger, the old comprehensive medical coverage provided by the unions is less expensive. And he reports that many of the old retirees are coming to union headquarters asking, "What do we need the medicare for? We already have coverage."

So, the second stage of the medicare drama is upon us.

Labor's attack will be launched against the right of the physicians to estimate their own bills. And such leaders as Walter Reuther will fight to force such industries as "auto and aerospace" to pay the $36 voluntary yearly charge.

They aim to prove they are mighty powerful medicine men themselves.

Girardot Chapter of NSA Has Annual Bosses Night

Sixty-four secretaries and bosses met at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau Monday night for the annual bosses night banquet. This is the 16th annual dinner of the Girardot Chapter. The theme for the evening was "Show Boat on the Mississippi," with favors, decorations and entertainment following this theme.

The invocation was given by Thomas Meyer. President Miss Elnora Tucker introduced the master of ceremonies, Jack Himmelberger.

Entertainment "Fit for All Kings" was in charge of Anita Meinz, and this was a melodrama presented by the professors and faculty of the speech department of Southeast Missouri State College.

Erma Hesskamp's boss, Walter Oberheide, was crowned king boss for the 1966-67 year. Outgoing king boss was Forrest Rose.

The after dinner speaker was Edwin Clark, chairman of the Board of Directors of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of St. Louis.

Women were urged to enter into politics at the precinct or ward level and to take a more active interest in governmental affairs by Clark.

Pleaded for greater community concern with education.

Cited inflation as the nation's greatest economic peril, and--

Clark noted the economic power of women, their ownership of common stock in the nation's corporations, the amount of real estate they own and control and that they spend the nation's money.

It was women, he said, who led many of the world's great reforms and who brought better living and health standards to America.

He suggested that with this power it is time they become involved in governmental affairs, and that the start be made on the ward or precinct level.

"If you're really interested in good government," Clark said, "then go to ward meetings, precinct meetings and find out what kind of people are seeking office."

There, he said, they would find whether candidates have integrity, morality and character or simply selfish reasons for seeking office.

"It seems to me that men have made a mess of politics; that women of this country can do something if they really want to do something."

Clark pointed out that the decisions of office are made at the precinct level, not in the voting booth. "We need people who will stand for sound, honest, progressive government," he said.

Discussing the part of education in the future of the country Clark said it is a matter of community decision whether the people want to spend the necessary money so their children are pushed to their limit in their capacity to learn.

He said all too often the bright students must suffer and stand still because they are held back in the classroom by those with lesser ability.

This raises the question in public schools whether there will be divided classes so the pupils are really educated to the maximum amount they can be, Clark said.

"I think today we are neglecting our smart young people and talking over the heads of the others," he said.

"It seems to me that everyone today must have a diploma. Industry has found that a diploma doesn't always mean much. Industry must test graduates to see if they really have ability and can learn."

He urged that the people of the nation's communities find out what their children are taught. Clark cited the changes that have come in the nation's history books alone, recalling that at one time they carried the story of America's great men, their words and their actions.

Today, he said, it is a rare history book that mentions Patrick Henry's "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death," or John Paul Jones, "We Have Just Begun to Fight," or the other words and deeds of men who helped mold the nation.

"I think it is your job to find out what is being taught in your schools," Clark said.

Turning to the national economy, the speaker said today's dollar is worth approximately half of what the 1940 dollar was worth and it appears by 1970 the 1966 dollar will be worth 25 per cent less. This inflation, he said, has been going on since 1940 and "is going to get worse, I'm afraid."

He attributed this decline in the dollar's value to poor government policies and continual spending beyond income. "Inflation is our greatest danger."

Discussing Social Security and the new Medicare program, he said it is the young people of the nation who must pay the cost. "It is the young people who are going to support the old ones." He said if all payments to the Social Security program were to stop today, there are only enough funds on hand to continue the program for 14 months.

"When we talk here about state socialism, the people of this country say 'No, we don't want that.' But they don't seem to realize that when we talk about the Great Society or the New Frontier, it's the same thing.

"I think that things are really serious, that we're going down that road," Clark said.

Those attending from Sikeston, belonging to the Girardot Chapter, were Secretary Lela Martin and boss, Bernard Rice, and Secretary Marjorie Hopkins and bosses, R. P. Buchmueller and Lennie O. Whitworth, Jr.

National Secretaries Week will be observed April 24-30.

Keglers Korner

By Hildred Poole

Hello! The biggest news in quite awhile from the lanes has been the Ladies Bowl-a-thon. I know we have had some coverage by the paper on it but know the rest of the gals who bowled would like to know exactly how things went. At 11 p.m. Friday night 24 bowlers started bowling and we bowled until 7:40 a.m. Saturday morning. Believe it or not we were a little tired. Jean Lee had to show off and win. There was a little while I might have caught her but it just didn't work that way and when we finished she had beaten me by 35 pins.

Actually I was proud of being even close to her and very surprised to come in second place. Even Mary Bain had to show off and beat my high game of 224 with a 225. Guess it just wasn't my day. (Or night that is).

IMPERIAL ETTS

Crown 3 -- Belltones 1; L & A 3 -- Progressive 1; Kroger 3-- Deline 1; A & B 2½ -- Standard 1½.

Darla Carter really smacked those pins for a big 223 game and Flora Crouthers took high series with a 532. Splits picked up in this league were Nelda Hodge 5-8-10, Lois Cokenour 4-5, Ginny Dean 4-5, Flora Young and Lois Cokenour 3-10, Janet Storey 5-10, Emily Manley 4-5, Janet Meadows 5-7.

FRIDAY BOWLETTS

Ziegenhorn 3 -- Medical Arts 1, I. S. Co. no. 3-3 -- Shys 1; Canvas 3 -- Rudys 1; Hambys 3-- E. P. Coleman 1; Vogue 2 -- I. S. C. no. 1-2; Proffers 2-- I. S. C. no 2-2. In the make up game we rolled last night Hambys took four from Ziegenhorn.

Highs Friday night were by 203 and 507 rolled by me. Yes I bowled in the league before the bowl-a-thon. Brenda Newton did too. We were told we shouldn't have but it really didn't make any difference.

Splits picked up Dorthy Pratt 4-5, Mildred Cockrell 3-7, Virginia Dollar, Hildred Poole, Brenda Newton, Mildred Cockrell 3-10, Opal Briggs 6-10, Iona Taylor 4-7.

Every now and then a bowler really does things not quite according to the way they should go and Billie Waldron did this Friday night. She threw her first ball and left a split and also got a pin in the gutter that the pinsetter didn't move. When she threw her second ball it went into the gutter and hit the pin there and knocked it over into some of the pins she had left, but in hitting the pin in the gutter her ball bounced into the next lane and the men who were bowling over there got a surprise. She also knocked down pins in that lane. It takes a pretty good bowler to knock down pins in two lanes at the same time.

ROYAL KEGLERS

Puckett 4 -- Bank of Sikeston 0; Alcorn 3-- Busch 1; Holyfield 3 -- 1st. National Bank 1; Lewis 3 -- Deb Ellen 1; Ferrell 3 -- Mutual of Omaha 1.

These gals really poured it on this week with high game by Jean Lee of 215 and also high series of 565. All these had series of over 500 -- Glenda Becker, 542; Beanie Ralph, 529; Johnnie Dacus, 528; Betty Estes, 523; Lil Acord 522. Three girls in this league have received triplicate scores this year. They are Betty Heath, Sally Beckman, Beanie Ralph.

McCarver Paces Cards With Triple

Tim McCarver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Athletics returned home Tuesday night for the first time this season and edged the defending American League champion Minnesota twins, 3-2, for their first victory of the season.

The St. Louis Cardinals stopped the New York Mets 5-2, on a four-man, fifth-inning outburst capped by catcher Tim McCarver's bases - loaded triple.

Kansas City, now 1-5, won behind the pitching of rookie Chuck Dobson and former bonus baby Lew Krausse, who combined for a six-hitter against the Twins.

Dobson allowed five hits and was replaced by Krausse when he walked in the second Minnesota run with two outs in the sixth. Krausse got Zoilo Versalles on a drive to center.

The A's scored two unearned runs with the help of Tonly Oliva who dropped two fly balls in right field. Oliva slipped on Tartabull's fly in the first inning and tartabull later scored on Camilio Pascual's balk. Oliva then dropped Dobson's fly after singles by Dick Green and Ken Suarez in the second.

St. Louis' other run came in the sixth on George Kernek's triple and Jerry Buchek's sacrifice fly.

The Mets scored in the third when Cleon Jones and Ron Hunt singled and Jones running with the pitch, raced home when Javier hesitated after taking the throw from the outfield.

Ex-Cardinal Ken Boyer homered in the sixth for New York. He also committed two errors in his first league game against his former teammates.

Righthander Bob Gibson, 1-0, this year, is scheduled to pitch today against New York righthander Jack Hamilton, also 1-0.

The A's are scheduled to pitch Roland Sheldon, 0-1 against Minnesota's Jim Kaat, 1-0 tonight.

Mays Collects Four Hits, Closing In On Two All-Time League Records

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wondrous Willie crashed four hits — including his third home run of the young season — as the San Francisco Giants outlasted Durocher's Chicago Cubs 11-10 Tuesday for their sixth victory in seven games.

The home run — 508th of Mays' 15-year career - left him three short of Ott, the late Giants slugger and National League record-holder. Mays, who belted 52 homers last year, should pass Ott, as well as Ted Williams, 521, and Jimmy Foxx, 534, this season. That would put him in the No. 2 spot on the all-time list behind Babe Ruth's 714 total.

All three of Willie's 1966 blasts have come off Chicago pitchers and two have helped beat Durocher, his former manager and biggest booster. Mays homered in the Giants' 9-1 season-opening victory over the Cubs at San Francisco last week before spoiling Durocher's Chicago debut Tuesday.

The Cubs have dropped three of four to San Francisco and six of seven over - all.

The Giants paraded eight pitchers against the Cubs-tying a league record—before Bob Bolin got the last out with the bases loaded in the ninth. Trailing 9-8 in the eighth, San Francisco struck for the runs—one on Mays' third single and two on Don Landrum's two-out double—to pull it out.

The Pirates rocked Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis and two successors for 17 hits, Donn Clendenon leading the way with four singles. Winning pitcher Steve Blass, meanwhile, scattered seven hits, including rookie Tommy Helms' first major league homer. Blass also snapped Vada Pinson's carry-over hitting streak at 31 games.

Drysdale, making his second start for the Dodgers, departed in the middle of Houston's four-run fifth inning uprising that erased a 5-2 Los Angeles lead. Jim Wynn applied the clincher with a two-run homer off reliever Bob Miller in the eighth.

Atlanta starter Wade Blasingame keyed a two-run rally in the third inning with a bunt single and reliever Clay Carroll checked Philadelphia on one hit over the last five innings. Blasingame's safe bunt, singles by Gary Geiger and Ferlipe Alou, a force play and Dick Groat's throwing error produced the deciding runs in the third.

BASEBALL NOTES

The first confrontation between Charley Smith and Ken Boyer against their old clubs amounted to a Mexican standoff.

True, Boyer clouted a home run in the sixth for the Mets' final run, but he was charged with the game's two errors. However, they didn't figure in the St. Louis scoring.

Smith, on the other hand, may have saved the Cardinals with his glove. With Mets on first and third in the first inning, he speared Jim Hickman's liner with a diving back-handed grab over the bag.

The ex-Met third baseman also singled in the fourth, but his average "dropped" to .480. Cleon Jones deprived Smith of a double or triple with an over-the-shoulder grab of his second-inning smash.

Losing pitcher Jack Fisher is working on a ten-game tailspin. He lost his last eight decision in '65, then last Friday to Atlanta and again Tuesday. Fat Jack hasn't won since August of 1965 when he defeated the Red Birds, 6-2.

In contrast, Bob Gibson will shoot for his second victory in Wednesday's series wind-up. A victory could give the Birds an over-.500 trip since they were 1-2 at Pittsburgh. Gibson conquered the Mets five times last year, and he'll draw a former Cardinal farm hand, Jack Hamilton, in the 1 o'clock event.

Dick Stuart was forced to leave on his first time at-bat when he aggravated a rib injury swinging at a pitch. Ed Kranepool subbed for him and struck out. Kranepool struck out the next three times, too.

George Kernek boosted his average to .389 while McCarver tied Curt Flood for the club leadership in RBIs (five). . . Boyer leads the Mets with six.

Celtics Win, Games Move To Los Angeles

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics move on to Los Angeles for a meeting with the Lakers tonight in a determined bid to regain the edge in quest of an eighth straight National Basketball Association championship.

The Celtics evened the best-of-seven title series 1-1, overpowering the Lakers 129-109 with a sharp-shooting attack and a tight defense Tuesday night before a sellout crowd of 13,909 at the Garden.

"I'm not happy yet," Boston Coach Red Auerbach said. "They still have an edge on us because the next two games are in Los Angeles. And we're not going to be deluded into thinking things are going to be easy out there."

The Celtics, who blew an 18-point lead and lost 133-129 in overtime in the opener, took the cue from Auerbach, but hopes were high.

"We've got to get one, but we want both," high-scoring John Havlicek said. "We beat them twice on one trip out there during the regular season, so we have a good chance of doing it again."

Larry Siegfried, who scored 16 of his 20 points in 8½ minutes of the second period as Boston roared to a 71-47 halftime lead, called the Celtics' defense the key in the Los Angeles games tonight and Friday.

Los Angeles Coach Fred Schaus was an angry man after the Lakers' whipping. He refused to talk to writers, claiming he was unhappy about stories written after the first game in which the Celtics alleged poor officiating.

The Lakers' Jerry West and Elgin Baylor were held to 18 and 13 points, respectively, after combining for 77 in the opener.

Cindermen In Conference Meet At Charleston

The Bulldogs dash runners have been showing great improvement over the last few meets and should be up to their top form.

This afternoon the cindermen travel to Charleston for the County meet with Charleston, Scott Central, Scott City, and then play host Saturday to the North Conference, with activities getting started at 10 a.m.

The Bulldogs are hampered by the lack of endurance men who can run the long races in winning fashion. The Dogs must find some way to bring home the bacon in the low hurdles, the mile relay or the mile run, if they are to match points with Charleston, the tournament favorite.

Boardmen will be out to break the 120 high hurdles record set by Weakley of Charleston, in 1956.

The Bulldogs hold five records in the Conference with George Woods, now great track star for SIU holding two of the records with a 56'1" toss in the Shot Put event and a 148' sling in the Discus.

Activity this afternoon will begin at 1 p.m. at the Charleston high school field.

Peace Hopes for Viet Nam Fade

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Washington a sudden burst of words sometimes has a new and sunny and even hopeful look, like fresh flowers ready to bloom.

Then suddenly you remember something, something that's been said, and the new words lose their newness, hope looks less real, the bloom seems a little jaded, and you begin to fear what was sunny was in your imagination.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposed Monday with the best of intentions that Japan or Burma take the lead in bringing about a "direct confrontation across a peace table" of the United States, China, North Viet Nam and "essential" elements from South Viet Nam.

It was a hopeful thought.

It was followed up by the Johnson administration which Tuesday invited Burma, Japan or other Asian countries to take what initiative they see fit to help arrange a Viet Nam peace conference. The State Department heartily endorsed Mansfield's proposal. But—

The chance that North Viet Nam or Red China would act on Mansfield's idea doesn't look any more likely now, of course, than it did earlier this year when for weeks President Johnson stopped the bombing of North Viet Nam and worked hard to get peace talks going.

In fact, there is probably less reason to think Red China and North Viet Nam would want peace now than then, and not only because of the turmoil inside South Viet Nam.

For, while Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, were both endorsing Mansfield's suggestion for getting Peking to talk peace, both were laying down tough conditions for dealing with Red China or letting her into the United Nations.

Over the weekend, Rusk's testimony given in closed session before a congressional committee was released, and indicated he didn't expect Red China to abandon its aggressive policy for a generation and that this country would try to stop Peking's aggression whenever it was attempted.

In his 10-pointed policy for dealing with the Red Chinese he did include some suggestions for trying to improve relations. The United States this month made a try at this. It invited Red China to send some of its scientists and scholars to American universities. The Red Chinese quickly responded with what they thought of this. They called it a fraud.

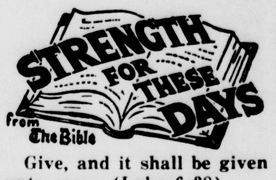
So all that Rusk said, and he went to great length to say it, and what the Chinese said briefly, was hardly conducive, or a good preliminary, to peace talks on Viet Nam.

And Tuesday Goldberg listed four minimum conditions for permitting Red China to get into the United Nations, while saying the United States would oppose membership for her this year as in all previous years.

The Goldberg conditions would mean Red China, in effect, would have to abandon her present positions. (And that's not likely, any time soon.)

These were the Goldberg conditions: Red China would have to give up her demand that American-backed Nationalist China must be thrown out of the United Nations; she must give up her demand for U.N. apology for helping South Korea in the Korean war; she must give up her demand for revision of the U.N. Charter; she must agree to abide by the U.N. Charter requiring peaceful settlement of disputes.

With Rusk and Goldberg sounding off on Red China like that—just at the moment the Johnson administration is wistfully embracing the Mansfield suggestion which wistfully talked of a peace conference with Red China -- seems to stretch the imagination just a little too much.



Give, and it shall be given unto you.—(Luke 6:38)

When we seem to have a lack in our life it may be that our real need is to give. We may think that we would gladly give if we had more supply. But regardless of how limited we seem to be, there is always something we can give. As we act in faith and use what we have, we set into action the increasing multiplying power of God.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Morris, 417 Kingshighway, Sikeston, are shown as they registered April 17 for a three-day convention for State Farm Insurance agents at the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis.

In a series of meetings and panel discussions, more than 110 agents, managers and wives from Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and North and South Dakota were briefed on company plans and current operating results.

Among convention highlights were award ceremonies for those with exceptional insurance production, an address by President Edward B. Rust, a special luncheon for the ladies and a banquet.

Guidelines Have Some Value

By JOHN T. CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In his economic message early this year President Johnson called stability of costs and prices "perhaps our most serious economic challenge in 1966."

He told Congress that "only if inflation can be avoided will prosperity be sustainable."

The weapons that could be used to challenge this threat to national prosperity include monetary restraints (on the availability of money and credit) and fiscal measures (government taxing and spending).

The Johnson administration is placing heavy reliance on another weapon: guideposts, or standards that tie wage and price increases to the average annual increase in productivity.

The chief defense of guideposts, then, is that they help fight a patriotic battle for national prosperity. Inflation robs individuals on fixed incomes, such as the retired. It makes American goods less competitive.

Roger Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel and a critic of guideposts, admits they can have some anti-inflation value. "There is no doubt," he said, "that for a limited period they can and do hold down the lid on prices."

The administration also can argue that guidelines actually represent restraint, that they are an implement of moderation at a time when some economists have suggested rigid anti-inflation controls.

The guideposts also have virtues that more rigid sanctions might lack. The Council of Economic Advisers can apply these standards directly and quickly. They can enforce them by means ranging from persuasion to power. Amid a sometimes cumbersome bureaucracy of hazy terminology, guideposts are agile, direct and to the point.

The guideposts also can be defended for their educational value in providing both sides of the business-labor bargaining table with an understanding of the needs of a noninflationary economy.

They have a publicity value — even when not applied — that serves to subdue the urge of manufacturers and workers to attempt inflationary price or wage increases.

Despite the fact that guideposts were never legislated, the Administration does have legal responsibility for sustaining a non-inflationary economy.

This responsibility comes from the Employment Act of 1946 which established the federal responsibility for determining targets and policies for "maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

Guideposts are an implement of this responsibility.

The act itself is perhaps a reflection of the great economic experimentation that has occurred in recent decades, much of it from the works of John Maynard Keynes, a British economist, who in the 1930s advocated the use of government spending and taxing to manage the economy.

Concurrent with the so-called new economics has come a great sense of national goals, chief of which is economic security for everyone.

Writing earlier this year, Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor said that the spirit of 1920 might have produced the slogan "The business of America is business," but that now it might be rewritten to, "The business of America is America."

In the end, the strongest argument that can be offered now for guideposts is that they are meant to assure a continuation of six years of unprecedented prosperity.

Price Tag on Marines' Heads

THUY LUONG, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong have placed a price tag on their heads.

The villagers have grown to love them.

There are 10 of them, all volunteers. They are nine U.S. Marines and a Navy corpsman.

Their mission is to train 15 local village militiamen to fight, and to help protect the villages from the Viet Cong. This is part of the Marine pacification program, in three Marine enclaves — Da Nang, Chu Lai and Hue Phu Bai.

Combined Action Squad 1 is located in this hamlet of 4,832 persons 430 miles north of Saigon. It is just outside of Hue Phu Bai.

The 10 live dangerously. Five-man patrols are conducted around the clock. Their area of responsibility is 35 square miles bordering a river 45 miles south of Communist North Viet Nam's border. The other side of the river is Viet Cong controlled.

The Marines' home is a Z-shaped bamboo-thatched hut located near the edge of the village. They have no electricity. Briefings at night are by candlelight. Their only defense — outside of their rifles — are hundreds of sharply pointed bamboo stakes six feet high that form a perimeter around the camp.

The Viet Cong have placed a price tag of 10,000 piasters — about $135 — on each Marine's head — dead or alive. But the villagers have been won over by the Marines.

One of the prettiest girls in the hamlet who had the longest and most beautiful black hair was seen recently with her hair cut short. When Pfc. Hunter Moore of Alexandria, Va., who acts as an interpreter, asked the girl why she had her hair cut, she replied: "Now I look like Jackie Kennedy."

As Sgt. Thomas Cleary, 23, of Los Angeles, commander of the squad, put it: "If any Viet Cong were within 1,000 yards of the village, we would have many of the villagers at our gate yelling, 'VC! VC!'"

Recently, when the Marines were on patrol, the Viet Cong moved in and attacked the village headquarters. The patrol heard the shooting and returned in time to beat off the attackers.

But still, the men have one big complaint: "There just isn't enough action.

There may be soon, though. The rice harvest is due next month. The Viet Cong are hungry and need to replenish their rice. They will have to come down from the hills into the rich valleys to get it.

Iturbi Full of Vigor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jose Iturbi's reflections at 70:

"How do I feel? No different. It is like looking at the sun. You see it in the sky, and it does not appear to be moving. But if you go away and come back to look at it, you can see that it has moved. And then the sun sets, and you know for sure that it has moved."

Iturbi at 70 is far from the sunset of his years. Despite a flu attack that had prompted him to cancel several concerts, the pianist-conductor appeared for an interview in his Beverly Hills home with his usual vigor.

"Physical condition means a great deal in piano playing; so much of it is muscular. That's why I have always prided myself in remaining in top shape," he said.

Such a philosophy has preserved his position as one of the top attractions of the concert world for more than four decades. His achievements will be saluted next month by a 70th birthday concert with the Los Angeles Music Festival, which is celebrating its 20th year at UCLA.

In addition, Iturbi will be displaying his muscular style at the keyboard and on the podium in concert halls all over the world.

"I am a great believer in air travel," he remarked. "I have piloted my own plane, and I like nothing better than to be setting out in a jet for a far-off concert. My dog, whom I love, is now 8½ years old — my age! — and he has accompanied me on 42 trips across the Atlantic, not to mention flights to South Africa, South America and wherever."

He and his dog have slowed their pace, he admitted. From a one-time high of 192 concerts in one year, the Spanish-born musician has dropped to 50 to 60, and that's the way he would like to keep his schedule.

His life at home, as on the road, permits little leisure. His passion for condition dictates a rigorous schedule of exercise, particularly at the punching bag. Piano practice is a never-ending discipline.

"I work on technique for an hour and a half — two hours," he said. "Then I take up the work that is current. That can mean two-three hours — whatever is required." He is constantly adding new works to his repertoire.

How long will he continue to play?

"I will play only as long as I feel I can play. In that regard I have an artistic conscience."

PROPOSED REDWOOD PRESERVE—An administration proposal awaiting congressional action would create a new national park along the Pacific coast in California's northernmost counties to preserve redwood stands, containing some trees up to 2,000 years old. The proposed park, in two sections, would total 45,000 acres. There already is a state redwood park, Prairie Creek, in the area. A conservation organization, the Sierra Club, proposes an even more inclusive park, outlined on Newsmap.

'We are Fighting for More Than Our Own Skins'

EDITOR'S NOTE -- It was now Wednesday and the scuttlebutt said: Only two more days and then it's hit the Viet Cong. For Young Clark Richie it was a day of summing up: "We are fighting for more than our own skins." The following is the story of the third of five agonizing days in the lift of a fighting American soldier in Viet Nam.

CU CHI, South Viet Nam AP -- Propaganda loudspeakers blared in Vietnamese toward the jungled plantation where the Viet Cong was fortified in decades-old tunnels and trenches: "Give up, you are doomed. Turn yourself in, you won't be harmed."

On the perimeter of an American camp, atop his bunker just a rifle shop from the enemy plantation, a young soldier sat this Wednesday night huddled over a small transistor radio.

He was near Cu Chai, a town 20 miles northeast of Saigon in the heart of a Communist stronghold. The soldier and the others of the 2nd Brigade, 25th Division had battled for every yard in establishing this base camp.

In the dark, the chatter of the propaganda broadcasts made a strange background for the voice coming over the little radio. It was the President of the United States.

His words faded from time to time and blasts from American artillery drowned them out every few minutes.

Clark Richie, 22, of Jay Okla., put his ear next to the radio. He caught the President saying the United States stands for the self-determination of all people --that is why Americans are in Viet Nam.

Johnson quoted other presidents -- Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy -- and said America had made promises. He praised the American fighting and sacrificing his youth, and time, and maybe his life in Viet Nam.

Richie, unmarried, with a 68-year-old widowed mother and and 18-year-old girl friend at home, lay silent when the speech ended. Earlier this week he had said he figured America was here because if it didn't fight in Viet Nam now it would someday have to fight closer to home.

But with shells screaming overhead, loudspeakers calling, and the echo of Johnson's words in his head, he thought it over.

"It makes you sorta proud," he said.

"It makes me think we are fighting for more than our own skins." He remembered the dark - eyed little girls he had instructed in their first English lesson the day before at Cu Chi. The children had looked up at the tall, red-haired Oklahoman and repeated after him: "Fine thank you. How are you."

"I guess we're fighting for them, too," Richie said.

"But Charlie, as the GIs call the Viet Cong, I can't figure him. He has hardly anything, but he makes something out of everything -- from our empty C-ration cans to bamboo.

"I hope -- I know -- we're better," he continued, "but when you see the VC die as hard as they do it's tough to understand. I'm amazed they still are effective soldiers."

Richie had spent six months as a helicopter gunner in Viet Nam last year, but said ground fighting is "much rougher, messy."

At dawn this same Wednesday, the guerrillas had opened up on the 1st Battalion about 200 yards left of Richie and his three buddies in Bunker 14 of B company, 2nd Battalion.

Richie was standing guard at the bunker then, while the others ate breakfast at the mess area. He passed up the hot breakfast. The feature was scrambled powdered eggs. He didn't like them so he opened a can of C-rations -- "beef spiced with juices with water added" it said on the tin.

As the sun behind them, the men washed and shaved under the bamboo that shrouded the bunker. It was starting to be uncomfortably warm by 9 o'clock.

The heat reached its near--100 peak about 2:30. The men grumbled about the dust and ants and mosquitoes. But most talk was about the operation coming up against the Viet Cong. It appeared set for Friday, two days away, according to the best information they could get. Official word was due Thursday.

Next: The rumors are true.

Four Score and 7

Easter 1966 came between the 7th and 11th of the month.

11 left after the betrayal and last supper.

7 last words of Christ.

After the Resurrection He appeared unto Mary Magdalene who had been possessed of the 7 devils.

Jesus later appeared unto the 7 then to the 11.

On the 11th the first giant stone weighing 22000 lbs. was placed for the wall at grave of John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Kennedy surely must have idolized Lincoln and this helped to make him President.

Both Lincoln and Kennedy were concerned with civil rights.

Lincoln was elected in 1860 and Kennedy in 1960.

Both were slain on Friday.

Both were shot in the presence of their wives.

Their successors both named Johnson were Southerners; both were Democrats and both had served in the United States Senate.

Andrew Johnson was born in 1808; L. Johnson 1908.

John Wilkes Booth was born in 1839 and Harvey Oswald was born in 1939.

Both Booth and Oswald were Southerners and both supported causes unpopular with most citizens.

Both Booth and Oswald were murdered before their trials could be arranged.

Lincoln's secretary whose name was Kennedy urged him not to go to the theater and Kennedy's whose name was Lincoln advised him not to go to Dallas.

Both Lincoln and Kennedy had premonition of untimely death.

Whether it was true worship or was a smart political move, Lincoln was Kennedy's stepping stone to the White House.

In his proclamation on Naval quarantine of Cuba Kennedy made special notiations of the time 7:06 p.m. and at 7:07 p.m. it was history.

He had outlined 7 steps to be taken in the Cuban situation.

This was the 187th year of U. S. independence. Invasion of Bay of Pigs April 17th.

1100 prisoners held for ransom

The day before President Kennedy's last visit thousands of copies of a poster with the caption "Wanted for Treason" were circulated in Dallas. This anonymous handbill carried front and side view photographs of the President and 7 enumerated charges.

The fatal shot was fired from the 6th story window of a 7 story building at 411 Elm St. A committee of 7 men were appointed to investigate.

During the 20th century the U. S. has had 11 elected Presidents 7 Republican and 4 Democrats, President Kennedy was the 11th. President Johnson was the 4th president in 11 years.

Lincolns 2nd inaugural speech and the Gettysburg address are the top gems of all modern literature and have been classed as the greatest since the 23rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer.

7 horses in the largest military funeral in history-- the 6 white horses and the riderless black trailing carried the body of another American Martyr to its lasting place.

Washington Report

Sen. Stuart Symington

Having just returned from a trip to Europe over the Easter recess, I am now in the process of formulating a report which will be presented to the Chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee and Foreign Relations Committee.

The primary purpose of this trip was to represent the Senate at the 18-Nation Disarmament Conference now going on in Geneva. In addition I spent some time in Germany, France and England, discussing with military and civilian representatives the problems with respect to the future of NATO that have been raised as a result of recent decisions made by General DeGaulle.

Senate and House Appropriations subcommittees recently completed hearings on the budget request of $400 million for the Manpower Development and Training Program in fiscal 1967. While this would continue the present level of appropriations for this program, additional funds from non-federal sources would increase total expenditures since the federal share of costs is scheduled to be reduced to 90 per cent in July.

Originated in 1962, the Manpower Development and Training Program serves the worthwhile purpose of providing the unemployed and underemployed with skills needed for jobs - a meaningful contribution to the individuals involved as well as in terms of strengthening the economy of the community, State and nation.

Under the program, trainees are selected primarily from among persons who have had low skill levels and long periods of unemployment. Seventy-four per cent of those who have completed training are now in jobs.

The Department of Labor reports that MDTA graduates placed into jobs repay the cost of their training within an average five years -- in reduced welfare or unemployment benefits, increased earning capacity within the private economy, and direct tax returns to State and Federal Governments.

Average cost per trainee for the projects approved in Missouri this year is $1,800. Seventy-two percent of trainees receive a basic payment; for youths this is $20 a week; and for adults, $35 per week, the equivalent of Missouri unemployment compensation. It is interesting to note that some 23 percent of Missouri trainees had been recipients of unemployment compensation or public assistance.

In the past ten months, 74 job-training classes have been approved in Missouri for 3,256 persons to be trained in occupations for which there is a demand. Twenty - six fields of work are involved. The projects are developed by and carried out under the direction of the Missouri division of Employment Security and Vocational Education in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Labors and of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In addition to institutional training, the Department of Labor is now increasingly developing on-the-job training programs. Within this past month, eight contracts have been signed with firms and organizations in Kansas City, Rock Port, Chillicothe and Warrensburg for on-the-job training of some 350 persons.

Training for Border Patrol Not Easy

Editors Note -- The course is 14 weeks and it makes boot camp look easy. Although thousands apply, only 1 per cent are chosen. This is the Border Patrol, guarding America's frontiers, and the training center is in a place where trainees can practice what they are taught.

PORT ISABEL, Tex. AP -- They come from as far away as Maine and Washington. Some are ex-policemen, others have never held a gun.

But after 14 weeks they have a lot in common -- a handy knowledge of Spanish, a head full of law and the legend-backed badge of a border patrolman.

They are drawn to the southern tip of Texas by the U.S. Border Patrol Academy, just a few miles from the Texas-Mexico boundary.

Each year the academy adds a handpicked group of men to the 1,500-man force charged with preventing illegal entry into the United States.

The campus is an air base the Navy abandoned when it cut back pilot training. It is on the Gulf of Mexico near the resort and fishing community of Port Isabel.

Trainees learn Spanish in 14 weeks.

Students become crack pistol shots, but they also learn unarmed self-defense. They study law, first aid, use of vehicles, radio procedures, security, smuggling control, history, ethics, tracking, public relations and other skills.

John E. Eager, chief patrol inspector, a 24-year veteran of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, is headmaster.

"We have a rough course here," says Eager. "The men spend seven hours a day in classrooms, have an hour of physical training a day, spend several hours a night on homework, and then on weekends they're assigned to field duty with regular border patrolmen.

"We accept less than 1 per cent of the men who take tests all over the nation.

"We have people from all over the world come here to study our training technique -- from almost every free country in the world, particularly from Central and South America," he said.

The class started with 90 men. Three or four dropped out, Eager said, because of "wife and family situations. One wanted his old job back, where he was making more than the $6,269 yearly paid probationary patrolmen, one was offered the job of police chief in his home town, and one said he just didn't like it."

Prices Bolster Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) —Rising prices are giving an unexpected glow to the economy. Is it the glow of health or offever?

The three big spenders—consumers, business and government—all have been paying out more dollars. But about a third of their increased outlays is due to higher price tags and only two-thirds represents buying of more units of output.

Still, the rate of increase is larger than at any time since 1950 when consumer panic buying at the outset of the Korean War sent the economy soaring—in terms of dollars if not of health.

The unexpected gain this year hasn't been due to panic buying. It has been due more to affluence. The spenders-consumers, business and government—all have had more dollars to spend.

Consumers have more dollars because there are more jobs this year than last, because many wage scales have risen, and because in 1964 and 1965 federal tax rates were cut with the aim of promoting prosperity and cutting unemployment. It worked. The nagging question now is if it worked too well.

Business has more to spend this year, partly because it too enjoys lower tax rates than a few years back, but mainly because sales and profits have been soaring to record heights.

Government has more to spend because the larger incomes of individuals and corporations have produced big tax collections even at lower rates. And also the government debt has risen, meaning Uncle Sam has borrowed to get the dollars for larger expenditures, both at home and in Viet Nam.

Efforts to curb spending all along the line may check the economy's faster pace a bit in the current April-June quarter.

President Johnson has urged all hands to go slow, to put off some planned outlays, to shun products and services on which prices have been rising faster than the average.

Top business executives have promised to cut back some of their record expansion plans for 1966. The president has asked federal departments and agencies to trim government spending, or at least to postpone some of it. Total consumer spendable income will be clipped somewhat by larger tax withholding from pay checks of those in higher income brackets.

But few expect the rate of the growth in the economy to be chilled much.

Not New

Ancient Greeks, before the Christian era, made a wooden pigeon that flew, so mechanical toys are not new. Air escaping from an animal bladder, as from a balloon, propelled the ancient toy.

Armed Forces

CAMP PENDLETON, CALIF. (FHTNC) -- Marine Private Charles D. Thatcher son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Thatcher of Route 2, Sikeston, Mo., has completed a 12-day training and processing cycle with Staging Battalion at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

This refresher training stresses the principles of small unit tactics, with particular emphasis on the fundamentals of scouting and patrolling, and land navigation.

Day and night tactical maneuvers provide the individual Marine with an opportunity to improve his skill as a combat infantryman.

CAM RANH BAY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- A vital road in the key supply line of the U.S. Vietnam Army logistics network was re-opened last month after 12 years. Highway 7, from Tuy Hoa to Song Hoa, was the site of the massacre of a French mobile unit in 1954. Combined friendly forces cleared the way to a key air field near Cung Son.

Specialist Four Donald G. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar E. Baker, 205 N. Locust st., Charleston, Mo., took part as a combat construction specialist with Company C, 39th Engineer Battalion, part of the task force from the 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division; 47th Vietnamese Army Regiment; local Civil Defense forces and the 39th.

Using helicopters to "leap frog" along the route, the unit cleared 50 kilometers (some 32 miles) of mine-dotted roads, repaired innumerable roadbreaks, and built several bridge by-passes and a large bridge. Specialist Baker's unit completed the mission in two days.

When they reached their destination, Baker and the other engineers went to work improving the air strip. Meanwhile, back in town, local bus drivers worked all through the night of the break-through, March 23, getting ready to inaugurate the Song Hoa-Tuy Hoa run, discontinued a dozen years ago.

He attended Charleston High School.

Dexter Youth Held for Series Of Breakins

DEXTER -- A 16-year-old Dexter youth has been arrested and is being held in the Stoddard county jail at Bloomfield in connection with a rash of break-ins reported here.

His name is being withheld by Authorities.

He has allegedly admitted entering the Leffler Lee Service Station, Joe's Cafe, the Shell station (twice), Fred's Liquor Store twice, the Ketch-A-Bite Restaurant and the Western Auto store.

The arrest was made shortly after noon Thursday by Jack Link, Highway Patrolman, Poplar Bluff; Thurmon Thompson, Stoddard County Sheriff's deputy and Clay Baker, Dexter policeman.

Autorities said that the type of break-ins led them to suspect the youth who is on parole after serving a sentence in Boonville. He was sentenced to Boonville from another county, authorities said.

Pilot Show Is Filler

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It may save money for the producers. It may postpone summer reruns for a week. But it is debatable whether it is wise to broadcast a pilot show made only to convince network executives and advertising agencies that they should order up a whole series after seeing the sample.

One of those samples, "Assault," was shown Tuesday night during the hour that ABC normally devotes to "Combat," and except for the camouflaged helmets, it was hard to tell the difference. "Combat" is a long-playing series about the infantry's bitter battle across France two decades ago. "Assault" proposed to tell the same story about Marines in the South Pacific.

It did not find a sponsor, but it is hard to understand why it failed. It had everything that "Combat" has, including pretty much the same script. All that was necessary was to substitute Japanese for Nazis, add a bit of fake philodendron to Hollywood's backlot underbrush to simulate tropical jungle, and hold the final shootout on a beach instead of around a French cathedral.

The president of NBC News, William McAndrews, Tuesday offered ABC and CBS the opportunity to broadcast its special program, "Lyndon Johnson's Texas." The NBC special, with the President acting as guide part of the time, is scheduled for NBC broadcast May 9. McAndrews said the other networks may broadcast the show then or at a later date.

It was a journalistic scoop for NBC, similar to the time CBS had Mrs. John F. Kennedy lead a television tour of the White House. Both NBC and ABC carried the program.

"The Virginian" will be missing a character next season but "The Fugitive" will be gaining one. Dr. Richard Kimble, the hunted man, after all these lonely seasons will be joined by a son whose existence was never even hinted at before. Lee J. Cobb, who has been playing Judge Garth on "The Virginian," will be replaced by John Dehner, originally set to move onto Shiloh Ranch next season as the new ramrod. Instead, he will be the new owner.

Everyone at Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet is knee-deep in plans for the big Chevrolet Motorevue Show that will make its debut on Thursday, April 21.

"This show has been packing them in every place it's played," states Garwood and Val Sharp, "and small wonder. There's something for everyone in the family. Interesting and educational automotive displays featuring such items as the Chevrolet Caprice Lift Body, 4-Speed Passenger Car Transmission and a new safety exhibit are just three of many exciting exhibits. Of course, all the exciting new 1966 Chevrolets will be there, too, so everyone can get a close-up look.

Sponsored by Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet, the Motorevue Show will run from April 21 to April 30 at Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet Co., corner of West Center and Scott Streets, Sikeston.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I am sure the residents of Stoddard County would say along with me, that we are losing a very capable representative and trusted friend from the State Legislature.

Mr. Baker's decision not to run for another term puts many of us at a loss. Men like Mr. Baker are very hard to replace.

This letter will express my personal appreciation to him for his fine record in our State Legislature. And for the many kind personal deeds that he has performed for the people of Stoddard County.

May we say thanks Mr. Baker.

matter of fact

The hereditary theory in the study of criminology, led by Lombroso who held that criminals had common physical peculiarities, was weakened considerably when a 20th century British investigator, Charles Goring, reported finding about as many cases of Lombroso's so-called criminal types among English university students as he did among English convicts.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. (Hebrews 4:14)

PRAYER: God, our heavenly Father, we thank Thee that Thy love is extended to all Thy children through Jesus Christ our Savior. Help us to accept Thy love, receive Thy salvation, and hold fast our faith through professing and living it. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from an older sister who was unhappy because the second grade teacher told her little brother there was no Santa Claus. The same thing happened to our little boy, only it was the third-grade teacher who robbed OUR youngster of his fantasy.

Our son was terribly unhappy when he came home from school. I turned to the World Book Encyclopedia for help and found it.

Santa Claus WAS a real person. He was the Bishop of Myra, who lived in an ancient town in Turkey around 300 A D. His name was Saint Nicholas. Saint Nicholas was the kindest and most generous Bishop known to the world. He started the practice of giving presents to the needy.

The Dutch called him Sinter Klaus and the settlers brought the custom to the new world. The English picked it up from them. So you see, it isn't a lie after all.--MOTHER OF THREE

Dear Mother: Thanks for your lovely letter. I'll tell Virginia when she comes in.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman whose husband is driving her nuts with his self-taught cello screeching has a couple of things going for her. She only has to put up with the racket when he is awake and at home. Then too, there's a chance he might get tired of the cello and quit. I should have it so good.

My husband has been collecting clocks for over 20 years. We have 49 clocks in our house and I can't describe what it is like to live amidst this collection of timepieces. I hear chimes, bells, music, cuckoos and ticking sounds day and night until I think I'll lose my mind.

I never know if the telephone is ringing if someone is at the door because we have clocks that sound like the door and the phone. I can't use a timer on my stove because we have clocks that sound like that, too.

I'm not writing for advice because I know I must live with my problem and nobody can help me. Thanks for letting me have my say. --HIS WIFE

Dear Wife: Nobody can say YOU don't know time on your hands. Sorry about that pun, Hon.

Dear Ann Landers: My mom and dad bought a new house. The house is costing more money than they had planned on spending. Mom and Dad let my aunt and her boy friend move in because they help with expenses. My aunt's boy friend says his wife won't give him a divorce.

The kids at school know my aunt and this man are not married and it is very embarrassing. I told Mom how I felt and she said the main reason she and Dad bought the house was to improve my social standing and that I am ungrateful.

I was happier when we lived in the old house and I would gladly move back if it meant getting rid of this pair. Am I wrong to feel this way? --HEAD DOWN

Dear Head: You are NOT wrong but I doubt that griping about it will help any.

Make no apologies to your friends. Anyone who has sense knows full well you are not responsible for that shameful set-up.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

30 Attend Cancer Drive

MORLEY -- The Cancer Society of Scott county met Friday night at the Masonic Hall for its crusade kick off dinner served by the women of the lodge. Thirty attended.

Mrs. Billie Burch of Sikeston, county fund campaign chairman, was in charge of the program. Dr. Wendell Weathers of Sikeston, county president, gave a welcome address with John Davis, of Sikeston, giving the invocation.

Mrs. Burch opened the program by presenting all the county workers and the city chairmen of the county who were present.

Those present were John Scarbrough and Dan Limbaugh, campaign co-chairmen for Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. John Engram for Vanduser, Mrs. Ralph Penrose assisted by Mrs. Mert Mirley and Mrs. Richard Golden for Chaffee, Mack Emerson, Mrs. Verneal Carroll and George Dye for Morley.

Emerson announced that the Rotary club voted Wednesday night to give $100 to start the Morley Cancer crusade.

Dr. Thelma Buckthorpe, county service officer, gave a medical report on the effects of a cancer check-up and early detection. She spoke from experience she said as she's had both lung and chest cancer and has survived.

It's unusual to survive two cancer attacks but by early detection it can be done, Dr. Buckthorpe said.

Mrs. Violetta McGee, county education chairman, and Jerry McGee, district representative, showed a film, "The Million Club" starring Ralph Edwards, the 1964 national chairman.

Mrs. Burch told the group that the "C" night drive would be held in most towns on Friday night, April 29, and urged chairmen to try to have their drive on that date. Chairmen should attempt to wind the drives by mid May, she said.

Scarbrough and Limbaugh gave a report on their volunteers. They said Sikeston had been divided into sections and almost every area now has workers and that they were hoping for a great crusade. They said that all business and organization or person wishing to make memorial gifts for friends, who have died with cancer, to mail their checks to either at P.O. Box 201, Sikeston.

Dr. Weathers said that the county workers are Davis, vice president and publicity chairman; Mrs. Charles Green, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Burch, Mrs. Violetta McGee, education chairman; Dr. Buckthorpe, medical service officer and Mrs. Joel Montgomery, cancer prevention study officers.

Others from Sikeston attending were Mrs. Betty DeJohn, Mrs. Dan Limbaugh, Mrs. John W. Davis, Mrs. Wendell Weathers, Mark Marshall, Jerry White and Lynn Ingram.

Eight Men Believe They Have Located Lost Mine

BEND, Tex. AP -- Fifty miles north of President Johnson's ranch, on a rock-choked hill overlooking the Colorado River, eight men think they have found the lost San Saba mine -- legendary bonanza of two centuries ago.

The Spaniards abandoned the mine in 1785, so the story goes, when 2,000 Comanche Indians overan their mission.

Men have searched for the mine ever since.

Now eight men report they have found the ore.

The geologist who spurred the hunt says they found it where Don Bernardo de Miranda said it was: on the Cerro del Almagre -- loosely, the Red Hill.

Miranda, discoverer of the mine, was a lieutenant general of the Spanish Province of Texas in the 18th century. He said the hill was so rich "I guarantee to give to every settler of the Province of Texas a full claim."

Arville Cummins, 45, the geologist, says Miranda was right. The mine may be worth as much as $200 million, he says.

Five dark red boulders once stood where the men think the mine is today. They contrasted sharply with the dull gray dolomite limestone.

"I was curious about them from the very first," says rancher T. S. Lemons Sr., 65, who in 1944 bought 3,300 acres of this rough, remote country, including Red Hill.

A weather-beaten man with bristling gray eyebrows that meet over his long, bent nose, Lemmons said he knew the red boulders had to mean something, "So I brought in some geologists -- some of those smart boys -- to look at it. "They'd look at it and run their hands over it and then go off.

Years passed.

Then in August 1964, Lemons' son, T. S. Lemons Jr., 40, was fishing in the Colorado--almost in the shadow of Red Hill--when he noticed a glint in a rock under water.

He chipped off the shiny part of the rock and put it in his pocket. Some months later he took it to Cummins in Lampasas.

Cummins said the Lemons' rock had gold and sent it to the Colorado Assaying Co. in Denver for an official test.

"It assayed out at $25.90 a ton," he said. "Not really big but worth looking into more."

Is the semicircle a half moon, universal map symbol for treasure? Lemons' metal detector later indicated a considerable metallic deposit under the tree.

A five-foot deep hold was dug there last summer. Nothing was found at that depth and the digging was abandoned in favor of digging on Red Hill.

Before they got around to that, however, they found three holes drilled in the limestone wall of a gully on Red Hill.

Finally they came to the dark red boulders on Red Hill. They blasted all but one of them--preserved by the elder Lemons as a momento--and dug where they had been.

At 21 feet it jumped to $29.25 a ton, slightly better than what Lemons found in the river.

The two men decided to form a partnership with two other men and lease the land from Lemons' father, who would get the royalties.

The other two men are Cummins' father, Aaron Cummins, 69, a retired grocer; and R. R. McCoy, 64, Lampasas dirt contractor who had worked with the younger Cummins before.

It took two months just to put a road down the rocky slope to the mine. Then the digging and blasting began again.

Two weeks later, Cummins hit darker ore that assayed at $43.75 a ton.

At 35 feet they hit ore that looked even richer. It was assayed at $467.60 a ton.

The partners have been working from dawn to dusk to get into full production, but have been held back by a series of minor delays.

Dust From Space

Scientists estimate that about a million tons of dust from distant space fall on the earth every year. These cosmic particles are so minute that a microscope and special equipment are needed to identify them.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Wednesday, April 20, the 110th day of 1966. There are 255 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1889, Adolf Hitler was born.

On this date

In 752 B. C. Rolulus founded the city of Rome; according to legend he yoked a bullock and a heifer to a plow, marked the boundary and built a wall.

In 1662, a Royal Charter was granted to Connecticut -- with boundaries extending all the way to the Pacific.

In 1917, Turkey broke off diplomatic relations with the United States.

In 1946, American military authorities in Berlin announced the arrest of 10 Germans who had sold fake penicillin.

Ten years ago -- A federal court of appeals ruled that James Kutcher, a legless war veteran, had been improperly discharged as a loyalty risk from his job as a clerk with the Veterans Administration.

Five years ago -- It was clear that the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba was a failure -- but President Kennedy said: "We do not intend to abandon Cuba to the Communists."

One year ago -- Secretary of Defense McNamara said U. S. military aid to South Viet Nam would go up from $207 million to $303 million a year.

This spread is brand new.

Until now, when you wanted a peanut butter and bacon sandwich you had to fry the bacon until it crisped, drain off the fat, blot up excess drippings with paper towels, crumble the bacon in a mixing bowl, and add a generous amount of Skippy® Peanut Butter. Then you got a large spoon and stirred until it was well mixed and reasonably easy to spread.

Skippy has changed all that. New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has taken the work and the mess and the cleaning-up out of making a peanut butter and bacon sandwich.

New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has all the crunch, crackle and old-fashioned smokehouse flavor of bacon. But instead of bacon, Skippy has created little crisps of vegetable protein with remarkably true bacon flavor. These, mixed with Skippy, make a tasty spread—perfect for snacks, canapes, and sandwiches, even on meatless days.

So, for all you people who like the taste of a bacon and Skippy sandwich, try them together in new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps.

Try some and Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash!

We're so sure you'll like the exciting taste of new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps that we'll send you 25 cents in cash for just buying a jar—any size!

Simply send the label from a jar of Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps, and the coupon provided here to Skippy Smoky Crisps, Box 57A, Brooklyn, New York 11202. By return mail, Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash.

This offer is limited to one cash return per family.

Long Academy Show Most Attractive

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television producers seem to be able to compress almost anything into 60 or 90 minutes with time out for commercials. But when it comes to handing out movie Oscars and television Emmies, the program runs on and on.

Monday night's annual Motion Picture Academy Awards show, occupied two and one-half hours and ended well past midnight in the eastern portion of the nation. And you had to stick with it to the very end to find out that "The Sound of Music" was voted the best picture of the year and that Julie Christie of "Darling" and Lee Marvin of "Cat Ballou" were the best actress and actor.

The long show was the most attractive in TV history because it blossomed forth in color. For the first time women viewers could see that Natalie Wood's gown was green and that Julie Andrews was in a flaming shade of red. And since when looking at the stars, clothes are about half the fun of the show, this proved very satisfying.

Master of ceremonies Bob Hope was his usual irreverent self from his opening crack about the audience — "sitting out there are the stars of today and the senators of tomorrow" — to the presentation of a special gold medal by the academy which caught him unprepared. "I'm caught with my idiot cards down," was the best he could muster.

The long parade of men and women walking up and making speeches is not the most stimulating entertainment in the world.

Dragging out the proceedings unnecessarily with elaborately staged solos of the nominated songs — highly unmemorable songs, too — did not help much either. And, there was no excuse for the long dance number injected in the middle of things.

The most popular program in the new national Nielsen report is "Carol Plus Two," Carol Burnett's special on CBS last month that co-starred Lucille Ball and Sero Mostel. But the most interesting item in the report is that Red Skelton's CBS show passed the perennial champion, NBC's "Bonanza" in the ratings.

Top shows during the two week period ending April 3 were, in order of popularity, Carol Plus Two, The Red Skelton Show, Bonanza, CBS' Lucy Show and Gomer Pyle, ABC's Alice In Wonderland, CBS' Andy Griffith Show, ABC's Batman — Thursday night episode — CBS' Hogan's Heroes and the Thursday Night Movies.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

Mexico City - Flying Saucer weather is here. We have had a long spell and it seems to be getting more tense.

Rural ladies and gentlemen in the Pacific Coast State of Guerrero (where Acapulco is) have seen scads of Flying Saucers lately. All sizes and shapes.

They seem to be drifting around the whole country. A big year for tourism if you ask me.

And the Mexican government has no definite comment. Just a request for official observers to keep their eyes open.

Everybody else's eyes seem to be wide open for the Saucers are seen every few days in some part of the country and many of these devices favor Mexico City.

Possibly the crews come from a planet that's hot and dry so they like it up here in the mountains.

This is the only decent explanation I can find. With all the situations we have around the globe, who would want to fly here from Mars just to be friends? The risk is too great. And nobody can afford to be friends with the human race.

I imagine the Saucer crewmen gather every evening to swap lies about what they have done during the day. Tie their craft to a cloud somewhere and everybody gets out to stretch and boil up a pot of coffee.

"Hey," one of them says, "you guys should of seen the panic we set off today down near Acapulco. They was running every which way."

So a second one says, "We shouldn't be scarin' these poor earthlings like that. They're only people."

And the first one snorts, "So that's why -- they're nothin' but people. And mark my words, Hartley, people with these crazy bombs can be just as dangerous as intelligent beings."

Hartley yawns and replies, "That's why I like it around Mexico City. They got no bombs and nobody is sore about anything. Sunshine and easy living for me."

A recent report has a Saucer going in the drink at Lake Texcoco. The lake being a collection of cracked mud in the dry season and oversized puddles when it rains.

But there she went. Sailed around the airport, a few times, possibly calling the tower on the wrong frequency, and finally splashed in a big pool of rain water and disappeared.

Nobody went out to punch around with poles and see what was there.

The tower merely said it had enough work keeping up with the regular planes flying around.

But a number of the pilots swear they witnessed the landing. Just a big saucer thing that kept losing altitude and finally hit the lake.

Everyone watched and then went on about his business after the splash.

Laugh it up if you want but I think the fellows in this Saucer were tired of things back home. Fed up with flying back and forth from Mars for the last few centuries.

So they decided to come to Mexico and settle down in retirement. Just picked the wrong spot for landing, that's all.

Blight Caused Migration

The great Irish famine of the 19th century was caused by a blight to the potato crop. Between two and three million people died and many others emigrated to the United States, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Carbondale Seeks Center

WASHINGTON AP – Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., and Dr. William J. Tudor, special assistant to the vice president of Southern Illinois University, Monday asked Congress for money to build a southern corn belt soil and water research center at Carbondale, Ill.

The request was for $500,000 to finance the project and was made to a House appropriations subcommittee.

Dr. Tudor said the southern portion of the corn belt with 30-50 million acres "presents serious problems in soil and water conservation."

This area is centered in the southern third of Illinois with considerable acreages extending into Indiana, Ohio and Missouri.

Dr. Tudor said the university would contribute the land without cost to the federal government if the funds are provided.

Maugham Described As Lonely Writer

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP — Four old friends of W. Somerset Maugham were taking a fond look at the life and times of the famed English author.

The conversation took place at the University of Southern California, and listeners included a curious mixture of academic and show business types. One of the speakers, George Cukor, arrived with a dazzling trio: Lillian Gish, Shirley MacLaine and Mia Farrow.

Reading from his soon-to-be-published book, "Remembering Mr. Maugham," Garson Kanin recalled asking the once-wed Maugham if he had ever proposed marriage more than once. No, replied the author, but he assuaged Kanin's disappointment by adding that the single proposal was not to his wife.

He told of an eight-year affair with a woman named Nan. She disappeared after a fight, and he traced her to Chicago, where he proposed marriage. Although professing her love, she refused. Later he discovered she had been pregnant by another man.

Said Maugham with unaccustomed tears: "I have often wondered what course my life would have taken except for that freakish happenstance."

Clare Booth Luce observed that the picture of Maugham as cold and detached was a false one. "I think it was because of the eyes," she said. "They were like desert stones, dark and glittering and unpleasant to look at."

Maugham's essential loneliness was stressed by George Cukor, who recalled him saying, "It's a lonely life, writing. When you are writing a book, you are entirely preoccupied with your characters. When you cut them out of your life, it can be very lonely."

"Maugham believed the beginning and the end was writing," said Mrs. Luce. "I remember visiting his place on the Riviera and seeing the studio where he worked. His chair faced away from the Mediterranean; he didn't want to be distracted by the view.

"He worked every morning for three or four hours. Then he stopped for lunch; he liked gimlets and stingers as well as martinis. After a nap, he went over what he had written. He once told me that he corrected his sentences more than any modern writer except Proust."

Kanin told of asking Maugham in his last years whether age brought fewer friends and more enemies. "Yes," the author replied grimly, "as sad and unfortunate as that is, it is true."

But then he added as death approached: "No matter what its miseries, like should be grasped.

The program ended as it had begun, with Maugham's clipped voice reading the sentences over which he had labored so lovingly.

Fashion's Motto: Think Young

In fashion, the young look is in . . . and so is the young designer.

Typical of up-and-coming young designers in California are Sharon Moore and Marilyn Schulster. Both are only 22 and pretty enough to be mistaken for models.

They teamed up as designers for a senior class project at UCLA's School of Apparel Design and have been working together ever since. Now planning their fourth collection, they design under the appropriate label of "Like Young." Their styles live up to the label . . . they're youthful-looking yet sophisticated enough to be worn by any fashion-wise woman.

Fabrics play an important role in the creation of each of their designs. The girls often work directly with fabric mills to get the distinctive colors they want. Cotton is a special favorite because it takes dye so well and because, as Marilyn says, "It has the natural quality we like so much." The two follow their designs from patterns to finished garments to make sure their original concept is preserved.

ELOQUENT PICTORIAL JOURNALISM BY AP

By Robert R. Kirsch

One day in the future, a child may ask, "What was it like to live in 1965?" I would give him a copy of THE WORLD IN 1965: History as We Lived It (Associated Press: $3; illustrated), which brings alive through picture and text the annals of that year. Gathered from the work of AP reporters and photographers, generously illustrated in color and black - and - white, this handsome volume repays browsing even for those of us who have just lived through the year.

It was a crowded year, which saw escalation in the war in Vietnam (chosen the top story) and the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson (chosen the top newsmaker of the year) for his first full term; which saw man's first walk in space and the first visit of a reigning pontiff to the United States saw the death of such men as Sir Winston Churchill and Adlai Stevenson, and the assassination of that strange and charismatic character, Malcolm X; which saw the Dominican Republic erupt in revolution and America take on a war against poverty; which saw Watts erupt in the worst race riots in American history and drought dry out the Northeast.

Its chronology reminds us that journalism embraces both history and ephemera, and a spectrum of events which, because they are ultimately a reflection of the people who are involved, ranged from high tragedy to absurdity. It was the year in which India and Pakistan went to war, in which dissent became a way of life to some; it was also the year in which the Dodgers who couldn't, did win the pennant and the World Series; in which Cassius Clay threw a punch at Sunny Liston, ending what purported to be a world championship bout.

We were reminded that technology was fallible in the great blackout in the greater New York area, and of the promise of technology in Telstar and the photographs of Mars sent back by Mariner. It was a year of rising crime and new fads, short skirts and high camp, art from Pop to Op, long hair for young men, short hair for young women. It was the way we lived.

The text is written with the authority and where appropriate, humor. It is, however, the pictures which are most eloquent, some of which were paid by the very lives of AP photographers Bernard Kolenberg and Huynh Thanh My. The former from Albany, N. Y., the latter from Vietnam. Their merged fates reflected the deaths of many an American and vietnamese soldier.

Appendices include a month-by-month chronology, an excellent index, a list of deaths, awards, an assortment of statistics. Those interested may secure the book by sending $3 to THE WORLD IN 1965, AP BOOKS, B x 66, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It is, incidentally, one of the book bargains of the year.

SAFETY TIPS FOR SPRINGTIME GARDENER

-- One of the beguiling pleasures of springtime for many millions of Americans is gardening. But the gardener must tend himself as well as his garden if the pleasure is not to turn to pain. Here are some safety tips from the American Medical Association for our green - thumbed citizenry:

Remember, one swallow never made a summer, and one 10-hour session the first sunny spring day never made a beautiful garden, but might make a bed - bound gardener. Take it easy at the beginning, take frequent rests, and work at a sensible pace.

Cuts, scratches, and bruises are inevitable for the devoted gardener, but keep them minor by washing them at once with warm water and soap and covering with a clean bandage. Tetanus lurks in the soil, so make certain your immunization (and your family's) is up-to-date.

Power tools, like the auto, can be a boon -- but they can also be a menace if handled carelessly. Learn how to use them properly, follow instructions, and keep your mind on the job. Turn off the power mower if you have to leave it unattended for even a moment. The toes you save may be your child's!

Pesticides can make a silent spring, ruining your soil and silencing bird - song, or they can help make a gay and colorful spring, depending on your use. Read instructions carefully. Pesticides can cause fatal accidents. So store them out of the reach of small children. Make pesticides a boon not a bane.

NO FETAL DAMAGE FROM 'PILL' USE

Asked by a fellow - physician whether prolonged use of oral contraceptives has increased the incidence of prematurity or birth defects, Dr. Richard L. Day, medical director of Planned Parenthood - World Population, wrote recently: "The answer to this is no." Dr. Day then explained that when "pregnancies are repeated in rapid succession there is an increase in prematurity rate and in death in infancy and early childhood.

"In families where children are spaced," he continued, "mortality and morbidity can be expected to be less. . ."

SELF - AID TREATMENT FOR TEENAGERS

The teenager is often as much a problem to himself as he is to his bewildered parents. He doesn't know why he flies into sudden rages, why he is often close to tears at the slightest reprimand, why he suddenly finds his parents intolerably square. He wonders about his sanity, wonders whether others his age are beset by as many problems.

A new booklet, How Serious Are Your Problems, may help bewildered adolescents gain insight into the problem of growing up.

The pamphlet deals simply and directly with such problems as moodiness, difficulties with parents, rebellious feelings, trouble with schoolwork, and boy - girl relationships.

Obtainable for 25 cents plus 10 cents for postage and handling from The Child Study Association of America, 9 East 89th Street, New York, N. Y., it may provide just the reassurance and support virtually every teenager needs at some time or other.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Wanted . . . 18,000 Librarians!

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

". . . My main interest is the arts but I'm not a painter, a sculptor, or a composer. I certainly can't make a living just touring museums and attending concerts . . ."

". . . I like history but I don't want to teach it . . ."

". . . Business is my major but I have so many interests; sports, international affairs, medicine, law, fashion, literature. I'm afraid if I confine myself to one limited career now, I'll always feel I am missing out on a lot of life."

". . . I would like to work in another country but I can't seem to find anything that appeals to me . . ."

College counselors' offices, dormitory "bull" sessions and "Choosing Your Career" lectures series all ring with the same theme. What is new, different and challenging in the professional world? Students who have grown up with new math, intensified language series, Sputnik inspired science lectures, television travelogues, and cold war problems are unimpressed by the unchallenging 9:00 a.m. -- 5 p.m. job. They are fiercely competitive and fearful of becoming mentally senile at the age of 35.

One emerging profession cannot solve youth's battle with society but many students are becoming interested in the changing complexion of librarianship.

The mention of the word "library" conjures up the childhood vision of the Carnegie building on the corner of Solemn and Musty Streets. Stately, 19th Century architecture, it was quiet, damp and dingy on the inside. One little librarian (isn't someone who shelves books and collects fines a librarian?) with pince-nez, a late George Washington hair style and early attic clothing spent the day dusting and saying, "sshhuusshh."

Today's libraries and librarians are entering a transition not unlike that of the teaching profession 25 years ago. New public, school, and university libraries are springing up. They are light, airy, and stocked with the latest maps, charts, microfilms, periodicals, slides, records and copying machines. But the most exciting event is the growth of the library profession. Gone are the librarians who got their stripes and titles by stamping books. They are being replaced by young, well-educated, interesting professionals who are being recognized as society's educational nucleus.

You may be surprised to know that librarians are not always found in libraries. The rapid pace and scientific nature of our society demands perfection and requires that every industry, invention, and organization back up its claims with facts. Thus, librarians have been added to the staff of every kind of concern. A look at the different types of librarians reveals the diversity of the profession.

Advertising and Public Relations--- For every newspaper story or advertisement, television commercial, historical documentary, survey and announcement, accurate information must be compiled. Advertising librarians fulfill many varied responsibilities during the day -- researcher, copywriter, artist, critic, producer.

Science--- Librarians in the field of science range from those working in aerospace to those in chemistry, biological science, electronics, and nuclear science. If biology is your interest, a library position might find you compiling research data in a large food company or recording test results of the latest cosmetics. Aerospace librarians give intellectual foundation to every space launching, they record and store all information gleaned from each flight, and have ready answers for urgent questions during any emergency.

Finance and Banking--- If the world of stocks and bonds intrigues you, a position as a librarian in an accounting firm, a Federal Reserve Bank, a financial trade association or a brokerage firm might appeal to you. You would have to be familiar with collection statistics, economic studies, annual reports, current financial trends, and how they are affected by closely and remotely related events.

Fine and Applied Arts--- Museums and galleries, college and university fine arts departments are badly in need of well-educated librarians. You might work in any branch of the field from design centers of an architect to the archives of a well-known museum. Your work would constantly surround you with the world of the Great Masters.

The list is almost endless. For the student with a liberal arts background, library professions of all types could use his training -- public, university, government or private firms. There are law libraries, medical libraries, government libraries, all badly understaffed.

There are as many different types of specialized training within the profession as there are fields in which to apply them. The business executive would find himself well suited as administrator of a large library. The reference librarian would be in the center of constant activity, meeting people, supplying information to local people and organizations, and perhaps working with students. There is a special need for teacher-librarians in colleges and universities. Again, the doors of variety open to reveal the many possibilities within the library profession.

To qualify as a librarian, a student must complete four years of college and one year in a professional library school accredited by the American Library Association. The schools differ in entrance requisites but most require knowledge of a foreign language and entrance exams. A "B" average is generally accepted as the necessary undergraduate grade point for entrance.

Librarians are so badly needed that most are interviewed and employed even before graduation. Figures range from 12 to 18 different positions open to each graduate; total librarians needed for the entire field reach 18,000.

The salary of a librarian is not for those who plan to get rich quick but it ranks adequately with many of society's respected professions. Starting salaries average $6,000 and, depending on the size of the organization or institution and the type of librarian needed, one might earn $10,000 and up to $20,000. Like the rest of the profession itself, the standards are rising.

The Missouri Library Association will supply additional information about the library profession. Students who are giving careful thought to their careers, as well as how best to use their individual talents, interests, and time will find the library profession challenging and rewarding.

Dexter Pool Discussed

DEXTER -- Harold Green, regional director of parks and recreation from Ann Arbor, Mich., with Lee Fine, Missouri state park director, of Jefferson City, met with city officials and park board officials on Dexter's proposed swimming pool issue. With the two park officials was Len Hall of Caledonia, noted conservationist and writer.

Green presided over the meeting attended by Mayor Melvin Gainer, Bob Robins, Jaycee president, and Bill Swinger and Gary Dowdy, chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored swimming pool project; Mrs. Gene Strickland, chairman of the Dexter park board, and Francis Webb of the park board; Pete Atherton, councilman-elect from ward three where the pool will be located when it is constructed; Joe Vinson, Jaycee member; John McMasters, KDEX representative, Mrs. John Hill, local press representative, and Mrs. V. C. Russell.

Since plans for the pool have gotten under way and plans are in the hands of a planning engineer, the local park board has taken over the project. In meeting with the group, Green was seeking more background information on the site and park system before qualification on the request before matching federal funds for the $100,000 project can be made. Dexter would try for a $50,000 bond issue to raise its share of the financing.

"Qualification of the project does not mean it has been approved," Green pointed out. "It only means the idea has been accepted as practical but it will have to be studied further before funds can be allocated. It can take up to six weeks to be qualified after pertinent information is received on site plans, cost breakdowns on site preparations, an estimate of what the attendance will be, usage from surrounding areas and distance of other swimming pools," he said.

Green also said that Missouri has more projects in the works than any other state as well as having more projects approved. He pointed out the acceptance of the Dexter project depended on its priority in relation to other projects.

Dexter now has five parks in its system with a total of around 65 acres. One area contains a fishing lake covering 13 acres. The proposed site for the swimming pool is in East city park on Municipal Airport property and parallel to city route 114.

Following adjournment of the meeting at city hall, Green, Fine and Hall accompanied city and park officials to the site for an inspection tour.

Soviet-Egyptian Talk

CAIRO AP — A Soviet submarine, destined for delivery to the Egyptian navy, surprised observers recently by arriving at an Egyptian port with the Soviet hammer and sickle emblem flying from its superstructure.

Normally, Soviet ships marked for delivery to the Egyptians hoist the Egyptian flag when they enter this nation's territorial waters.

The incident has touched off rumors of a possible Soviet-Egyptian naval agreement. The rumors were heightened by two recent Soviet naval goodwill visits to Port Said and the presence in the Red Sea of a Soviet trawler fleet, well-equipped with electronic devices.

Some diplomats in Cairo speculate that President Gamal Abdel Nasser has decided to grant Soviet warships the right to refuel in Egyptian ports.

Such an agreement would give Russia the warm port facilities it has sought through history.

It will eliminate the need for Soviet ships in the Mediterranean to shuttle back and forth to home ports through the Marmara Sea and the Bosporus, where naval movements are watched by Turkey, an Atlantic alliance member.

Some well-informed diplomats brush aside speculation of an agreement granting the Soviet Union refueling rights. Such a step, they argue, would signal the end of Nasser's policy of nonalignment in the cold war—an effective policy which has given him room to maneuver between the Soviet Union and the United States.

North Again Raided

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. jet fighter-bombers raided North Viet Nam's heartland for the second consecutive day, pounding a major plant just outside Haiphong Monday night, a U.S. spokesman reported.

Following close on the attack Sunday on missile sites near Hanoi, two Navy planes in a low level, radar-controlled attack dropped about 15 tons of bombs on the Uong Bi power plant 14 miles northeast of North Viet Nam's chief port.

The pilots reported showers of explosions and said the lights of Haiphong went out at once. The plant provides 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electricity, including a third of the power Haiphong uses and one-fourth of the needs of the capital 60 miles to the west.

Navy planes raided the Uong Bi plant twice in December before the start of a 37-day bombing pause. After the second raid Dec. 22, it was reportedly almost totally destoyed, but the spokesman said today it apparently had been rebuilt.

Neither Hanoi nor Haiphong has been hit by U. S. air attack, but Amerian planes brought the war close to the capital Sunday with attacks on missile sites 15 and 17 miles south and southwest of Hanoi. Pilots reported both sites were engulfed in flames.

The raid Monday night was carried out by twin-jet A6 Intruders, a subsonic plane designed to deliver big payloads on low-level attacks. They came from the carrier Kitty Hawk and reported only light, ineffective antiaircraft fire, although both Haiphong and Hanoi are said to be ringed with Soviet-built antiaircraft missile sites.

Missouri Press Report

by Edward V. Long

Flood control projects in Missouri will be the focus of attention at Senate and House hearings scheduled for April 25-26.

Representatives from many sections of Missouri are expected to be on hand to testify before the Public Works Appropriations subcommittee of both houses.

Of urgent concern to Missourians is the need for planning funds on a number of new projects as well as continued appropriations for projects already underway.

Major flood control projects for which construction money is being requested include reservoirs at Stockton, Kaysinger, Clarence Cannon (Joanna), Meramec, and improvements on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

The Secretary of Agriculture is now predicting that net farm income in 1966 will exceed $15 billion--around one billion dollars higher than last year.

The new prediction represents an increase of more than $3.4 billion over net farm income in 1960.

Personal income per farmer is up 44 percent over 1960. In comparison, personal income for non-farm workers has increased around 25 percent in the same five-year period.

Cash receipts from livestock and livestock product marketings in Missouri during January-February 1966 totaled $133,797,000 -- up $29,139,000 since the same period last year. Cash receipts from Missouri crops during January-February this year are up $8,610,000 compared with the same period in 1965.

The Senate has just passed a bill to make more flexible the operations of the Farm Credit Administration. The bill will help provide better credit services by adjusting the terms of the loans to the changing needs of the farmer.

At the same time, the bill calls for a long-needed speed up in the handling of farm loans.

There are 24 Federal Land Bank Associations in Missouri. At present, 13,300 Missouri farmers have won loans totaling $109,000,000 from these Associations.

Across the nation 721 Associations are today making $4,000,000,000 worth of loans to 334,000 farmers.

The Farm Credit system was launched by Congress in 1916 and over the years has played an important role in American agriculture.

New Coupon Plan

A revolutionary new manufacturers' coupon program will be introduced to Sikeston housewives this week.

The new program features an exclusive, three-way redemption plan enabling shoppers to participate in a national program for either gifts or cash.

Gift Stars, Inc., a division of Premium Corporation of America, will present Sikeston housewives with the first of three million pass-out coupons in Missouri this week.

The coupons will be bag-stuffed here at major grocers and, when sent to the company's headquarters at Minneapolis, will earn shoppers a bonus coupon of 200 free Gift Stars, a full-color gift catalog, and a saver envelope.

This new coupon program features an exclusive three-way redemption plan whereby consumers can redeem Gift Stars coupons for $2 cash at any grocer, redeem them by mail for gifts, or combine them with trading stamps for gifts at trading stamp centers displaying the Gift Stars emblem. Gift Stars are equal in value to trading stamps.

Another unusual aspect of the program is that it is the first of its kind to make an effort to reward the grocer. If shoppers wish to receive cash for their Gift Stars, they may turn them in to local grocers in units of 1,500 for $2 cash. The 1,500 Gift Stars are enclosed in a special envelope and sealed. The grocer pays the consumer $2 cash, and mails them to the company. For each 1,500 Gift Stars turned in, he receives 50¢ cash for handling.

H. W. Greenough, Executive Vice-President of Gift Stars, Inc., in discussing the program, said it is now three years old and encompasses nearly 30% of the U. S. population in approximately fourteen states.

Greenough said, "Gift Stars benefit everyone. The consumer can have her choice of either cash or free gifts; grocers can benefit from cash redemptions at their store through a handling fee and from the quicker movement of their products which carry Gift Stars.

"This is a loyalty program to certain nationally advertised products, and earns for the products consumer interest and loyalty," he said.

A pilot program was started in Colorado, and surveys indicated that 87% of the saving Gift holds there are saving Gift Stars, prompting the company to develop the program in other states and go national.

Participating food stores in the area are: Malone & Hyde Company, wholesalers.

Governors Endorse Flag Flying

Governor Calvin L. Hampton of Utah; Governor Maurice E. Trimmer of New Mexico; Governor George Wallace of Alabama have each granted permission to quote as follows:

"The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive to every Missourian to fly the flag on national holidays. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began.

I urge every home in Missouri to fly the flag on national holidays.

Governor Nils A. Boe of South Dakota:

Governor Nils A. Boe today urged all South Dakotans to fly the flag on their homes on national holidsys.

Governor Boe stated, "The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive for all South Dakotans to participate in this observance. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began."

Governor Paul B. Johnson of Mississippi:

"The flying of the flag on national holidays is an opportunity available to every citizen to demonstrate that the spirit of freedom is still as strong in our heart today as it was 190 years ago when our nation was founded. I recommend that every home consider flying the Star Spangled Banner on national holidays or any other appropriate occasion.

Governor John Dempsey of Connecticut:

Our flag, at home and in the far corners of the world, serves as an inspiring symbol of justice and freedom. All Americans should, I firmly believe, display it proudly as a manifestation of patriotism and pride in our heritage.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

A Review of the 1964 Term

ELECTIONS

The troubles of the Pandora's box that was cracked opened in Baker v. Carr, and exposed fully in Reynolds v. Sims, decided at the end of the 1963 term, are now with us in full force. The political thicket has now become a veritable jungle of competing considerations for the lower courts to hack their way through. The spreading litigation has been as voluminous in its quantity as it has been disruptive of orderly legislative and electoral processes. Ample historical research by the late Mr. Justice Frankfurter and Mr. Justice Harlan demonstrated that nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment's legislative history justified such chaos under the guise of constitutional law. The Court, of course, cannot remake history, but it unquestionably can make history. This it did with a bang by ruling in 1964 that all State legislatures must be apportioned on population and nothing else. The tremors from this earthquake are still reverberating, and the legislative wreckage is strewn around the landscape.

Chief Justice Warren's explanation in this case was typical. He relied upon a judicial saturation bombing, by throwing everything that could remotely be found relevant at the offending statute. He said:

"The conception of political equality from the Declaration of Independence, to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, to the Fifteenth, Seventeenth and Nineteenth Amendments can mean only one thing-- one person, one vote."

No doubt the omission of the proverbial Fourth-of-July reference to flag, home, and mother, was an unintentional oversight.

In the 1964 term, the Court continued to review the actions of the lower Federal courts in picking up the legislative pieces of the apportionment explosion. It held that multi-member constituencies did not violate its newly devised constitutional notions, and vacated a district court injunction on the grounds of mootness which had forbidden the holding of the 1964 general election. In the latter case, Justices Harlan and Stewart protested that the lower Federal courts were not being given guidelines "through this treacherous constitutional terrain" to make certain that they "be launched in the right general direction and not allowed to range so far afield as to hamstring State legislatures and deprive States of effective legislative government." They added: "I think that the State of Georgia is entitled to a clear-cut pronouncement from this Court that nothing in its reapportionment decisions contemplated such unheard-of Federal court intrusion into State political affairs as the decree before us envinces."

At the very end of the term, a series of cases from New York turned the entire area of reapportionment procedures into a three-ring circus with several unexpected encores. The curtain arose on the first act in June, 1964, when the U. S. Supreme Court held that New York had violated the Fourteenth Amendment by providing in its State Constitution for a legislature based in part on county structure. It was too late to fashion a different reapportionment plan for the 1964 elections, so the district court ordered that the scheduled elections take place under the New York Constitution whose provisions, in existence since 1894, were suddenly found to be invalid in Washington. Thus, in violation of the New York Constitution, the district court ordered that the legislators so elected serve for one year instead of two. They were told to submit a new apportionment plan to be approved by the district court, run in 1965, again serve only one year, and run in 1966, under the new plan. The Supreme Court summarily affirmed this order, over the dissents of Justices Harlan and Stewart.

300 Applaud Four Symphony Selections

By RUTH DILLENDER

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra played four selections in a concert at 8 p.m. last night at the armory.

The concert was sponsored by the Council of Arts. Financial guarantors were the Daily Standard, the First National Bank, the Security National Bank and the Bank of Sikeston.

De Carvalho is a 49-year-old Brazilian who has conducted most of Europe's major orchestras as well as many in this country. He is in his third season with the St. Louis orchestra.

The orchestra, which is now in its 86th year, played "Overture to Benvenuto Cellini" by Berlioz; "Symphony No. 4" by Tchaikovsky; "Evocation, Fete A Dieau, Triana From Suite Iberia" by Albeniz and "Three Cornered Hat" by De Falla.

The orchestra is the second oldest symphony orchestra in the country and has a surprising number of young people in it.

The armory's acoustics were not the best for the musical presentation and often when the brass section was playing its loudest tones, the orchestra personnel's and the audience's ears took a beating.

The string sections of the group displayed excellent precision in playing pizzicato, the plunking of the strings.

The cello section was featured in several passages and displayed a rich and mellow sound.

The two-hour program was well accepted by the audience. Dan Norton, chairman of the Council of the Arts, said that between 300 and 500 attended the concert.

The orchestra performed for school children at the armory today. Concerts were at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

No Civil War in Viet Nam, McNamara Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today Communist forces in South Viet Nam are taking their orders "not only day to day but hour to hour" from Hanoi.

McNamara told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the Vietnamese war stems from flagrant Communist aggression and intervention.

He offered that description of the Asian struggle after chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., asked whether U.S. treaty commitments cover intervention in a civil war.

McNamara said if Fulbright was implying the Vietnamese struggle is a civil war "I strongly dissent.

McNamara said that before U.S. combat troops were sent into South Viet Nam thousands of Communist North Vietnamese had infiltrated into the South.

Today, McNamara said, 20,000 or more North Vietnamese fighting men are in South Viet Nam.

McNamara testified before television cameras and a capacity crowd in support of the administration's $917 - million million military assistance program. The bill does not include military aid for South Viet Nam. That is part of the defense budget.

McNamara told the committee the nation's military strength is so great it has been possible to commit 325,000 men to the Viet Nam war without calling up Reservists or controlling the economy.

"No other nation in history has ever been so strong," he added.

"Never has any other nation —never has the United States — carried such great military strength with so little burden on its society."

When McNamara completed his statement questioning quickly turned from the bill itself to the Southeast Asian situation.

McNamara's appearance came a day after Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford "went pretty far" when Ford charged the administration with "shocking mismanagement" of the war.

"In what respect is it shocking?" Dirksen asked at a news conference Tuesday. "Who are the shockers?" Dirksen also said: "You don't demean the chief magistrate of your country at a time like this when the war is on. You stand up to be counted."

Ford had no comment on Dirksen's statements, but told a newsman he thinks "we've got McNamara on the run."

McNamara did not elaborate in his testimony on the 325,000 figure. But he evidently meant the 240,000 U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam, some 60,000 with 7th Fleet ships operating off Viet Nam, some 13,000 in Thailand and thousands of others on Guam where B52 bombers are stationed.

Kiwanis Pancake Day Tuesday

President Lee Shell announced plans for the Kiwanis Club's Pancake Day Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn at the club meeting yesterday.

Earl Williams, executive director of the Delta area of the Economic Opportunity Program, Portageville, explained the six-county efforts to reach 56 per cent of the population of the Bootheel.

Williams was reared near Diehlstadt and he has been an educator. He now lives in Anniston.

Last year, June, 1965 to June, 1966, the office was alloted $1,400,000.00 to carry on education training projects in Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscott, Dunklin and Stoddard counties. Approximately $245,000.00 was budgeted in each county.

There are four board members in each county on the area board of directors. Sixteen men have formed the new corporation, responsible for securing the government grant money and the handling of the disbursement of the funds.

The objective is to train poor people in order to help them help themselves. The educational work consists of (1) Medicare's 4,000 people sign up drive for elderly people; (2) the homemakers aid program headed by Tom Stroup in Scott County to send out workers to teach recipients of commodity welfare food how to prepare the food and how to improve health habits and manage their family affairs

Daylight Time Will Begin Sunday

City Manager W. Raymert Miller said this morning the city's daylight savings time ordinance has been amended to provide for fast time to begin Sunday at 2 a.m. instead of Monday at the same time.

He said that the ordinance probably would be changed later so that the DST will be abandoned Oct. 30 instead of the scheduled Sept. 5 return to central standard time.

Miller said that the changes would bring Sikeston into conformity with a new federal law.

Voters April 5 approved a daylight savings time nearly two to one. The straw vote was on a different time schedule than that provided by the new federal law which sets a nationwide uniform time for areas observing fast time this summer.

Traffic Lights Go on Blink

Four - way stop signs have been erected at the intersections of Malone and Kingshighway and Malone and New Madrid streets.

Bruce said that motorists should approach intersections having traffic lights as if they were four way stops.

Bruce said there have been no accidents resulting from the darkened signals.

Way Paved for MOPAC Merger

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals paved the way Tuesday for an easier merger of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Texas and Pacific Railway Co.

The court reversed U. S. District Judge James H. Meredith's earlier ruling that voting on the proposed merger would have to be done separately by Class A and Class B Mopac stockholders.

Mopac wants the merger to be decided by shareholders of both classes voting together.

Alleghany Corp. of New York, which owns 20,753 shares of Mopac Class B stock, opposed Mopac's plan, but Mississippi River Corp., which owns 1,085,695 shares of class A stock, favored it. The merger would be easily approved since Mississippi owns the majority of the voting stock.

Alleghany says it had made no decision on whether to appeal Tuesday's ruling.

Bombers Close to Haiphong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Navy bombers edged closer to Haiphong Tuesday in the third straight day of raids on North Viet Nam's vital Red River Delta, blasting a railroad bridge 10 miles north of the country's chief port. A U.S. spokesman said one span of the bridge was destroyed.

Four Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles were fired at the attackers but missed their marks, the spokesman reported today.

Three other U.S. jets were lost elsewhere over North Viet Nam in the past 24 hours, raising the number of American planes shot down since the raids began 15 months ago to 213. One of the pilots was rescued in a blaze of enemy fire. The other two were presumed captured or dead.

In the south, Viet Cong raiders damaged two big U.S. Air Force Hercules troop transports in a hit-and-run attack on a small airfield in the central highlands but caused no casualties. Officials said the four-engine planes could be repaired.

NEW YORK AP -- Bertram W. Powers, president of New York Typographical Local 6, announced a breakdown in contract negotiations today and expressed the opinion that three merging newspapers would be unable to publish next Monday as scheduled.

The addition will house the circulation department, under the management of Glenn Greene. The department will move into its new quarters this week. Circulation growth of the newspaper makes this change necessary.

The building will have fiberglass insulation, air - conditioned, and have an overhead conveyor, running from the offset press to the wrapping and addressing quarters. Faster handling of newspapers will result.

The Sikeston Publishing Company building and improvement program has seen many changes over the past two years.

It began in 1964 with a changeover from letterpress to modern offset newspaper printing, followed by the removal of the advertisement and circulation departments from an abandoned home, which was removed last year to make room for a parking lot.

A portion of this lot now will be used for the circulation department.

Johnson Asks Private Cash to Finance Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress for legislation today to encourage private investors to take over more of the outstanding loans of various government agencies.

Johnson said that with the help of the legislation he proposed, private credits can be substituted for public credit in the amount of about $4.7 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. This compared with an estimated $3.3 billion being replaced by private credit in this fiscal year.

The essence of Johnson's proposal is the setting up of participation pools to which private investors could take over a percentage of the federal assets being offered for sale.

Jones Favors Milk And Lunch Program

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett, Mo., Democrat, has told the committee on agricultural appropriation that the cuts in the school milk and lunch programs, will and should be restored.

He told the house committee, according to hearings reports that the administration is aware of the fact that the house will restore these cuts, but it wants Congress to get the blame for higher spending. Representative Jones pointed out that he opposes spending under some of the programs but that he wants to continue it for "essential programs".

He said he thinks the house will approve restoring the proposed $19 million cut in the lunch program and the $82 million cut in the special milk program.

Representative Jones told the committee that there should be some research in soybeans as there has been in other crops.

He noted that there has not been improvements in the production of soybeans, or other uses, while there has been increases in wheat, corn, and cotton due to the amount of money spent for research.

He said a recent development in the production of soybeans has been that of putting hives of bees in or near the fields, and shifting them about from time to time. This pollination by the bees apparently has resulted in great increases.

300 Applaud Four Symphony Selections

By RUTH DILLENDER

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra played four selections in a concert at 8 p.m. last night at the armory.

The concert was sponsored by the Council of Arts. Financial guarantors were the Daily Standard, the First National Bank, the Security National Bank and the Bank of Sikeston.

De Carvalho is a 49-year-old Brazilian who has conducted most of Europe's major orchestras as well as many in this country. He is in his third season with the St. Louis orchestra.

The orchestra, which is now in its 86th year, played "Overture to Benvenuto Cellini" by Berlioz; "Symphony No. 4" by Tchaikovsky; "Evocation, Fete A Dieau, Triana From Suite Iberia" by Albeniz and "Three Cornered Hat" by De Falla.

The orchestra is the second oldest symphony orchestra in the country and has a surprising number of young people in it.

The armory's acoustics were not the best for the musical presentation and often when the brass section was playing its loudest tones, the orchestra personnel's and the audience's ears took a beating.

The string sections of the group displayed excellent precision in playing pizzicato, the plunking of the strings.

The cello section was featured in several passages and displayed a rich and mellow sound.

The two-hour program was well accepted by the audience. Dan Norton, chairman of the Council of the Arts, said that between 300 and 500 attended the concert.

The orchestra performed for school children at the armory today. Concerts were at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Johnson Asks Private Cash to Finance Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress for legislation today to encourage private investors to take over more of the outstanding loans of various government agencies.

Johnson said that with the help of the legislation he proposed, private credits can be substituted for public credit in the amount of about $4.7 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. This compared with an estimated $3.3 billion being replaced by private credit in this fiscal year.

The essence of Johnson's proposal is the setting up of participation pools to which private investors could take over a percentage of the federal assets being offered for sale.

Jones Favors Milk And Lunch Program

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett, Mo., Democrat, has told the committee on agricultural appropriation that the cuts in the school milk and lunch programs, will and should be restored.

He told the house committee, according to hearings reports that the administration is aware of the fact that the house will restore these cuts, but it wants Congress to get the blame for higher spending. Representative Jones pointed out that he opposes spending under some of the programs but that he wants to continue it for "essential programs".

He said he thinks the house will approve restoring the proposed $19 million cut in the lunch program and the $82 million cut in the special milk program.

Representative Jones told the committee that there should be some research in soybeans as there has been in other crops.

He noted that there has not been improvements in the production of soybeans, or other uses, while there has been increases in wheat, corn, and cotton due to the amount of money spent for research.

He said a recent development in the production of soybeans has been that of putting hives of bees in or near the fields, and shifting them about from time to time. This pollination by the bees apparently has resulted in great increases.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

National Library Week is to be observed from April 17 through 23. It symbolizes a service and a need that are of the utmost importance in this complex modern world.

A library is many things. It is, first of all, a repository of the thoughts, the wisdoms, the failures and successes, and events great and small which marred or brightened the centuries which have passed. It holds, within its confines, the history of man and nature.

A library exists to provide knowledge and understanding. It has no limits -- everything ever known under the sun is within its province. A library is timeless, in the sense that it embraces all of time.

A library offers the reader amusement, relaxation, the opportunity to quietly contemplate himself and the world around him. It provides, from its many voices, comfort or challenge, relief from care or stirrings of ambition--whatever may be one's needs or desires.

It is impossible to conceive of a world without libraries. Never in the endless reach of history has knowledge been so important. That is true of the knowledge that lies behind the miracles of science and invention which are transforming life more swiftly than we realize. And it is true, above all, of the knowledge that comes out of the past and that deals with the principles and attitudes and values that transcend the material and give true meaning to the existence and perpetuation of mankind.

A wise businessman once said, "If you want to sell more bread -- just advertise butter."

Good advertising does not have to be direct to be successful.

Most consumers decide to make a purchase while reading the ad itself. The main goal of the hometown merchants is getting the customers into their store.

Advertisers on the local level are exceptionally lucky. By telling exactly what, where and for what price something is sold, they give a direct incentive to purchase.

Goods such as bread and butter are called complementary goods by economists. This means that when the sales of one item go up, complementary goods do likewise.

Instead of having to list each product in a different advertisement, like the national advertiser, the retailer can combine items and have complete, efficient market coverage.

The successful supermarket manager most often realizes this and uses large space in the local newspaper. His effort is well worth while and he regains many times the cost of the advertisement.

PAPER DADDY

It is now believed that paper was the invention of a high Chinese official named Tsai Lun, who lived about two thousand years ago. He used the beaten fibers of the inner bark of the mulberry tree; when these fibers were matted together, they formed a white sheet. Prior to Tsai Lun's invention, the Chinese did their writing on silk fabrics and flat pieces of bamboo.

Big Brother is watching you.

More people every day are learning about an electronic device in Washington, D. C., which clicks and whirrs and flashes lights as it carries on a continuous search for bad drivers.

The electronic device is operated by the National Driver Register Service, whose job it is to identify drivers whose licenses have been revoked for drunken driving and fatality responsibility.

People whose licenses have been revoked in one state for these two offenses often, with a self-congratulating gleam in their eyes, drive to the next state and apply for another license.

This used to be a ruse that worked. But now all 50 states routinely submit a "search request" to NDRS for every out-of-stater who applies for a license. If the applicant's license has been revoked in another state, he won't get official permission to drive.

NDRS has been operating since July 1, 1961; and the federal agency has made nearly 40,000 identifications of drivers whose licenses have been revoked.

Legislation now pending in Congress will enable states to furnish information on licenses lost for any reason, including mental or physical incompetency.

If such legislation is approved, it will be virtually impossible for a driver on any state's revoked list to obtain a license through evasion and fraud.

Even now, many dangerous drivers are being kept off the highways.

Recently, NDRS asked its electronic brain to look for the name and description of a man who was applying for a driver's license in Arkansas. The machine discovered that the applicant had lost his license three times in Texas for drunken driving. Furthermore, he had been involved in 10 traffic accidents in Texas and had been convicted of reckless driving in Kentucky.

Will the wonders of our electronic age never cease? Let's hope not.

RETURNING TO FDR'S WORK

No extraordinary notice was taken last week of the twenty first anniversary of the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Indeed, his passing had been marked by a lesser display of mourning than was that of President Kennedy. But then, so many others were dying 20 years ago. So many gold stars were replacing the blue stars in the service flags.

Yet Americans probably never were more deeply moved by a President, not even by Abraham Lincoln. There is the testimony of Roosevelt's four elections contrasted with the bitterness of Lincoln's second campaign. Actually, Americans were engaged in reworking their destiny, and President Roosevelt was so engaged with them that nation and leader were inseparable. A pattern was set which still is the American pattern.

Distinctions and differences may be noted, but Washington correspondents almost automatically write of the Johnson Administration in the terms of 21 years ago. They compare, for example, Mr. Johnson's first 100 days with FDR's 100 days. True, the achievements of two decades ago were improvised while Mr. Johnson's are carefully planned--but planned in the pattern of a New Deal for the ordinary citizen. Contemporary concerns, fundamentally, are the concerns of 21 years ago -- employment, schooling, economic reconstruction, help for the poor, the sick, the old. What motivates the "war against proverty" if not a desire to extend the New Deal?

Roosevelt was diverted by the world's bloodiest war, but he hoped that victory would enable the nation to get on with the work. No man can say whether he had an intimation of the cold war to come, and of further diversion. But except for Viet Nam, international pressures have been eased. Attention again centers on individual well being. And if the world escapes the folly of another vast war, it seems that this focus will not change in the years ahead.

The social shock of the Depression turned Americans to the compassionate and, on the whole, successful innovations of the New Deal. And today the realization that "the other America," and especially the Negro, has not yet fully benefited by those innovations is turning us again toward the goals of justice and compassion, and the achievement of an economy adequate to make them real for all. Just as Mr. Roosevelt hoped to return to the interrupted work, so the nation is now turning to it as minds and energy are being freed for the work.

The tragedy lies in its interruption by wars. Thus it has become even more important than it seemed to be in New Deal days to recognize that the responsibility for human welfare, for a better life for every man, involves a decent concern not only for our own, but also for all nations. The perfection of Franklin D. Roosevelt's work is the world's work. Nothing less is worthy of any man.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

There's always a possibility a bachelor will marry until he learns to sew on buttons. After that, a girl is foolish to waste her time on him.

If the New York Yankees win the American League pennant this year, I'll eat home plate.

Few million-dollar deals are closed by guys dressed in drip-dry shirts. When you get in that league, you don't have to save on your laundry bills.

Walk five miles a day regularly and you'll probably never beat up your wife. For one thing, you won't need the extra exercise.

If I were selling life insurance to athletes, I'd concentrate on weight lifters. They are introspective and worry more about their health more than any other kind of muscle benders. They also cry more easily.

Two-thirds of the guys you see coming to work carrying a well-stuffed briefcase aren't hard workers. They just like a big lunch.

You can have all the other actresses in the world if I can have just three - Julie Harris, Julie Andrews and Julie Christie.

Never lend money to a fellow who doesn't wear an undershirt. He's bound to have some other character defect, too.

Look at the next construction worker on the street you see using an electric jackhammer. The odds are 4-1 that he'll have a big belly.

A good business executive is often more precise in the use of words than a college English instructor. He has to be; he can't afford to say anything except exactly what he means.

It is impossible to rid ourselves of all prejudice. For example, when I see anyone wearing dark glasses on a cloudy day—although certainly it should be no concern of mine—I immediately take a strong dislike to him and put him down as a showoff idiot.

Every business firm should have pasted on its bulletin board this remark by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia: "A swivel chair has ruined more men than chorus girls or liquor."

The average woman would have more dignity being hanged in public than being drunk in public.

"Ready? You Are Using Blanks, of Course?"

Last season's grape crop was a bumper one, particularly grapes for juice. Total production was 337,000 tons, which was five percent larger than last year and nineteen percent greater than average.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ. . .

"Hammarskjold: the Dangerous Man" by Emery Kelen. Emery Kelen is a man who is accustomed to learning a great deal from a person's face. When Dag Hammarskjold took his post as Secretary General of the United Nations, he was a subject both challenging and revelatory. There was the softness of the lower face, the shrewdness of the midface, the spirituality of the high dome. Emery Kelen follows these and many other perceptions up with the facts of Hammarskjold's life and with his performance at the UN. Pope Pius called him his lay counterpart; Hammarskjold termed himself an instrument, a catalyst, perhaps an inspirer. Emery Kelen sees him as a truly disinterested person who "wrestled with the vast egoism of total selflessness," whose diplomacy was effective because his sheer integrity forced conflicting parties to conciliate. The style of his reckoning is highly readable. Kelen looks into his personal life -- the part played by his mother, the place of religion, his celibacy, his attitude toward death. While increasing understanding, he does not resolve the mystery of the man. He is perhaps on firmer ground with his coverage of the UN, and he brings that body alive as he relives its history with Hammarskjold at the helm. He concludes with the question, "was Hammarskjold a suicide? If so, the testimony of the grass he clutched in his death agony (and his demonstrated belief in the sanctity of human life) is false. This is the book on Hammarskjold that reduces a legend to the level of human understanding.

OPEN YOUR DOORS AND YOUR HEART

The late President John F. Kennedy, speaking of the Crusade against Cancer, said: "I . . . .hope that you will open your doors and your hearts to the two million volunteers in this great drive who will be calling on you."

President Kennedy spoke from profound and deeply felt compassion for people stricken with disease.

Our First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has carried the American Cancer Society's life-saving message from door to door herself, has said with equal meaning: "All together, volunteers, the government, physicians and scientists, we are united in our effort to conquer cancer. . .Welcome your neighbor when she calls for the Cancer Crusade."

During April a neighbor will visit you -- a volunteer in the American Cancer Society's educational and fund-raising Crusade.

The volunteer will come to your door with two vital messages: 1) How to best protect your life from cancer; 2) An appeal for much-needed funds. The Society seeks these funds not only to carry on at present levels but to enlarge its research, education and service programs and give us more effective control over cancer.

The cancer problem is big. It involves all of us. Cancer is impartial when it attacks. Bu the cancer problem is not at all as gloomy as it was a few years ago. Modern science and education have made great inroads on the disease. There are 1,400,000 Americans alive today, cured of cancer. A quarter of a century ago there were only 260,000.

Twenty years ago only one out of four stricken with the disease was saved. Now it is one out of three. It could be one out of two, that is, if all of us exercised necessary precautions. This is why education is so important -- people must know the facts and be persuaded to act in time. Action requires a health checkup by a physician every year and being constantly on the alert to cancer's seven danger signals.

Research is most important. The lives of half of those who develop cancer depend on future research. The American Cancer Society needs more research funds to support more of the projects recommended by the distinguished scientists who are on its Research Advisory Council.

So when an American Cancer volunteer calls, "open your doors and your hearts" and your minds.

PRAISE FOR THE FDA

Last February, an antidepressant drug, tranylcypromine sulfate, was taken off the market by its manufactuerer. This, according to an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association, was done "after strong pressure from the FDA, but under firm protest by the company."

Recently, the FDA announced that it was permitting the drug to return to market on the condition that adequate attention is called to all potential hazards associated with it.

That, in the AMA's opinion, is to the credit of the FDA's new medical director, Joseph F. Sadusk, Jr., M.D. The controversy, it goes on, ". . . appears to have been resolved by an objective appraisal of the medical and scientific data available." It then makes this all important point: "It would be well for the FDA to bear this in mind and to use its regulatory power with discretion in any area in which a significant segment of the medical profession agrees that a drug, even though potentially hazardous and having a certain risk in its use, can be used effectively to the best interests of patients. It appears from Dr. Sadusk's disposition of the tranylcypromine problem that he is aware of this . . . ."

The question is simply one of benefits as balanced against risks. Numbers of very valuable prescription drugs can, in a relatively small number of cases, produce adverse effects. But does this justify denying them to the many who find them of service in prolonging life and restoring health? The only answer seems to be No.

Absolute safety, if demanded of drugs, would mean an end to progress. The action of the FDA on this particular matter was strongly in the public interest.

A HERO WHO CAME HOME

Excerpts from letter to LIFE LINE from William J. O'Sullivan, father of Captain Christopher J. O'Sullivan, the "Hero Who Came Home."

"My son had a great love for his country and thought he could best serve his country in the armed services. He believed in only one 'ISM', Americanism. He realized the only real enemy our Country had was Communism in all its forms. He knew that Liberty, as we know it, can never co-exist with Communism. He fought against Communism where it presently is the greatest threat to our Liberty and the Liberty of the free people of the world -- Viet Nam. He wrote me that he hoped his hardships and the sufferings of all young Americans in Viet Nam would not go for naught, because of the indifference of the people at home.

"You asked me if you or your organization could do anything for the O'Sullivan family. We say that there is something that you and your organization can do, and that is to try, in the name of God, to arouse the American people to the great threat to their Liberty, that is now being carried on by Communism in every corner of the world.

"It is not enough for the American people to vote for non-Communists. They must vote for Anti-Communists. They should. . . remember they are Americans first and last. Sir, the Americans who believe in the Constitution and Bill of Rights as handed down by our Forefathers, are in the majority in this Country. They should make themselves heard. It is in preserving our own Liberty that we can best help others throughout the world." HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON--Lyndon Johnson, who has been accused unfairly, of using influence with the Federal Communications Commission to role up a multi-million dollar TV-radio monopoly in Austin for Lady Bird, has a unique opportunity to combat this accusation with the appointment of a new FCC chairman.

Some advisers want him to appoint a new chairman who won't rock the boat, won't scare the TV industry. On the other hand there is no industry which needs more rocking than the huge networks and group broadcasters, many controlled by defense contractors, which with the use of public owned airwaves, have rolled up profits as much as 40 percent.

In 1964 the fifteen network owned stations made a profit of 37.6 percent. Profits have soared so fantastically that WHC-TV in Pittsburgh was sold last fall to the Cox Broadcasting Company for $20,600,000. Since the tangible assets of the station were listed at $3,800,000, the balance, or $16,800,000 was the value of the federal license --a license owned by the American people, but granted by the FCC as the agent for the people.

That agency in the past has been pretty much the puppet of the broadcasting world, and any FCC chairman who really tries to exercise authority, such as retiring William Henry, finds himself attacked by the industry, castigated by Madison-Avenue minded congressmen, hamstrung by some of his own associates, and eventually resigns.

Meanwhile a dangerous trend has developed in the broadcasting industry which Lyndon Johnson needs to watch even closer than he is accused of once watching his wife's TV monopoly in Austin. This trend is the branching out of television into education and publishing, with control sometimes resting with defense contractors.

BOOKS AND BROADCASTERS

Profits have been so great in the TV industry that the Radio Corporation of America, which owns one of the biggest networks, NBC, has announced the purchase of Random House Books, one of the major publishing houses.

CBS has gone further. It announced, Sept. 29 last year an agreement to acquire Allyn and Bacon, probably the biggest supplier of educational materials for pre-kindergarten, high school, college and graduate work in the nation. Said CBS: "Our businesses dovetail nicely."

On top of this, CBS last March moved to acquire creative playthings of Princeton, N. J., together with learning center. The first is a top supplier of 3-dimensional educational systems for nursery schools, the second a developer of teaching techniques for children.

This means that CBS, on top of its tremendous impact on the adult audience through TV, will now increase its juvenile impact through three subsidiaries dealing with cradle to adult education.

In other words, the networks are fast encroaching on the field of the public school, the college and the university. Yet while public schools are administered by local and state school boards, subject to the will of the people, the networks are subject only to a handful of Madison Avenue executives and Wall Street directors interested in a profit of 37.6 percent.

Colleges and universities are administered by trained educators and gives the widest latitude to free speech, freedom of learning, exposure to outside speakers and teachers. A system of exchange professors bring viewpoints from England, the European continent and all parts of the USA. But not the networks. Both CBS and NBC operate a closed shop as far as outside talent is concerned. Ninety percent of network programing is produced by the nets on which they make a second profit.

This is like the New York Times Sunday magazine or the Saturday Evening Post refusing to accept articles by writers not on their staffs, or like a university barring lectures by outside professors.

Only the American Broadcasting Company accepts outside producers and programs.

IKES LAST MESSAGE

Equally dangerous has been the trend toward ownership of television by big defense contractors. President Eisenhower in his last message to the American people warned of the alliance between the Defense contractor and the Pentagon, which administered the first peacetime army and navy in America's history.

At that time Ike did not foresee a further development--the entrance of defense contractors into the broadcasting field where they can directly influence public opinion. Having NBC owned by one of the major defense contractors, for instance, is like having General Motors own the New York Times or General Dynamics own the Washington Post.

It could be one of the most dangerous conflict of public interest in the nation, especially in view of NBC's closed shop policy.

Other big defense contractors in the TV broadcasting field are General Electric; General Tire and Rubber which makes the Polaris missile; American Aviation Company, and Westinghouse. The latter, it should be noted, does a broad-minded non-closed shop job of informing the public.

These are some of the reasons why LBJ's selection of the new Federal Communications chairman will be watched so carefully.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Leaders, Angered by Medicare Operation, Plan Fight to Monitor Doctors' Bills.

Washington, D. C.: -- Some of the nation's militant labor leaders and their welfare specialists are ruefully considering advising their people to stop supporting the government's voluntary medicare program and to pull out, if they're in it.

After fighting for it for years, these unionists agree with old Publilius Syrus that there are some remedies worse than the disease.

The union chiefs are angered because they have been cut out of the program incisively by a federal scapel.

They are saying the voluntary cost -- $3 a month, $36 a year ($72 for an elderly couple) -- is too high.

Furthermore, they charge that doctors' fees will be excessive and that labor should be monitoring these bills -- and now can't.

And not the least of the labor leaders' anxieties is in being cut off from an influential bloc of people whom the unions have serviced for years -- the organized, ever - active, constantly vocal "retirees."

In some industries, such as steel and auto, workers are now annually retiring by the scores of thousands.

The union officials have been agitated by the government's decision not to do business with the labor movement in the medicare operation. In effect, this means that only a few major intermediaries will be the go - between linking perhaps 7,100 hospitals, 17,000 old-age homes and institutions and mushrooming nursing homes.

Such organizations as the Blue Cross and insurance companies will take the hospital bills, provide the money, and finally the reimbursement from the government.

In all, this is expected to exceed some three billion dollars in the first full year.

Thus, despite labor's welfare fund servicing of members over the years, the unions will lose contact with their people once they hit 65 and retire.

The words "aged" and "aging" are not in their glossary. Many are organized in the labor - led National Council of Senior Citizens, covering more than 2,000 social, religious, welfare, civil rights and union club organizations. It has 2,000,000 members in 70 state and area councils.

This is a mighty potent political force -- led by the retired John Edelman, until recently Capitol Hill lobbyist for the Textile Workers' Union. During recent elections the "over-65s" rang doorbells, distributed literature, worked the precincts on Election Day, manned the telephones on "Election Day minus one" -- call day -- and spent their leisure time stomping their areas for favorite candidates.

"So, we now are chagrined over the medicare development," said Irving Baldinger, vice president for Health and Welfare, District 65, a wholesale, retail and small manufacturing shop union, one of the most militant in the land.

"The government now, by shifting the fiscal operations to Blue Cross and insurance companies, separates the retiring membership from the unions. This will cut the final vestiges of contact between the unions and their members because this link has been based on welfare and hospitalization and retirement funds.

"Of course, you're right when you say that will also cut the unions from vital political cadres. The retirees have been doing yeoman work in all the legislative lobbying. They are veteran unionists, instilled in the old tradition and they have the time to help."

Furthermore, says Baldinger, the old comprehensive medical coverage provided by the unions is less expensive. And he reports that many of the old retirees are coming to union headquarters asking, "What do we need the medicare for? We already have coverage."

So, the second stage of the medicare drama is upon us.

Labor's attack will be launched against the right of the physicians to estimate their own bills. And such leaders as Walter Reuther will fight to force such industries as "auto and aerospace" to pay the $36 voluntary yearly charge.

They aim to prove they are mighty powerful medicine men themselves.

Advertisers on the local level are exceptionally lucky. By telling exactly what, where and for what price something is sold, they give a direct incentive to purchase.

Goods such as bread and butter are called complementary goods by economists. This means that when the sales of one item go up, complementary goods do likewise.

Instead of having to list each product in a different advertisement, like the national advertiser, the retailer can combine items and have complete, efficient market coverage.

The successful supermarket manager most often realizes this and uses large space in the local newspaper. His effort is well worth while and he regains many times the cost of the advertisement.

PAPER DADDY

It is now believed that paper was the invention of a high Chinese official named Tsai Lun, who lived about two thousand years ago. He used the beaten fibers of the inner bark of the mulberry tree; when these fibers were matted together, they formed a white sheet. Prior to Tsai Lun's invention, the Chinese did their writing on silk fabrics and flat pieces of bamboo.

Big Brother is watching you.

More people every day are learning about an electronic device in Washington, D. C., which clicks and whirrs and flashes lights as it carries on a continuous search for bad drivers.

The electronic device is operated by the National Driver Register Service, whose job it is to identify drivers whose licenses have been revoked for drunken driving and fatality responsibility.

People whose licenses have been revoked in one state for these two offenses often, with a self-congratulating gleam in their eyes, drive to the next state and apply for another license.

This used to be a ruse that worked. But now all 50 states routinely submit a "search request" to NDRS for every out-of-stater who applies for a license. If the applicant's license has been revoked in another state, he won't get official permission to drive.

NDRS has been operating since July 1, 1961; and the federal agency has made nearly 40,000 identifications of drivers whose licenses have been revoked.

Legislation now pending in Congress will enable states to furnish information on licenses lost for any reason, including mental or physical incompetency.

If such legislation is approved, it will be virtually impossible for a driver on any state's revoked list to obtain a license through evasion and fraud.

Even now, many dangerous drivers are being kept off the highways.

Recently, NDRS asked its electronic brain to look for the name and description of a man who was applying for a driver's license in Arkansas. The machine discovered that the applicant had lost his license three times in Texas for drunken driving. Furthermore, he had been involved in 10 traffic accidents in Texas and had been convicted of reckless driving in Kentucky.

Will the wonders of our electronic age never cease? Let's hope not.

RETURNING TO FDR'S WORK

No extraordinary notice was taken last week of the twenty first anniversary of the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Indeed, his passing had been marked by a lesser display of mourning than was that of President Kennedy. But then, so many others were dying 20 years ago. So many gold stars were replacing the blue stars in the service flags.

Yet Americans probably never were more deeply moved by a President, not even by Abraham Lincoln. There is the testimony of Roosevelt's four elections contrasted with the bitterness of Lincoln's second campaign. Actually, Americans were engaged in reworking their destiny, and President Roosevelt was so engaged with them that nation and leader were inseparable. A pattern was set which still is the American pattern.

Distinctions and differences may be noted, but Washington correspondents almost automatically write of the Johnson Administration in the terms of 21 years ago. They compare, for example, Mr. Johnson's first 100 days with FDR's 100 days. True, the achievements of two decades ago were improvised while Mr. Johnson's are carefully planned--but planned in the pattern of a New Deal for the ordinary citizen. Contemporary concerns, fundamentally, are the concerns of 21 years ago -- employment, schooling, economic reconstruction, help for the poor, the sick, the old. What motivates the "war against proverty" if not a desire to extend the New Deal?

Roosevelt was diverted by the world's bloodiest war, but he hoped that victory would enable the nation to get on with the work. No man can say whether he had an intimation of the cold war to come, and of further diversion. But except for Viet Nam, international pressures have been eased. Attention again centers on individual well being. And if the world escapes the folly of another vast war, it seems that this focus will not change in the years ahead.

The social shock of the Depression turned Americans to the compassionate and, on the whole, successful innovations of the New Deal. And today the realization that "the other America," and especially the Negro, has not yet fully benefited by those innovations is turning us again toward the goals of justice and compassion, and the achievement of an economy adequate to make them real for all. Just as Mr. Roosevelt hoped to return to the interrupted work, so the nation is now turning to it as minds and energy are being freed for the work.

The tragedy lies in its interruption by wars. Thus it has become even more important than it seemed to be in New Deal days to recognize that the responsibility for human welfare, for a better life for every man, involves a decent concern not only for our own, but also for all nations. The perfection of Franklin D. Roosevelt's work is the world's work. Nothing less is worthy of any man.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

There's always a possibility a bachelor will marry until he learns to sew on buttons. After that, a girl is foolish to waste her time on him.

If the New York Yankees win the American League pennant this year, I'll eat home plate.

Few million-dollar deals are closed by guys dressed in dripdry shirts. When you get in that league, you don't have to save on your laundry bills.

Walk five miles a day regularly and you'll probably never beat up your wife. For one thing, you won't need the extra exercise.

If I were selling life insurance to athletes, I'd concentrate on weight lifters. They are introspective and worry more about their health more than any other kind of muscle benders. They also cry more easily.

Two-thirds of the guys you see coming to work carrying a well-stuffed briefcase aren't hard workers. They just like a big lunch.

You can have all the other actresses in the world if I can have just three - Julie Harris, Julie Andrews and Julie Christie.

Never lend money to a fellow who doesn't wear an undershirt. He's bound to have some other character defect, too.

Look at the next construction worker on the street you see using an electric jackhammer. The odds are 4-1 that he'll have a big belly.

A good business executive is often more precise in the use of words than a college English instructor. He has to be; he can't afford to say anything except exactly what he means.

It is impossible to rid ourselves of all prejudice. For example, when I see anyone wearing dark glasses on a cloudy day—although certainly it should be no concern of mine—I immediately take a strong dislike to him and put him down as a showoff idiot.

Every business firm should have pasted on its bulletin board this remark by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia: "A swivel chair has ruined more men than chorus girls or liquor."

The average woman would have more dignity being hanged in public than being drunk in public.

"Ready? You Are Using Blanks, of Course?"

Last season's grape crop was a bumper one, particularly grapes for juice. Total production was 337,000 tons, which was five percent larger than last year and nineteen percent greater than average.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ. . .

"Hammarskjold: the Dangerous Man" by Emery Kelen. Emery Kelen is a man who is accustomed to learning a great deal from a person's face. When Dag Hammarskjold took his post as Secretary General of the United Nations, he was a subject both challenging and revelatory. There was the softness of the lower face, the shrewdness of the midface, the spirituality of the high dome. Emery Kelen follows these and many other perceptions up with the facts of Hammarskjold's life and with his performance at the UN. Pope Pius called him his lay counterpart; Hammarskjold termed himself an instrument, a catalyst, perhaps an inspirer. Emery Kelen sees him as a truly disinterested person who "wrestled with the vast egoism of total selflessness," whose diplomacy was effective because his sheer integrity forced conflicting parties to conciliate. The style of his reckoning is highly readable. Kelen looks into his personal life -- the part played by his mother, the place of religion, his celibacy, his attitude toward death. While increasing understanding, he does not resolve the mystery of the man. He is perhaps on firmer ground with his coverage of the UN, and he brings that body alive as he relives its history with Hammarskjold at the helm. He concludes with the question, "was Hammarskjold a suicide? If so, the testimony of the grass he clutched in his death agony (and his demonstrated belief in the sanctity of human life) is false. This is the book on Hammarskjold that reduces a legend to the level of human understanding.

OPEN YOUR DOORS AND YOUR HEART

The late President John F. Kennedy, speaking of the Crusade against Cancer, said: "I . . . .hope that you will open your doors and your hearts to the two million volunteers in this great drive who will be calling on you."

President Kennedy spoke from profound and deeply felt compassion for people stricken with disease.

Our First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who has carried the American Cancer Society's life-saving message from door to door herself, has said with equal meaning: "All together, volunteers, the government, physicians and scientists, we are united in our effort to conquer cancer. . .Welcome your neighbor when she calls for the Cancer Crusade."

During April a neighbor will visit you -- a volunteer in the American Cancer Society's educational and fund-raising Crusade.

The volunteer will come to your door with two vital messages: 1) How to best protect your life from cancer; 2) An appeal for much-needed funds. The Society seeks these funds not only to carry on at present levels but to enlarge its research, education and service programs and give us more effective control over cancer.

The cancer problem is big. It involves all of us. Cancer is impartial when it attacks. Bu the cancer problem is not at all as gloomy as it was a few years ago. Modern science and education have made great inroads on the disease. There are 1,400,000 Americans alive today, cured of cancer. A quarter of a century ago there were only 260,000.

Twenty years ago only one out of four stricken with the disease was saved. Now it is one out of three. It could be one out of two, that is, if all of us exercised necessary precautions. This is why education is so important -- people must know the facts and be persuaded to act in time. Action requires a health checkup by a physician every year and being constantly on the alert to cancer's seven danger signals.

Research is most important. The lives of half of those who develop cancer depend on future research. The American Cancer Society needs more research funds to support more of the projects recommended by the distinguished scientists who are on its Research Advisory Council.

So when an American Cancer volunteer calls, "open your doors and your hearts" and your minds.

PRAISE FOR THE FDA

Last February, an antidepressant drug, tranylcypromine sulfate, was taken off the market by its manufactuerer. This, according to an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association, was done "after strong pressure from the FDA, but under firm protest by the company."

Recently, the FDA announced that it was permitting the drug to return to market on the condition that adequate attention is called to all potential hazards associated with it.

That, in the AMA's opinion, is to the credit of the FDA's new medical director, Joseph F. Sadusk, Jr., M.D. The controversy, it goes on, ". . . appears to have been resolved by an objective appraisal of the medical and scientific data available." It then makes this all important point: "It would be well for the FDA to bear this in mind and to use its regulatory power with discretion in any area in which a significant segment of the medical profession agrees that a drug, even though potentially hazardous and having a certain risk in its use, can be used effectively to the best interests of patients. It appears from Dr. Sadusk's disposition of the tranylcypromine problem that he is aware of this . . . ."

The question is simply one of benefits as balanced against risks. Numbers of very valuable prescription drugs can, in a relatively small number of cases, produce adverse effects. But does this justify denying them to the many who find them of service in prolonging life and restoring health? The only answer seems to be No.

Absolute safety, if demanded of drugs, would mean an end to progress. The action of the FDA on this particular matter was strongly in the public interest.

H. L. Hunt Says

A HERO WHO CAME HOME

Excerpts from letter to LIFE LINE from William J. O'Sullivan, father of Captain Christopher J. O'Sullivan, the "Hero Who Came Home."

"My son had a great love for his country and thought he could best serve his country in the armed services. He believed in only one 'ISM', Americanism. He realized the only real enemy our Country had was Communism in all its forms. He knew that Liberty, as we know it, can never co-exist with Communism. He fought against Communism where it presently is the greatest threat to our Liberty and the Liberty of the free people of the world -- Viet Nam. He wrote me that he hoped his hardships and the sufferings of all young Americans in Viet Nam would not go for naught, because of the indifference of the people at home.

"You asked me if you or your organization could do anything for the O'Sullivan family. We say that there is something that you and your organization can do, and that is to try, in the name of God, to arouse the American people to the great threat to their Liberty, that is now being carried on by Communism in every corner of the world.

"It is not enough for the American people to vote for non-Communists. They must vote for Anti-Communists. They should. . . remember they are Americans first and last. Sir, the Americans who believe in the Constitution and Bill of Rights as handed down by our Forefathers, are in the majority in this Country. They should make themselves heard. It is in preserving our own Liberty that we can best help others throughout the world." HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON--Lyndon Johnson, who has been accused unfairly, of using influence with the Federal Communications Commission to role up a multi-million dollar TV-radio monopoly in Austin for Lady Bird, has a unique opportunity to combat this accusation with the appointment of a new FCC chairman.

Some advisers want him to appoint a new chairman who won't rock the boat, won't scare the TV industry. On the other hand there is no industry which needs more rocking than the huge networks and group broadcasters, many controlled by defense contractors, which with the use of public owned airwaves, have rolled up profits as much as 40 percent.

In 1964 the fifteen network owned stations made a profit of 37.6 percent. Profits have soared so fantastically that WIIC-TV in Pittsburgh was sold last fall to the Cox Broadcasting Company for $20,600,000. Since the tangible assets of the station were listed at $3,800,000, the balance, or $16,800,000 was the value of the federal license --a license owned by the American people, but granted by the FCC as the agent for the people.

That agency in the past has been pretty much the puppet of the broadcasting world, and any FCC chairman who really tries to exercise authority, such as retiring William Henry, finds himself attacked by the industry, castigated by Madison-Avenue minded congressmen, hamstrung by some of his own associates, and eventually resigns.

Meanwhile a dangerous trend has developed in the broadcasting industry which Lyndon Johnson needs to watch even closer than he is accused of once watching his wife's TV monopoly in Austin. This trend is the branching out of television into education and publishing, with control sometimes resting with defense contractors.

BOOKS AND BROADCASTERS

Profits have been so great in the TV industry that the Radio Corporation of America, which owns one of the biggest networks, NBC, has announced the purchase of Random House Books, one of the major publishing houses.

CBS has gone further. It announced, Sept. 29 last year an agreement to acquire Allyn and Bacon, probably the biggest supplier of educational materials for pre-kindergarten, high school, college and graduate work in the nation. Said CBS: "Our businesses dovetail nicely."

On top of this, CBS last March moved to acquire creative playthings of Princeton, N. J., together with learning center. The first is a top supplier of 3-dimensional educational systems for nursery schools, the second a developer of teaching techniques for children.

This means that CBS, on top of its tremendous impact on the adult audience through TV, will now increase its juvenile impact through three subsidiaries dealing with cradle to adult education.

In other words, the networks are fast encroaching on the field of the public school, the college and the university. Yet while public schools are administered by local and state school boards, subject to the will of the people, the networks are subject only to a handful of Madison Avenue executives and Wall Street directors interested in a profit of 37.6 percent.

Colleges and universities are administered by trained educators and gives the widest latitude to free speech, freedom of learning, exposure to outside speakers and teachers. A system of exchange professors bring viewpoints from England, the European continent and all parts of the USA. But not the networks. Both CBS and NBC operate a closed shop as far as outside talent is concerned. Ninety percent of network programing is produced by the nets on which they make a second profit.

This is like the New York Times Sunday magazine or the Saturday Evening Post refusing to accept articles by writers not on their staffs, or like a university barring lectures by outside professors.

Only the American Broadcasting Company accepts outside producers and programs.

IKES LAST MESSAGE

Equally dangerous has been the trend toward ownership of television by big defense contractors. President Eisenhower in his last message to the American people warned of the alliance between the Defense contractor and the Pentagon, which administered the first peacetime army and navy in America's history.

At that time Ike did not foresee a further development--the entrance of defense contractors into the broadcasting field where they can directly influence public opinion. Having NBC owned by one of the major defense contractors, for instance, is like having General Motors own the New York Times or General Dynamics own the Washington Post.

It could be one of the most dangerous conflict of public interest in the nation, especially in view of NBC's closed shop policy.

Other big defense contractors in the TV broadcasting field are General Electric; General Tire and Rubber which makes the Polaris missile; American Aviation Company, and Westinghouse. The latter, it should be noted, does a broad-minded non-closed shop job of informing the public.

These are some of the reasons why LBJ's selection of the new Federal Communications chairman will be watched so carefully.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Labor Leaders, Angered by Medicare Operation, Plan Fight to Monitor Doctors' Bills.

Washington, D. C.: -- Some of the nation's militant labor leaders and their welfare specialists are ruefully considering advising their people to stop supporting the government's voluntary medicare program and to pull out, if they're in it.

After fighting for it for years, these unionists agree with old Publilius Syrus that there are some remedies worse than the disease.

The union chiefs are angered because they have been cut out of the program incisively by a federal scapel.

They are saying the voluntary cost -- $3 a month, $36 a year ($72 for an elderly couple) -- is too high.

Furthermore, they charge that doctors' fees will be excessive and that labor should be monitoring these bills -- and now can't.

And not the least of the labor leaders' anxieties is in being cut off from an influential bloc of people whom the unions have serviced for years -- the organized, ever - active, constantly vocal "retirees."

In some industries, such as steel and auto, workers are now annually retiring by the scores of thousands.

The union officials have been agitated by the government's decision not to do business with the labor movement in the medicare operation. In effect, this means that only a few major intermediaries will be the go - between linking perhaps 7,100 hospitals, 17,000 old-age homes and institutions and mushrooming nursing homes.

Such organizations as the Blue Cross and insurance companies will take the hospital bills, provide the money, and finally the reimbursement from the government.

In all, this is expected to exceed some three billion dollars in the first full year.

Thus, despite labor's welfare fund servicing of members over the years, the unions will lose contact with their people once they hit 65 and retire.

The words "aged" and "aging" are not in their glossary. Many are organized in the labor - led National Council of Senior Citizens, covering more than 2,000 social, religious, welfare, civil rights and union club organizations. It has 2,000,000 members in 70 state and area councils.

This is a mighty potent political force -- led by the retired John Edelman, until recently Capitol Hill lobbyist for the Textile Workers' Union. During recent elections the "over-65s" rang doorbells, distributed literature, worked the precincts on Election Day, manned the telephones on "Election Day minus one" -- call day -- and spent their leisure time stomping their areas for favorite candidates.

"So, we now are chagrined over the medicare development," said Irving Baldinger, vice president for Health and Welfare, District 65, a wholesale, retail and small manufacturing shop union, one of the most militant in the land.

"The government now, by shifting the fiscal operations to Blue Cross and insurance companies, separates the retiring membership from the unions. This will cut the final vestiges of contact between the unions and their members because this link has been based on welfare and hospitalization and retirement funds.

"Of course, you're right when you say that will also cut the unions from vital political cadres. The retirees have been doing yeoman work in all the legislative lobbying. They are veteran unionists, instilled in the old tradition and they have the time to help."

Furthermore, says Baldinger, the old comprehensive medical coverage provided by the unions is less expensive. And he reports that many of the old retirees are coming to union headquarters asking, "What do we need the medicare for? We already have coverage."

So, the second stage of the medicare drama is upon us.

Labor's attack will be launched against the right of the physicians to estimate their own bills. And such leaders as Walter Reuther will fight to force such industries as "auto and aerospace" to pay the $36 voluntary yearly charge.

They aim to prove they are mighty powerful medicine men themselves.

Girardot Chapter of NSA Has Annual Bosses Night

Sixty-four secretaries and bosses met at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau Monday night for the annual bosses night banquet. This is the 16th annual dinner of the Girardot Chapter. The theme for the evening was "Show Boat on the Mississippi," with favors, decorations and entertainment following this theme.

The invocation was given by Thomas Meyer. President Miss Elnora Tucker introduced the master of ceremonies, Jack Himmelberger.

Entertainment "Fit for All Kings" was in charge of Anita Meinz, and this was a melodrama presented by the professors and faculty of the speech department of Southeast Missouri State College.

Erma Hesskamp's boss, Walter Oberheide, was crowned king boss for the 1966-67 year. Outgoing king boss was Forrest Rose.

The after dinner speaker was Edwin Clark, chairman of the Board of Directors of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of St. Louis.

Women were urged to enter into politics at the precinct or ward level and to take a more active interest in governmental affairs by Clark.

Pleaded for greater community concern with education.

Cited inflation as the nation's greatest economic peril, and--

Clark noted the economic power of women, their ownership of common stock in the nation's corporations, the amount of real estate they own and control and that they spend the nation's money.

It was women, he said, who led many of the world's great reforms and who brought better living and health standards to America.

He suggested that with this power it is time they become involved in governmental affairs, and that the start be made on the ward or precinct level.

"If you're really interested in good government," Clark said, "then go to ward meetings, precinct meetings and find out what kind of people are seeking office."

There, he said, they would find whether candidates have integrity, morality and character or simply selfish reasons for seeking office.

"It seems to me that men have made a mess of politics; that women of this country can do something if they really want to do something."

Clark pointed out that the decisions of office are made at the precinct level, not in the voting booth. "We need people who will stand for sound, honest, progressive government," he said.

Discussing the part of education in the future of the country Clark said it is a matter of community decision whether the people want to spend the necessary money so their children are pushed to their limit in their capacity to learn.

He said all too often the bright students must suffer and stand still because they are held back in the classroom by those with lesser ability.

The colleges, Clark continued, are being overwhelmed with students. Industry is seeking the best. The College Boards are becoming more strict.

This raises the question in public schools whether there will be divided classes so the pupils are really educated to the maximum amount they can be, Clark said.

"I think today we are neglecting our smart young people and talking over the heads of the others," he said.

"It seems to me that everyone today must have a diploma. Industry has found that a diploma doesn't always mean much. Industry must test graduates to see if they really have ability and can learn."

He urged that the people of the nation's communities find out what their children are taught. Clark cited the changes that have come in the nation's history books alone, recalling that at one time they carried the story of America's great men, their words and their actions.

Today, he said, it is a rare history book that mentions Patrick Henry's "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death," or John Paul Jones, "We Have Just Begun to Fight," or the other words and deeds of men who helped mold the nation.

"I think it is your job to find out what is being taught in your schools," Clark said.

Turning to the national economy, the speaker said today's dollar is worth approximately half of what the 1940 dollar was worth and it appears by 1970 the 1966 dollar will be worth 25 per cent less. This inflation, he said, has been going on since 1940 and "is going to get worse, I'm afraid."

He attributed this decline in the dollar's value to poor government policies and continual spending beyond income. "Inflation is our greatest danger."

Discussing Social Security and the new Medicare program, he said it is the young people of the nation who must pay the cost. "It is the young people who are going to support the old ones." He said if all payments to the Social Security program were to stop today, there are only enough funds on hand to continue the program for 14 months.

"When we talk here about state socialism, the people of this country say 'No, we don't want that.' But they don't seem to realize that when we talk about the Great Society or the New Frontier, it's the same thing.

"I think that things are really serious, that we're going down that road," Clark said.

Those attending from Sikeston, belonging to the Girardot Chapter, were Secretary Lela Martin and boss, Bernard Rice, and Secretary Marjorie Hopkins and bosses, R. P. Buchmueller and Lennie O. Whitworth, Jr.

National Secretaries Week will be observed April 24-30.

Keglers Korner

By Hildred Poole

Hello! The biggest news in quite awhile from the lanes has been the Ladies Bowl-a-thon. I know we have had some coverage by the paper on it but know the rest of the gals who bowled would like to know exactly how things went. At 11 p.m. Friday night 24 bowlers started bowling and we bowled until 7:40 a.m. Saturday morning. Believe it or not we were a little tired. Jean Lee had to show off and win. There was a little while I might have caught her but it just didn't work that way and when we finished she had beaten me by 35 pins.

Actually I was proud of being even close to her and very surprised to come in second place. Even Mary Bain had to show off and beat my high game of 224 with a 225. Guess it just wasn't my day. (Or night that is).

The Bowl-a-thon bowlers and their pinfall was Jean Lee, 4337; Hildred Poole, 4302; Glenda Becker, 4190; Mary Bain, 4173; Thelma Hampton, 4151; Peggy Swacker, 4114; Lil Acord, 4020; Darla Carter, 3887; Virginia Dixon, 3867; Doris Wylie, 3834; Mickey Holyfield, 3823; Judy Throgmorton, 3705; Marie Nicholas, 3685; Sandy York, 3662; Jo Arnold, 3660; Ruby Smith, 3657; Peggy Dickson, 3620; Brenda Newton, 3595; Donna Hodges, 3594; Betty Heath, 3567; Mavis Riley, 3517; Ruby Abbot, 3469; Dottye Lefler, 3373; Freda Layton, 3285. Just one more note about this before I quit. We had a lot of fun and had hoped the people who came out to watch did too, but we had to have score keepers who were wide awake and these we had. A special thank you to those who kept score.

Darla Carter really smacked those pins for a big 223 game and Flora Crouthers took high series with a 532. Splits picked up in this league were Nelda Hodge 5-8-10, Lois Cokenour 4-5, Ginny Dean 4-5, Flora Young and Lois Cokenour 3-10, Janet Storey 5-10, Emily Manley 4-5, Janet Meadows 5-7.

FRIDAY BOWLETTS

Ziegenhorn 3 -- Medical Arts 1, I. S. Co. no. 3-3 -- Shys 1; Canvas 3 -- Rudys 1; Hambys 3-- E. P. Coleman 1; Vogue 2 -- I. S. C. no. 1-2; Proffers 2-- I. S. C. no 2-2. In the make up game we rolled last night Hambys took four from Ziegenhorn.

Highs Friday night were by 203 and 507 rolled by me. Yes I bowled in the league before the bowl-a-thon. Brenda Newton did too. We were told we shouldn't have but it really didn't make any difference.

Splits picked up Dorthy Pratt 4-5, Mildred Cockrell 3-7, Virginia Dollar, Hildred Poole, Brenda Newton, Mildred Cockrell 3-10, Opal Briggs 6-10, Iona Taylor 4-7.

Every now and then a bowler really does things not quite according to the way they should go and Billie Waldron did this Friday night. She threw her first ball and left a split and also got a pin in the gutter that the pinsetter didn't move. When she threw her second ball it went into the gutter and hit the pin there and knocked it over into some of the pins she had left, but in hitting the pin in the gutter her ball bounced into the next lane and the men who were bowling over there got a surprise. She also knocked down pins in that lane. It takes a pretty good bowler to knock down pins in two lanes at the same time.

ROYAL KEGLERS

Puckett 4 -- Bank of Sikeston 0; Alcorn 3-- Busch 1; Holyfield 3 -- 1st. National Bank 1; Lewis 3 -- Deb Ellen 1; Ferrell 3 -- Mutual of Omaha 1.

These gals really poured it on this week with high game by Jean Lee of 215 and also high series of 565. All these had series of over 500 -- Glenda Becker, 542; Beanie Ralph, 529; Johnnie Dacus, 528; Betty Estes, 523; Lil Acord 522. Three girls in this league have received triplicate scores this year. They are Betty Heath, Sally Beckman, Beanie Ralph.

Girardot Chapter of NSA Has Annual Bosses Night

Sixty-four secretaries and bosses met at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau Monday night for the annual bosses night banquet. This is the 16th annual dinner of the Girardot Chapter. The theme for the evening was "Show Boat on the Mississippi," with favors, decorations and entertainment following this theme.

The invocation was given by Thomas Meyer. President Miss Elnora Tucker introduced the master of ceremonies, Jack Himmelberger.

Entertainment "Fit for All Kings" was in charge of Anita Meinz, and this was a melodrama presented by the professors and faculty of the speech department of Southeast Missouri State College.

Erma Hesskamp's boss, Walter Oberheide, was crowned king boss for the 1966-67 year. Outgoing king boss was Forrest Rose.

The after dinner speaker was Edwin Clark, chairman of the Board of Directors of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of St. Louis.

Women were urged to enter into politics at the precinct or ward level and to take a more active interest in governmental affairs by Clark.

Pleaded for greater community concern with education.

Cited inflation as the nation's greatest economic peril, and--

Clark noted the economic power of women, their ownership of common stock in the nation's corporations, the amount of real estate they own and control and that they spend the nation's money.

It was women, he said, who led many of the world's great reforms and who brought better living and health standards to America.

He suggested that with this power it is time they become involved in governmental affairs, and that the start be made on the ward or precinct level.

"If you're really interested in good government," Clark said, "then go to ward meetings, precinct meetings and find out what kind of people are seeking office."

There, he said, they would find whether candidates have integrity, morality and character or simply selfish reasons for seeking office.

"It seems to me that men have made a mess of politics; that women of this country can do something if they really want to do something."

Clark pointed out that the decisions of office are made at the precinct level, not in the voting booth. "We need people who will stand for sound, honest, progressive government," he said.

Discussing the part of education in the future of the country Clark said it is a matter of community decision whether the people want to spend the necessary money so their children are pushed to their limit in their capacity to learn.

He said all too often the bright students must suffer and stand still because they are held back in the classroom by those with lesser ability.

The colleges, Clark continued, are being overwhelmed with students. Industry is seeking the best. The College Boards are becoming more strict.

This raises the question in public schools whether there will be divided classes so the pupils are really educated to the maximum amount they can be, Clark said.

"I think today we are neglecting our smart young people and talking over the heads of the others," he said.

"It seems to me that everyone today must have a diploma. Industry has found that a diploma doesn't always mean much. Industry must test graduates to see if they really have ability and can learn."

He urged that the people of the nation's communities find out what their children are taught. Clark cited the changes that have come in the nation's history books alone, recalling that at one time they carried the story of America's great men, their words and their actions.

Today, he said, it is a rare history book that mentions Patrick Henry's "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death," or John Paul Jones, "We Have Just Begun to Fight," or the other words and deeds of men who helped mold the nation.

"I think it is your job to find out what is being taught in your schools," Clark said.

Turning to the national economy, the speaker said today's dollar is worth approximately half of what the 1940 dollar was worth and it appears by 1970 the 1966 dollar will be worth 25 per cent less. This inflation, he said, has been going on since 1940 and "is going to get worse, I'm afraid."

He attributed this decline in the dollar's value to poor government policies and continual spending beyond income. "Inflation is our greatest danger."

Discussing Social Security and the new Medicare program, he said it is the young people of the nation who must pay the cost. "It is the young people who are going to support the old ones." He said if all payments to the Social Security program were to stop today, there are only enough funds on hand to continue the program for 14 months.

"When we talk here about state socialism, the people of this country say 'No, we don't want that.' But they don't seem to realize that when we talk about the Great Society or the New Frontier, it's the same thing.

"I think that things are really serious, that we're going down that road," Clark said.

Those attending from Sikeston, belonging to the Girardot Chapter, were Secretary Lela Martin and boss, Bernard Rice, and Secretary Marjorie Hopkins and bosses, R. P. Buchmueller and Lennie O. Whitworth, Jr.

National Secretaries Week will be observed April 24-30.

Keglers Korner

By Hildred Poole

Hello! The biggest news in quite awhile from the lanes has been the Ladies Bowl-a-thon. I know we have had some coverage by the paper on it but know the rest of the gals who bowled would like to know exactly how things went. At 11 p.m. Friday night 24 bowlers started bowling and we bowled until 7:40 a.m. Saturday morning. Believe it or not we were a little tired. Jean Lee had to show off and win. There was a little while I might have caught her but it just didn't work that way and when we finished she had beaten me by 35 pins.

Actually I was proud of being even close to her and very surprised to come in second place. Even Mary Bain had to show off and beat my high game of 224 with a 225. Guess it just wasn't my day. (Or night that is).

IMPERIAL ETTS

Crown 3 -- Belltones 1; L & A 3 -- Progressive 1; Kroger 3-- Deline 1; A & B 2½ -- Standard 1½.

Darla Carter really smacked those pins for a big 223 game and Flora Crouthers took high series with a 532. Splits picked up in this league were Nelda Hodge 5-8-10, Lois Cokenour 4-5, Ginny Dean 4-5, Flora Young and Lois Cokenour 3-10, Janet Storey 5-10, Emily Manley 4-5, Janet Meadows 5-7.

FRIDAY BOWLETTS

Ziegenhorn 3 -- Medical Arts 1, I. S. Co. no. 3-3 -- Shys 1; Canvas 3 -- Rudys 1; Hambys 3-- E. P. Coleman 1; Vogue 2 -- I. S. C. no. 1-2; Proffers 2-- I. S. C. no 2-2. In the make up game we rolled last night Hambys took four from Ziegenhorn.

Highs Friday night were by 203 and 507 rolled by me. Yes I bowled in the league before the bowl-a-thon. Brenda Newton did too. We were told we shouldn't have but it really didn't make any difference.

Splits picked up Dorthy Pratt 4-5, Mildred Cockrell 3-7, Virginia Dollar, Hildred Poole, Brenda Newton, Mildred Cockrell 3-10, Opal Briggs 6-10, Iona Taylor 4-7.

Every now and then a bowler really does things not quite according to the way they should go and Billie Waldron did this Friday night. She threw her first ball and left a split and also got a pin in the gutter that the pinsetter didn't move. When she threw her second ball it went into the gutter and hit the pin there and knocked it over into some of the pins she had left, but in hitting the pin in the gutter her ball bounced into the next lane and the men who were bowling over there got a surprise. She also knocked down pins in that lane. It takes a pretty good bowler to knock down pins in two lanes at the same time.

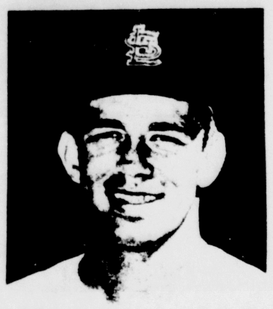
McCarver Paces Cards With Triple



Tim McCarver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Athletics returned home Tuesday night for the first time this season and edged the defending American League champion Minnesota twins, 3-2, for their first victory of the season.

The St. Louis Cardinals stopped the New York Mets 5-2, on a four-man, fifth-inning outburst capped by catcher Tim McCarver's bases - loaded triple.

Kansas City, now 1-5, won behind the pitching of rookie Chuck Dobson and former bonus baby Lew Krausse, who combined for a six-hitter against the Twins.

Dobson allowed five hits and was replaced by Krausse when he walked in the second Minnesota run with two outs in the sixth. Krausse got Zoilo Versalles on a drive to center.

The A's scored two unearned runs with the help of Tonly Oliva who dropped two fly balls in right field. Oliva slipped on Tartabull's fly in the first inning and tartabull later scored on Camilio Pascual's balk. Oliva then dropped Dobson's fly after singles by Dick Green and Ken Suarez in the second.

St. Louis' other run came in the sixth on George Kernek's triple and Jerry Buchek's sacrifice fly.

The Mets scored in the third when Cleon Jones and Ron Hunt singled and Jones running with the pitch, raced home when Javier hesitated after taking the throw from the outfield.

Ex-Cardinal Ken Boyer homered in the sixth for New York. He also committed two errors in his first league game against his former teammates.

Righthander Bob Gibson, 1-0, this year, is scheduled to pitch today against New York righthander Jack Hamilton, also 1-0.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics move on to Los Angeles for a meeting with the Lakers tonight in a determined bid to regain the edge in quest of an eighth straight National Basketball Association championship.

The Celtics evened the best-of-seven title series 1-1, overpowering the Lakers 129-109 with a sharp-shooting attack and a tight defense Tuesday night before a sellout crowd of 13,909 at the Garden.

"I'm not happy yet," Boston Coach Red Auerbach said. "They still have an edge on us because the next two games are in Los Angeles. And we're not going to be deluded into thinking things are going to be easy out there."

The Celtics, who blew an 18-point lead and lost 133-129 in overtime in the opener, took the cue from Auerbach, but hopes were high.

"We've got to get one, but we want both," high-scoring John Havlicek said. "We beat them twice on one trip out there during the regular season, so we have a good chance of doing it again."

Larry Siegfried, who scored 16 of his 20 points in 8½ minutes of the second period as Boston roared to a 71-47 halftime lead, called the Celtics' defense the key in the Los Angeles games tonight and Friday.

Los Angeles Coach Fred Schaus was an angry man after the Lakers' whipping. He refused to talk to writers, claiming he was unhappy about stories written after the first game in which the Celtics alleged poor officiating.

The Lakers' Jerry West and Elgin Baylor were held to 18 and 13 points, respectively, after combining for 77 in the opener.

Cindermen In Conference Meet At Charleston

The Bulldogs dash runners have been showing great improvement over the last few meets and should be up to their top form.

This afternoon the cindermen travel to Charleston for the County meet with Charleston, Scott Central, Scott City, and then play host Saturday to the North Conference, with activities getting started at 10 a.m.

The Bulldogs are hampered by the lack of endurance men who can run the long races in winning fashion. The Dogs must find some way to bring home the bacon in the low hurdles, the mile relay or the mile run, if they are to match points with Charleston, the tournament favorite.

Boardmen will be out to break the 120 high hurdles record set by Weakley of Charleston, in 1956.

The Bulldogs hold five records in the Conference with George Woods, now great track star for SIU holding two of the records with a 56'1" toss in the Shot Put event and a 148' sling in the Discus.

Activity this afternoon will begin at 1 p.m. at the Charleston high school field.

Mays Collects Four Hits, Closing In On Two All-Time League Records

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wondrous Willie crashed four hits — including his third home run of the young season — as the San Francisco Giants outlasted Durocher's Chicago Cubs 11-10 Tuesday for their sixth victory in seven games.

The home run — 508th of Mays' 15-year career - left him three short of Ott, the late Giants slugger and National League record-holder. Mays, who belted 52 homers last year, should pass Ott, as well as Ted Williams, 521, and Jimmy Foxx, 534, this season. That would put him in the No. 2 spot on the all-time list behind Babe Ruth's 714 total.

All three of Willie's 1966 blasts have come off Chicago pitchers and two have helped beat Durocher, his former manager and biggest booster. Mays homered in the Giants' 9-1 season-opening victory over the Cubs at San Francisco last week before spoiling Durocher's Chicago debut Tuesday.

The Cubs have dropped three of four to San Francisco and six of seven over - all.

The Giants paraded eight pitchers against the Cubs-tying a league record—before Bob Bolin got the last out with the bases loaded in the ninth. Trailing 9-8 in the eighth, San Francisco struck for the runs--one on Mays' third single and two on Don Landrum's two-out double—to pull it out.

The Pirates rocked Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis and two successors for 17 hits, Donn Clendenon leading the way with four singles. Winning pitcher Steve Blass, meanwhile, scattered seven hits, including rookie Tommy Helms' first major league homer. Blass also snapped Vada Pinson's carry-over hitting streak at 31 games.

Drysdale, making his second start for the Dodgers, departed in the middle of Houston's four-run fifth inning uprising that erased a 5-2 Los Angeles lead. Jim Wynn applied the clincher with a two-run homer off reliever Bob Miller in the eighth.

Atlanta starter Wade Blasingame keyed a two-run rally in the third inning with a bunt single and reliever Clay Carroll checked Philadelphia on one hit over the last five innings. Blasingame's safe bunt, singles by Gary Geiger and Ferlipe Alou, a force play and Dick Groat's throwing error produced the deciding runs in the third.

BASEBALL NOTES

The first confrontation between Charley Smith and Ken Boyer against their old clubs amounted to a Mexican standoff.

True, Boyer clouted a home run in the sixth for the Mets' final run, but he was charged with the game's two errors. However, they didn't figure in the St. Louis scoring.

Smith, on the other hand, may have saved the Cardinals with his glove. With Mets on first and third in the first inning, he speared Jim Hickman's liner with a diving back-handed grab over the bag.

The ex-Met third baseman also singled in the fourth, but his average "dropped" to .480. Cleon Jones deprived Smith of a double or triple with an over-the-shoulder grab of his second-inning smash.

Losing pitcher Jack Fisher is working on a ten-game tailspin. He lost his last eight decision in '65, then last Friday to Atlanta and again Tuesday. Fat Jack hasn't won since August of 1965 when he defeated the Red Birds, 6-2.

In contrast, Bob Gibson will shoot for his second victory in Wednesday's series wind-up. A victory could give the Birds an over-.500 trip since they were 1-2 at Pittsburgh. Gibson conquered the Mets five times last year, and he'll draw a former Cardinal farm hand, Jack Hamilton, in the 1 o'clock event.

Dick Stuart was forced to leave on his first time at-bat when he aggravated a rib injury swinging at a pitch. Ed Kranepool subbed for him and struck out. Kranepool struck out the next three times, too.

Bulldog Golfers Win Over Kennett

The Sikeston Bulldogs golf team defeated Kennett yesterday in a four round meet. Zimmerman, Miles, Covey and Meyer played for Kennett with Zimmerman on the low end, shooting a 48, Mitchell, with a 55, and Miles and Covey with 48, and 40. Charles Atchison fired the low number of strokes for Sikeston with a 40. Ned Matthews was next with a 42, followed by Charles Stamp with a 43. David Whiteaker was on the high end with a 46. Sikeston totaled 171 strokes to Kennett's 199, beating them by 18 strokes.

Sikeston's tennis team was not so lucky, as Kennett beat them 5-0. Brett Baker beat Sikeston's Terry Burke 6-1 and 6-0. Jim Jackson beat Dean Childers 6-1 and 6-1, and in the final singles Bruce Baker beat Wythe Miller 8-6 and 6-1. Though Sikeston won no matches, Wythe Miller gave Baker quite a fight in his first match with him. In doubles the Baker Brothers beat Dean Childers and Terry Burke 6-1 and 6-0. Billy Wayne Dickerson and Henry Lippert were defeated by Hayes and Hancock of Kennett 6-0 and 6-2. In two exhibition matches Joe Browning of Kennett beat Bradbury Crumpecker 8-5. In the exhibition of doubles Dickerson and Lippert were defeated by Kennett's Jim and Bill Green 8-2. The next home tennis matches will be at the high school courts with Cape this Saturday at 10 a.m.

Tomorrow Charleston will host a Scott - Mississippi invitational track meet. Sikeston's only tough competition should be Charleston and the results could go either way.

McCarver Paces Cards With Triple

Tim McCarver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Athletics returned home Tuesday night for the first time this season and edged the defending American League champion Minnesota twins, 3-2, for their first victory of the season.

The St. Louis Cardinals stopped the New York Mets 5-2, on a four-man, fifth-inning outburst capped by catcher Tim McCarver's bases - loaded triple.

Kansas City, now 1-5, won behind the pitching of rookie Chuck Dobson and former bonus baby Lew Krausse, who combined for a six-hitter against the Twins.

Dobson allowed five hits and was replaced by Krausse when he walked in the second Minnesota run with two outs in the sixth. Krausse got Zoilo Versalles on a drive to center.

The A's scored two unearned runs with the help of Tonly Oliva who dropped two fly balls in right field. Oliva slipped on Tartabull's fly in the first inning and tartabull later scored on Camilio Pascual's balk. Oliva then dropped Dobson's fly after singles by Dick Green and Ken Suarez in the second.

St. Louis' other run came in the sixth on George Kernek's triple and Jerry Buchek's sacrifice fly.

The Mets scored in the third when Cleon Jones and Ron Hunt singled and Jones running with the pitch, raced home when Javier hesitated after taking the throw from the outfield.

Ex-Cardinal Ken Boyer homered in the sixth for New York. He also committed two errors in his first league game against his former teammates.

Righthander Bob Gibson, 1-0, this year, is scheduled to pitch today against New York righthander Jack Hamilton, also 1-0.

Celtics Win, Games Move To Los Angeles

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics move on to Los Angeles for a meeting with the Lakers tonight in a determined bid to regain the edge in quest of an eighth straight National Basketball Association championship.

The Celtics evened the best-of-seven title series 1-1, overpowering the Lakers 129-109 with a sharp-shooting attack and a tight defense Tuesday night before a sellout crowd of 13,909 at the Garden.

"I'm not happy yet," Boston Coach Red Auerbach said. "They still have an edge on us because the next two games are in Los Angeles. And we're not going to be deluded into thinking things are going to be easy out there."

The Celtics, who blew an 18-point lead and lost 133-129 in overtime in the opener, took the cue from Auerbach, but hopes were high.

"We've got to get one, but we want both," high-scoring John Havlicek said. "We beat them twice on one trip out there during the regular season, so we have a good chance of doing it again."

Larry Siegfried, who scored 16 of his 20 points in 8½ minutes of the second period as Boston roared to a 71-47 halftime lead, called the Celtics' defense the key in the Los Angeles games tonight and Friday.

Los Angeles Coach Fred Schaus was an angry man after the Lakers' whipping. He refused to talk to writers, claiming he was unhappy about stories written after the first game in which the Celtics alleged poor officiating.

The Lakers' Jerry West and Elgin Baylor were held to 18 and 13 points, respectively, after combining for 77 in the opener.

Cindermen In Conference Meet At Charleston

The Bulldogs dash runners have been showing great improvement over the last few meets and should be up to their top form.

This afternoon the cindermen travel to Charleston for the County meet with Charleston, Scott Central, Scott City, and then play host Saturday to the North Conference, with activities getting started at 10 a.m.

The Bulldogs are hampered by the lack of endurance men who can run the long races in winning fashion. The Dogs must find some way to bring home the bacon in the low hurdles, the mile relay or the mile run, if they are to match points with Charleston, the tournament favorite.

Boardmen will be out to break the 120 high hurdles record set by Weakley of Charleston, in 1956.

The Bulldogs hold five records in the Conference with George Woods, now great track star for SIU holding two of the records with a 56'1" toss in the Shot Put event and a 148' sling in the Discus.

Activity this afternoon will begin at 1 p.m. at the Charleston high school field.

Bulldog Golfers Win Over Kennett

The Sikeston Bulldogs golf team defeated Kennett yesterday in a four round meet. Zimmerman, Miles, Covey and Meyer played for Kennett with Zimmerman on the low end, shooting a 48, Mitchell, with a 55, and Miles and Covey with 48, and 40. Charles Atchison fired the low number of strokes for Sikeston with a 40. Ned Matthews was next with a 42, followed by Charles Stamp with a 43. David Whiteaker was on the high end with a 46. Sikeston totaled 171 strokes to Kennett's 199, beating them by 18 strokes.

Sikeston's tennis team was not so lucky, as Kennett beat them 5-0. Brett Baker beat Sikeston's Terry Burke 6-1 and 6-0. Jim Jackson beat Dean Childers 6-1 and 6-1, and in the final singles Bruce Baker beat Wythe Miller 8-6 and 6-1. Though Sikeston won no matches, Wythe Miller gave Baker quite a fight in his first match with him. In doubles the Baker Brothers beat Dean Childers and Terry Burke 6-1 and 6-0. Billy Wayne Dickerson and Henry Lippert were defeated by Hayes and Hancock of Kennett 6-0 and 6-2. In two exhibition matches Joe Browning of Kennett beat Bradbury Crumpecker 8-5. In the exhibition of doubles Dickerson and Lippert were defeated by Kennett's Jim and Bill Green 8-2. The next home tennis matches will be at the high school courts with Cape this Saturday at 10 a.m.

Tomorrow Charleston will host a Scott - Mississippi invitational track meet. Sikeston's only tough competition should be Charleston and the results could go either way.

Relief for night-backache lets you sleep again

Sometimes backache comes like a thief in the night, "steals" away your sleep, then robs you of energy all the next day. When the cause is overwork or just the daily strain of exertion or tension, that's the time to try Doan's Pills for speedy relief. Millions have found Doan's pain-relieving action often brings welcome relief from this nagging night-backache, headache or muscular pain in the night.

Then, too, unwise eating or drinking may be the cause of minor yet annoying bladder irritation. Doan's Pills often help to bring prompt relief in two ways: first, their soothing effect on bladder irritation. And, second, their mild diuretic action tending to increase output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

Keep Doan's Pills handy. Millions have relied on Doan's for over sixty years. And for your convenience, get the large size.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Washington a sudden burst of words sometimes has a new and sunny and even hopeful look, like fresh flowers ready to bloom.

Then suddenly you remember something, something that's been said, and the new words lose their newness, hope looks less real, the bloom seems a little jaded, and you begin to fear what was sunny was in your imagination.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposed Monday with the best of intentions that Japan or Burma take the lead in bringing about a "direct confrontation across a peace table" of the United States, China, North Viet Nam and "essential" elements from South Viet Nam.

It was a hopeful thought.

It was followed up by the Johnson administration which Tuesday invited Burma, Japan or other Asian countries to take what initiative they see fit to help arrange a Viet Nam peace conference. The State Department heartily endorsed Mansfield's proposal. But—

The chance that North Viet Nam or Red China would act on Mansfield's idea doesn't look any more likely now, of course, than it did earlier this year when for weeks President Johnson stopped the bombing of North Viet Nam and worked hard to get peace talks going.

In fact, there is probably less reason to think Red China and North Viet Nam would want peace now than then, and not only because of the turmoil inside South Viet Nam.

For, while Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, were both endorsing Mansfield's suggestion for getting Peking to talk peace, both were laying down tough conditions for dealing with Red China or letting her into the United Nations.

Over the weekend, Rusk's testimony given in closed session before a congressional committee was released, and indicated he didn't expect Red China to abandon its aggressive policy for a generation and that this country would try to stop Peking's aggression whenever it was attempted.

In his 10-pointed policy for dealing with the Red Chinese he did include some suggestions for trying to improve relations. The United States this month made a try at this. It invited Red China to send some of its scientists and scholars to American universities. The Red Chinese quickly responded with what they thought of this. They called it a fraud.

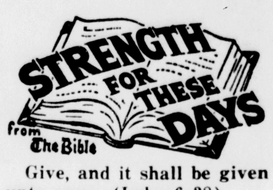
So all that Rusk said, and he went to great length to say it, and what the Chinese said briefly, was hardly conducive, or a good preliminary, to peace talks on Viet Nam.

And Tuesday Goldberg listed four minimum conditions for permitting Red China to get into the United Nations, while saying the United States would oppose membership for her this year as in all previous years.

The Goldberg conditions would mean Red China, in effect, would have to abandon her present positions. (And that's not likely, any time soon.)

These were the Goldberg conditions: Red China would have to give up her demand that American - backed Nationalist China must be thrown out of the United Nations; she must give up her demand for U.N. apology for helping South Korea in the Korean war; she must give up her demand for revision of the U.N. Charter; she must agree to abide by the U.N. Charter requiring peaceful settlement of disputes.

With Rusk and Goldberg sounding off on Red China like that—just at the moment the Johnson administration is wistfully embracing the Mansfield suggestion which wistfully talked of a peace conference with Red China -- seems to stretch the imagination just a little too much.



Give, and it shall be given unto you.—(Luke 6:38)

When we seem to have a lack in our life it may be that our real need is to give. We may think that we would gladly give if we had more supply. But regardless of how limited we seem to be, there is always something we can give. As we act in faith and use what we have, we set into action the increasing multiplying power of God.

Peace Hopes for Viet Nam Fade

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Washington a sudden burst of words sometimes has a new and sunny and even hopeful look, like fresh flowers ready to bloom.

Then suddenly you remember something, something that's been said, and the new words lose their newness, hope looks less real, the bloom seems a little jaded, and you begin to fear what was sunny was in your imagination.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposed Monday with the best of intentions that Japan or Burma take the lead in bringing about a "direct confrontation across a peace table" of the United States, China, North Viet Nam and "essential" elements from South Viet Nam.

It was a hopeful thought.

It was followed up by the Johnson administration which Tuesday invited Burma, Japan or other Asian countries to take what initiative they see fit to help arrange a Viet Nam peace conference. The State Department heartily endorsed Mansfield's proposal. But—

The chance that North Viet Nam or Red China would act on Mansfield's idea doesn't look any more likely now, of course, than it did earlier this year when for weeks President Johnson stopped the bombing of North Viet Nam and worked hard to get peace talks going.

In fact, there is probably less reason to think Red China and North Viet Nam would want peace now than then, and not only because of the turmoil inside South Viet Nam.

For, while Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, were both endorsing Mansfield's suggestion for getting Peking to talk peace, both were laying down tough conditions for dealing with Red China or letting her into the United Nations.

Over the weekend, Rusk's testimony given in closed session before a congressional committee was released, and indicated he didn't expect Red China to abandon its aggressive policy for a generation and that this country would try to stop Peking's aggression whenever it was attempted.

In his 10-pointed policy for dealing with the Red Chinese he did include some suggestions for trying to improve relations. The United States this month made a try at this. It invited Red China to send some of its scientists and scholars to American universities. The Red Chinese quickly responded with what they thought of this. They called it a fraud.

So all that Rusk said, and he went to great length to say it, and what the Chinese said briefly, was hardly conducive, or a good preliminary, to peace talks on Viet Nam.

And Tuesday Goldberg listed four minimum conditions for permitting Red China to get into the United Nations, while saying the United States would oppose membership for her this year as in all previous years.

The Goldberg conditions would mean Red China, in effect, would have to abandon her present positions. (And that's not likely, any time soon.)

These were the Goldberg conditions: Red China would have to give up her demand that American - backed Nationalist China must be thrown out of the United Nations; she must give up her demand for U.N. apology for helping South Korea in the Korean war; she must give up her demand for revision of the U.N. Charter; she must agree to abide by the U.N. Charter requiring peaceful settlement of disputes.

With Rusk and Goldberg sounding off on Red China like that—just at the moment the Johnson administration is wistfully embracing the Mansfield suggestion which wistfully talked of a peace conference with Red China -- seems to stretch the imagination just a little too much.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS From The Bible

Give, and it shall be given unto you.—(Luke 6:38)

When we seem to have a lack in our life it may be that our real need is to give. We may think that we would gladly give if we had more supply. But regardless of how limited we seem to be, there is always something we can give. As we act in faith and use what we have, we set into action the increasing multiplying power of God.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Morris, 417 Kingshighway, Sikeston, are shown as they registered April 17 for a three-day convention for State Farm Insurance agents at the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis.

In a series of meetings and panel discussions, more than 110 agents, managers and wives from Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and North and South Dakota were briefed on company plans and current operating results.

Among convention highlights were award ceremonies for those with exceptional insurance production, an address by President Edward B. Rust, a special luncheon for the ladies and a banquet.

Guidelines Have Some Value

By JOHN T. CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In his economic message early this year President Johnson called stability of costs and prices "perhaps our most serious economic challenge in 1966."

He told Congress that "only if inflation can be avoided will prosperity be sustainable."

The weapons that could be used to challenge this threat to national prosperity include monetary restraints (on the availability of money and credit) and fiscal measures (government taxing and spending).

The Johnson administration is placing heavy reliance on another weapon: guideposts, or standards that tie wage and price increases to the average annual increase in productivity.

The chief defense of guideposts, then, is that they help fight a patriotic battle for national prosperity. Inflation robs individuals on fixed incomes, such as the retired. It makes American goods less competitive.

Roger Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel and a critic of guideposts, admits they can have some anti-inflation value. "There is no doubt," he said, "that for a limited period they can and do hold down the lid on prices."

The administration also can argue that guidelines actually represent restraint, that they are an implement of moderation at a time when some economists have suggested rigid anti-inflation controls.

The guideposts also have virtues that more rigid sanctions might lack. The Council of Economic Advisers can apply these standards directly and quickly. They can enforce them by means ranging from persuasion to power. Amid a sometimes cumbersome bureaucracy of hazy terminology, guideposts are agile, direct and to the point.

The guideposts also can be defended for their educational value in providing both sides of the business-labor bargaining table with an understanding of the needs of a noninflationary economy.

They have a publicity value — even when not applied — that serves to subdue the urge of manufacturers and workers to attempt inflationary price or wage increases.

Despite the fact that guideposts were never legislated, the Administration does have legal responsibility for sustaining a non-inflationary economy.

This responsibility comes from the Employment Act of 1946 which established the federal responsibility for determining targets and policies for "maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

Guideposts are an implement of this responsibility.

The act itself is perhaps a reflection of the great economic experimentation that has occurred in recent decades, much of it from the works of John Maynard Keynes, a British economist, who in the 1930s advocated the use of government spending and taxing to manage the economy.

Concurrent with the so-called new economics has come a great sense of national goals, chief of which is economic security for everyone.

Writing earlier this year, Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor said that the spirit of 1920 might have produced the slogan "The business of America is business," but that now it might be rewritten to, "The business of America is America."

In the end, the strongest argument that can be offered now for guideposts is that they are meant to assure a continuation of six years of unprecedented prosperity.

Price Tag on Marines' Heads

The villagers have grown to love them.

There are 10 of them, all volunteers. They are nine U.S. Marines and a Navy corpsman.

Their mission is to train 15 local village militiamen to fight, and to help protect the villages from the Viet Cong. This is part of the Marine pacification program, in three Marine enclaves — Da Nang, Chu Lai and Hue Phu Bai.

The 10 live dangerously. Five-man patrols are conducted around the clock. Their area of responsibility is 35 square miles bordering a river 45 miles south of Communist North Viet Nam's border. The other side of the river is Viet Cong controlled.

The Marines' home is a Z-shaped bamboo-thatched hut located near the edge of the village. They have no electricity. Briefings at night are by candlelight. Their only defense — outside of their rifles — are hundreds of sharply pointed bamboo stakes six feet high that form a perimeter around the camp.

The Viet Cong have placed a price tag of 10,000 piasters — about $135 — on each Marine's head — dead or alive. But the villagers have been won over by the Marines.

One of the prettiest girls in the hamlet who had the longest and most beautiful black hair was seen recently with her hair cut short. When Pfc. Hunter Moore of Alexandria, Va., who acts as an interpreter, asked the girl why she had her hair cut, she replied: "Now I look like Jackie Kennedy."

As Sgt. Thomas Cleary, 23, of Los Angeles, commander of the squad, put it: "If any Viet Cong were within 1,000 yards of the village, we would have many of the villagers at our gate yelling, 'VC! VC!'"

Recently, when the Marines were on patrol, the Viet Cong moved in and attacked the village headquarters. The patrol heard the shooting and returned in time to beat off the attackers.

But still, the men have one big complaint: "There just isn't enough action.

There may be soon, though. The rice harvest is due next month. The Viet Cong are hungry and need to replenish their rice. They will have to come down from the hills into the rich valleys to get it.

Iturbi Full of Vigor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jose Iturbi's reflections at 70:

"How do I feel? No different. It is like looking at the sun. You see it in the sky, and it does not appear to be moving. But if you go away and come back to look at it, you can see that it has moved. And then the sun sets, and you know for sure that it has moved."

Iturbi at 70 is far from the sunset of his years. Despite a flu attack that had prompted him to cancel several concerts, the pianist-conductor appeared for an interview in his Beverly Hills home with his usual vigor.

"Physical condition means a great deal in piano playing; so much of it is muscular. That's why I have always prided myself in remaining in top shape," he said.

Such a philosophy has preserved his position as one of the top attractions of the concert world for more than four decades. His achievements will be saluted next month by a 70th birthday concert with the Los Angeles Music Festival, which is celebrating its 20th year at UCLA.

In addition, Iturbi will be displaying his muscular style at the keyboard and on the podium in concert halls all over the world.

"I am a great believer in air travel," he remarked. "I have piloted my own plane, and I like nothing better than to be setting out in a jet for a far-off concert. My dog, whom I love, is now 8½ years old — my age! — and he has accompanied me on 42 trips across the Atlantic, not to mention flights to South Africa, South America and wherever."

He and his dog have slowed their pace, he admitted. From a one-time high of 192 concerts in one year, the Spanish-born musician has dropped to 50 to 60, and that's the way he would like to keep his schedule.

His life at home, as on the road, permits little leisure. His passion for condition dictates a rigorous schedule of exercise, particularly at the punching bag. Piano practice is a never-ending discipline.

"I work on technique for an hour and a half — two hours," he said. "Then I take up the work that is current. That can mean two-three hours — whatever is required." He is constantly adding new works to his repertoire.

How long will he continue to play?

"I will play only as long as I feel I can play. In that regard I have an artistic conscience."

PROPOSED REDWOOD PRESERVE—An administration proposal awaiting congressional action would create a new national park along the Pacific coast in California's northernmost counties to preserve redwood stands, containing some trees up to 2,000 years old. The proposed park, in two sections, would total 45,000 acres. There already is a state redwood park, Prairie Creek, in the area. A conservation organization, the Sierra Club, proposes an even more inclusive park, outlined on Newsmap.

'We are Fighting for More Than Our Own Skins'

EDITOR'S NOTE -- It was now Wednesday and the scuttlebutt said: Only two more days and then it's hit the Viet Cong. For Young Clark Richie it was a day of summing up: "We are fighting for more than our own skins." The following is the story of the third of five agonizing days in the lift of a fighting American soldier in Viet Nam.

CU CHI, South Viet Nam AP -- Propaganda loudspeakers blared in Vietnamese toward the jungled plantation where the Viet Cong was fortified in decades-old tunnels and trenches: "Give up, you are doomed. Turn yourself in, you won't be harmed."

On the perimeter of an American camp, atop his bunker just a rifle shop from the enemy plantation, a young soldier sat this Wednesday night huddled over a small transistor radio.

He was near Cu Chai, a town 20 miles northeast of Saigon in the heart of a Communist stronghold. The soldier and the others of the 2nd Brigade, 25th Division had battled for every yard in establishing this base camp.

In the dark, the chatter of the propaganda broadcasts made a strange background for the voice coming over the little radio. It was the President of the United States.

His words faded from time to time and blasts from American artillery drowned them out every few minutes.

Clark Richie, 22, of Jay Okla., put his ear next to the radio. He caught the President saying the United States stands for the self-determination of all people --that is why Americans are in Viet Nam.

Johnson quoted other presidents -- Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy -- and said America had made promises. He praised the American fighting and sacrificing his youth, and time, and maybe his life in Viet Nam.

Richie, unmarried, with a 68-year-old widowed mother and and 18-year-old girl friend at home, lay silent when the speech ended. Earlier this week he had said he figured America was here because if it didn't fight in Viet Nam now it would someday have to fight closer to home.

But with shells screaming overhead, loudspeakers calling, and the echo of Johnson's words in his head, he thought it over.

"It makes you sorta proud," he said.

"It makes me think we are fighting for more than our own skins." He remembered the dark - eyed little girls he had instructed in their first English lesson the day before at Cu Chi. The children had looked up at the tall, red-haired Oklahoman and repeated after him: "Fine thank you. How are you."

"I guess we're fighting for them, too," Richie said.

"But Charlie, as the GIs call the Viet Cong, I can't figure him. He has hardly anything, but he makes something out of everything -- from our empty C-ration cans to bamboo.

"I hope -- I know -- we're better," he continued, "but when you see the VC die as hard as they do it's tough to understand. I'm amazed they still are effective soldiers."

Richie had spent six months as a helicopter gunner in Viet Nam last year, but said ground fighting is "much rougher, messy."

At dawn this same Wednesday, the guerrillas had opened up on the 1st Battalion about 200 yards left of Richie and his three buddies in Bunker 14 of B company, 2nd Battalion.

Richie was standing guard at the bunker then, while the others ate breakfast at the mess area. He passed up the hot breakfast. The feature was scrambled powdered eggs. He didn't like them so he opened a can of C-rations -- "beef spiced with juices with water added" it said on the tin.

As the sun behind them, the men washed and shaved under the bamboo that shrouded the bunker. It was starting to be uncomfortably warm by 9 o'clock.

The heat reached its near--100 peak about 2:30. The men grumbled about the dust and ants and mosquitoes. But most talk was about the operation coming up against the Viet Cong. It appeared set for Friday, two days away, according to the best information they could get. Official word was due Thursday.

Four Score and 7

Easter 1966 came between the 7th and 11th of the month.

11 left after the betrayal and last supper.

7 last words of Christ.

After the Resurrection He appeared unto Mary Magdalene who had been possessed of the 7 devils.

Jesus later appeared unto the 7 then to the 11.

On the 11th the first giant stone weighing 22000 los. was placed for the wall at grave of John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Kennedy surely must have idolized Lincoln and this helped to make him President.

Both Lincoln and Kennedy were concerned with civil rights.

Lincoln was elected in 1860 and Kennedy in 1960.

Both were slain on Friday.

Both were shot in the presence of their wives.

Their successors both named Johnson were Southerners; both were Democrats and both had served in the United States Senate.

Andrew Johnson was born in 1808; L. Johnson 1908.

John Wilkes Booth was born in 1839 and Harvey Oswald was born in 1939.

Both Booth and Oswald were Southerners and both supported causes unpopular with most citizens.

Both Booth and Oswald were murdered before their trials could be arranged.

Lincoln's secretary whose name was Kennedy urged him not to go to the theater and Kennedy's whose name was Lincoln advised him not to go to Dallas.

Both Lincoln and Kennedy had premonition of untimely death.

Whether it was true worship or was a smart political move, Lincoln was Kennedy's stepping stone to the White House.

In his proclamation on Naval quarantine of Cuba Kennedy made special notiations of the time 7:06 p.m. and at 7:07 p.m. it was history.

He had outlined 7 steps to be taken in the Cuban situation.

This was the 187th year of U. S. independence. Invasion of Bay of Pigs April 17th.

1100 prisoners held for ransom

The day before President Kennedy's last visit thousands of copies of a poster with the caption "Wanted for Treason" were circulated in Dallas. This anonymous handbill carried front and side view photographs of the President and 7 enumerated charges.

The fatal shot was fired from the 6th story window of a 7 story building at 411 Elm St. A committee of 7 men were appointed to investigate.

During the 20th century the U. S. has had 11 elected Presidents 7 Republican and 4 Democrats, President Kennedy was the 11th. President Johnson was the 4th president in 11 years.

Lincolns 2nd inaugural speech and the Gettysburg address are the top gems of all modern literature and have been classed as the greatest since the 23rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer.

7 horses in the largest military funeral in history-- the 6 white horses and the riderless black trailing carried the body of another American Martyr to its lasting place.

Washington Report

Sen. Stuart Symington

Having just returned from a trip to Europe over the Easter recess, I am now in the process of formulating a report which will be presented to the Chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee and Foreign Relations Committee.

The primary purpose of this trip was to represent the Senate at the 18-Nation Disarmament Conference now going on in Geneva. In addition I spent some time in Germany, France and England, discussing with military and civilian representatives the problems with respect to the future of NATO that have been raised as a result of recent decisions made by General De-Gaulle.

Senate and House Appropriations subcommittees recently completed hearings on the budget request of $400 million for the Manpower Development and Training Program in fiscal 1967. While this would continue the present level of appropriations for this program, additional funds from non-federal sources would increase total expenditures since the federal share of costs is scheduled to be reduced to 90 per cent in July.

Originated in 1962, the Manpower Development and Training Program serves the worthwhile purpose of providing the unemployed and underemployed with skills needed for jobs - a meaningful contribution to the individuals involved as well as in terms of strengthening the economy of the community, State and nation.

Under the program, trainees are selected primarily from among persons who have had low skill levels and long periods of unemployment. Seventy-four per cent of those who have completed training are now in jobs.

The Department of Labor reports that MDTA graduates placed into jobs repay the cost of their training within an average five years -- in reduced welfare or unemployment benefits, increased earning capacity within the private economy, and direct tax returns to State and Federal Governments.

Average cost per trainee for the projects approved in Missouri this year is $1,800. Seventy-two percent of trainees receive a basic payment; for youths this is $20 a week; and for adults, $35 per week, the equivalent of Missouri unemployment compensation. It is interesting to note that some 23 percent of Missouri trainees had been recipients of unemployment compensation or public assistance.

In the past ten months, 74 job-training classes have been approved in Missouri for 3,256 persons to be trained in occupations for which there is a demand. Twenty - six fields of work are involved. The projects are developed by and carried out under the direction of the Missouri division of Employment Security and Vocational Education in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Labors and of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In addition to institutional training, the Department of Labor is now increasingly developing on-the-job training programs. Within this past month, eight contracts have been signed with firms and organizations in Kansas City, Rock Port, Chillicothe and Warrensburg for on-the-job training of some 350 persons.

All Missourians interested in fish and wildlife and conservation work in our State as well as nationally will be pleased to note that Dan Saults, native of Knob Noster, Missouri, and for many years a member of the Missouri Conservation Commission and editor of the Missouri Conservationist magazine, has been appointed Chief of the Office of Conservation Education within the Department of Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Since 1964, Saults has been in Washington as Chief of Information in the Bureau of Land Management. He enjoys a well-merited national reputation among conservationists and Missourians will wish him well in his new work.

Training for Border Patrol Not Easy

Editors Note -- The course is 14 weeks and it makes boot camp look easy. Although thousands apply, only 1 per cent are chosen. This is the Border Patrol, guarding America's frontiers, and the training center is in a place where trainees can practice what they are taught.

PORT ISABEL, Tex. AP -- They come from as far away as Maine and Washington. Some are ex-policemen, others have never held a gun.

But after 14 weeks they have a lot in common -- a handy knowledge of Spanish, a head full of law and the legend-backed badge of a border patrolman.

They are drawn to the southern tip of Texas by the U. S. Border Patrol Academy, just a few miles from the Texas-Mexico boundary.

Each year the academy adds a handpicked group of men to the 1,500-man force charged with preventing illegal entry into the United States.

The campus is an air base the Navy abandoned when it cut back pilot training. It is on the Gulf of Mexico near the resort and fishing community of Port Isabel.

Trainees learn Spanish in 14 weeks.

Students become crack pistol shots, but they also learn unarmed self-defense. They study law, first aid, use of vehicles, radio procedures, security, smuggling control, history, ethics, tracking, public relations and other skills.

"We have a rough course here," says Eager. "The men spend seven hours a day in classrooms, have an hour of physical training a day, spend several hours a night on homework, and then on weekends they're assigned to field duty with regular border patrolmen.

"We accept less than 1 per cent of the men who take tests all over the nation.

"We have people from all over the world come here to study our training technique -- from almost every free country in the world, particularly from Central and South America," he said.

The class started with 90 men. Three or four dropped out, Eager said, because of "wife and family situations. One wanted his old job back, where he was making more than the $6,269 yearly paid probationary patrolmen, one was offered the job of police chief in his home town, and one said he just didn't like it."

Prices Bolster Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) —Rising prices are giving an unexpected glow to the economy. Is it the glow of health or of fever?

The three big spenders—consumers, business and government—all have been paying out more dollars. But about a third of their increased outlays is due to higher price tags and only two-thirds represents buying of more units of output.

Still, the rate of increase is larger than at any time since 1950 when consumer panic buying at the outset of the Korean War sent the economy soaring—in terms of dollars if not of health.

The unexpected gain this year hasn't been due to panic buying. It has been due more to affluence. The spenders-consumers, business and government—all have had more dollars to spend.

Consumers have more dollars because there are more jobs this year than last, because many wage scales have risen, and because in 1964 and 1965 federal tax rates were cut with the aim of promoting prosperity and cutting unemployment. It worked. The nagging question now is if it worked too well.

Business has more to spend this year, partly because it too enjoys lower tax rates than a few years back, but mainly because sales and profits have been soaring to record heights.

Government has more to spend because the larger incomes of individuals and corporations have produced big tax collections even at lower rates. And also the government debt has risen, meaning Uncle Sam has borrowed to get the dollars for larger expenditures, both at home and in Viet Nam.

Efforts to curb spending all along the line may check the economy's faster pace a bit in the current April-June quarter.

President Johnson has urged all hands to go slow, to put off some planned outlays, to shun products and services on which prices have been rising faster than the average.

Top business executives have promised to cut back some of their record expansion plans for 1966. The president has asked federal departments and agencies to trim government spending, or at least to postpone some of it. Total consumer spendable income will be clipped somewhat by larger tax withholding from pay checks of those in higher income brackets.

But few expect the rate of the growth in the economy to be chilled much.

Armed Forces

CAMP PENDLETON, CALIF. (FHTNC) -- Marine Private Charles D. Thatcher son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Thatcher of Route 2, Sikeston, Mo., has completed a 12-day training and processing cycle with Staging Battalion at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

This refresher training stresses the principles of small unit tactics, with particular emphasis on the fundamentals of scouting and patrolling, and land navigation.

Day and night tactical maneuvers provide the individual Marine with an opportunity to improve his skill as a combat infantryman.

CAM RANH BAY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- A Vital road in the key supply line of the U.S. Vietnam Army logistics network was re-opened last month after 12 years. Highway 7, from Tuy Hoa to Song Hoa, was the site of the massacre of a French mobile unit in 1954. Combined friendly forces cleared the way to a key air field near Cung Son.

Specialist Four Donald G. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar E. Baker, 205 N. Locust st., Charleston, Mo., took part as a combat construction specialist with Company C, 39th Engineer Battalion, part of the task force from the 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division; 47th Vietnamese Army Regiment; local Civil Defense forces and the 39th.

Using helicopters to "leap frog" along the route, the unit cleared 50 kilometers (some 32 miles) of mine-dotted roads, repaired innumerable roadbreaks, and built several bridge by-passes and a large bridge. Specialist Baker's unit completed the mission in two days.

When they reached their destination, Baker and the other engineers went to work improving the air strip. Meanwhile, back in town, local bus drivers worked all through the night of the break-through, March 23, getting ready to inaugurate the Song Hoa-Tuy Hoa run, discontinued a dozen years ago.

He attended Charleston High School.

Washington Report

Sen. Stuart Symington

Having just returned from a trip to Europe over the Easter recess, I am now in the process of formulating a report which will be presented to the Chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee and Foreign Relations Committee.

The primary purpose of this trip was to represent the Senate at the 18-Nation Disarmament Conference now going on in Geneva. In addition I spent some time in Germany, France and England, discussing with military and civilian representatives the problems with respect to the future of NATO that have been raised as a result of recent decisions made by General DeGaulle.

Senate and House Appropriations subcommittees recently completed hearings on the budget request of $400 million for the Manpower Development and Training Program in fiscal 1967. While this would continue the present level of appropriations for this program, additional funds from non-federal sources would increase total expenditures since the federal share of costs is scheduled to be reduced to 90 per cent in July.

Originated in 1962, the Manpower Development and Training Program serves the worthwhile purpose of providing the unemployed and underemployed with skills needed for jobs - a meaningful contribution to the individuals involved as well as in terms of strengthening the economy of the community, State and nation.

Under the program, trainees are selected primarily from among persons who have had low skill levels and long periods of unemployment. Seventy-four per cent of those who have completed training are now in jobs.

The Department of Labor reports that MDTA graduates placed into jobs repay the cost of their training within an average five years -- in reduced welfare or unemployment benefits, increased earning capacity within the private economy, and direct tax returns to State and Federal Governments.

Average cost per trainee for the projects approved in Missouri this year is $1,800. Seventy-two percent of trainees receive a basic payment; for youths this is $20 a week; and for adults, $35 per week, the equivalent of Missouri unemployment compensation. It is interesting to note that some 23 percent of Missouri trainees had been recipients of unemployment compensation or public assistance.

In the past ten months, 74 job-training classes have been approved in Missouri for 3,256 persons to be trained in occupations for which there is a demand. Twenty - six fields of work are involved. The projects are developed by and carried out under the direction of the Missouri division of Employment Security and Vocational Education in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Labors and of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In addition to institutional training, the Department of Labor is now increasingly developing on-the-job training programs. Within this past month, eight contracts have been signed with firms and organizations in Kansas City, Rock Port, Chillicothe and Warrensburg for on-the-job training of some 350 persons.

All Missourians interested in fish and wildlife and conservation work in our State as well as nationally will be pleased to note that Dan Saults, native of Knob Noster, Missouri, and for many years a member of the Missouri Conservation Commission and editor of the Missouri Conservationist magazine, has been appointed Chief of the Office of Conservation Education within the Department of Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Since 1964, Saults has been in Washington as Chief of Information in the Bureau of Land Management. He enjoys a well-merited national reputation among conservationists and Missourians will wish him well in his new work.

Training for Border Patrol Not Easy

Editors Note -- The course is 14 weeks and it makes boot camp look easy. Although thousands apply, only 1 per cent are chosen. This is the Border Patrol, guarding America's frontiers, and the training center is in a place where trainees can practice what they are taught.

PORT ISABEL, Tex. AP -- They come from as far away as Maine and Washington. Some are ex-policemen, others have never held a gun.

But after 14 weeks they have a lot in common -- a handy knowledge of Spanish, a head full of law and the legend-backed badge of a border patrolman.

They are drawn to the southern tip of Texas by the U. S. Border Patrol Academy, just a few miles from the Texas-Mexico boundary.

Each year the academy adds a handpicked group of men to the 1,500-man force charged with preventing illegal entry into the United States.

The campus is an air base the Navy abandoned when it cut back pilot training. It is on the Gulf of Mexico near the resort and fishing community of Port Isabel.

Trainees learn Spanish in 14 weeks.

Students become crack pistol shots, but they also learn unarmed self-defense. They study law, first aid, use of vehicles, radio procedures, security, smuggling control, history, ethics, tracking, public relations and other skills.

"We have a rough course here," says Eager. "The men spend seven hours a day in classrooms, have an hour of physical training a day, spend several hours a night on homework, and then on weekends they're assigned to field duty with regular border patrolmen.

"We accept less than 1 per cent of the men who take tests all over the nation.

"We have people from all over the world come here to study our training technique -- from almost every free country in the world, particularly from Central and South America," he said.

The class started with 90 men. Three or four dropped out, Eager said, because of "wife and family situations. One wanted his old job back, where he was making more than the $6,269 yearly paid probationary patrolmen, one was offered the job of police chief in his home town, and one said he just didn't like it."

Prices Bolster Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) —Rising prices are giving an unexpected glow to the economy. Is it the glow of health or of fever?

The three big spenders—consumers, business and government—all have been paying out more dollars. But about a third of their increased outlays is due to higher price tags and only two-thirds represents buying of more units of output.

Still, the rate of increase is larger than at any time since 1950 when consumer panic buying at the outset of the Korean War sent the economy soaring—in terms of dollars if not of health.

The unexpected gain this year hasn't been due to panic buying. It has been due more to affluence. The spenders-consumers, business and government—all have had more dollars to spend.

Dexter Youth Held for Series Of Breakins

DEXTER -- A 16-year-old Dexter youth has been arrested and is being held in the Stoddard county jail at Bloomfield in connection with a rash of break-ins reported here.

His name is being withheld by Authorities.

He has allegedly admitted entering the Leffler Lee Service Station, Joe's Cafe, the Shell station (twice), Fred's Liquor Store twice, the Ketch-A-Bite Restaurant and the Western Auto store.

The arrest was made shortly after noon Thursday by Jack Link, Highway Patrolman, Poplar Bluff; Thurmon Thompson, Stoddard County Sheriff's deputy and Clay Baker, Dexter policeman.

Autorities said that the type of break-ins led them to suspect the youth who is on parole after serving a sentence in Boonville. He was sentenced to Boonville from another county, authorities said.

The Prayer

For Today From

The Upper Room

Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. (Hebrews 4:14)

PRAYER: God, our heavenly Father, we thank Thee that Thy love is extended to all Thy children through Jesus Christ our Savior. Help us to accept Thy love, receive Thy salvation, and hold fast our faith through professing and living it. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from an older sister who was unhappy because the second grade teacher told her little brother there was no Santa Claus. The same thing happened to our little boy, only it was the third-grade teacher who robbed OUR youngster of his fantasy.

Our son was terribly unhappy when he came home from school. I turned to the World Book Encyclopedia for help and found it.

Santa Claus WAS a real person. He was the Bishop of Myra, who lived in an ancient town in Turkey around 300 A D. His name was Saint Nicholas. Saint Nicholas was the kindest and most generous Bishop knowr to the world. He started the practice of giving presents to the needy.

The Dutch called him Sinter Klaus and the settlers brought the custom to the new world. The English picked it up from them. So you see, it isn't a lie after all.--MOTHER OF THREE

Dear Mother: Thanks for your lovely letter. I'll tell Virginia when she comes in.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman whose husband is driving her nuts with his self-taught cello screeching has a couple of things going for her. She only has to put up with the racket when he is awake and at home. Then too, there's a chance he might get tired of the cello and quit. I should have it so good.

My husband has been collecting clocks for over 20 years. We have 49 clocks in our house and I can't describe what it is like to live amidst this collection of timepieces. I hear chimes, bells, music, cuckoos and ticking sounds day and night until I think I'll lose my mind.

I never know if the telephone is ringing of if someone is at the door because we have clocks that sound like the door and the phone. I can't use a timer on my stove because we have clocks that sound like that, too.

I'm not writing for advice because I know I must live with my problem and nobody can help me. Thanks for letting me have my say. --HIS WIFE

Dear Wife: Nobody can say YOU don't know time on your hands. Sorry about that pun, Hon.

Dear Ann Landers: My mom and dad bought a new house. The house is costing more money than they had planned on spending. Mom and Dad let my aunt and her boy friend move in because they help with expenses. My aunt's boy friend says his wife won't give him a divorce.

The kids at school know my aunt and this man are not married and it is very embarrassing. I told Mom how I felt and she said the main reason she and Dad bought the house was to improve my social standing and that I am ungrateful.

I was happier when we lived in the old house and I would gladly move back if it meant getting rid of this pair. Am I wrong to feel this way? --HEAD DOWN

Dear Head: You are NOT wrong but I doubt that griping about it will help any.

Make no apologies to your friends. Anyone who has sense knows full well you are not responsible for that shameful set-up.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

30 Attend Cancer Drive

MORLEY -- The Cancer Society of Scott county met Friday night at the Masonic Hall for its crusade kick off dinner served by the women of the lodge. Thirty attended.

Mrs. Billie Burch of Sikeston, county fund campaign chairman, was in charge of the program. Dr. Wendell Weathers of Sikeston, county president, gave a welcome address with John Davis, of Sikeston, giving the invocation.

Mrs. Burch opened the program by presenting all the county workers and the city chairmen of the county who were present.

Those present were John Scarbrough and Dan Limbaugh, campaign co-chairmen for Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. John Engram for Vanduser, Mrs. Ralph Penrose assisted by Mrs. Mert Mirley and Mrs. Richard Golden for Chaffee, Mack Emerson, Mrs. Verneal Carroll and George Dye for Morley.

Emerson announced that the Rotary club voted Wednesday night to give $100 to start the Morley Cancer crusade.

Dr. Thelma Buckthorpe, county service officer, gave a medical report on the effects of a cancer check-up and early detection. She spoke from experience she said as she's had both lung and chest cancer and has survived.

It's unusual to survive two cancer attacks but by early detection it can be done, Dr. Buckthorpe said.

Mrs. Violetta McGee, county education chairman, and Jerry McGee, district representative, showed a film, "The Million Club" starring Ralph Edwards, the 1964 national chairman.

Mrs. Burch told the group that the "C" night drive would be held in most towns on Friday night, April 29, and urged chairmen to try to have their drive on that date. Chairmen should attempt to wind the drives by mid May, she said.

Scarbrough and Limbaugh gave a report on their volunteers. They said Sikeston had been divided into sections and almost every area now has workers and that they were hoping for a great crusade. They said that all business and organization or person wishing to make memorial gifts for friends, who have died with cancer, to mail their checks to either at P.O. Box 201, Sikeston.

Dr. Weathers said that the county workers are Davis, vice president and publicity chairman; Mrs. Charles Green, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Burch, Mrs. Violetta McGee, education chairman; Dr. Buckthorpe, medical service officer and Mrs. Joel Montgomery, cancer prevention study officers.

Pilot Show Is Filler

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It may save money for the producers. It may postpone summer reruns for a week. But it is debatable whether it is wise to broadcast a pilot show made only to convince network executives and advertising agencies that they should order up a whole series after seeing the sample.

One of those samples, "Assault," was shown Tuesday night during the hour that ABC normally devotes to "Combat," and except for the camouflaged helmets, it was hard to tell the difference. "Combat" is a long-playing series about the infantry's bitter battle across France two decades ago. "Assault" proposed to tell the same story about Marines in the South Pacific.

It did not find a sponsor, but it is hard to understand why it failed. It had everything that "Combat" has, including pretty much the same script. All that was necessary was to substitute Japanese for Nazis, add a bit of fake philodendron to Hollywood's backlot underbrush to simulate tropical jungle, and hold the final shootout on a beach instead of around a French cathedral.

The president of NBC News, William McAndrews, Tuesday offered ABC and CBS the opportunity to broadcast its special program, "Lyndon Johnson's Texas." The NBC special, with the President acting as guide part of the time, is scheduled for NBC broadcast May 9. McAndrews said the other networks may broadcast the show then or at a later date.

It was a journalistic scoop for NBC, similar to the time CBS had Mrs. John F. Kennedy lead a television tour of the White House. Both NBC and ABC carried the program.

"The Virginian" will be missing a character next season but "The Fugitive" will be gaining one. Dr. Richard Kimble, the hunted man, after all these lonely seasons will be joined by a son whose existence was never even hinted at before. Lee J. Cobb, who has been playing Judge Garth on "The Virginian," will be replaced by John Dehner, originally set to move onto Shiloh Ranch next season as the new ramrod. Instead, he will be the new owner.

I like the Sikeston Standard because it gives you every kind of information that is available to them.

They have the sales of most department stores and the sale bills of different grocery stores.

I couldn't ask for a better news paper. It has all the facts and is entertaining.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I am sure the residents of Stoddard County would say along with me, that we are losing a very capable representative and trusted friend from the State Legislature.

Mr. Baker's decision not to run for another term puts many of us at a loss. Men like Mr. Baker are very hard to replace.

This letter will express my personal appreciation to him for his fine record in our State Legislature. And for the many kind personal deeds that he has performed for the people of Stoddard County.

May we say thanks Mr. Baker.

Sincerely,

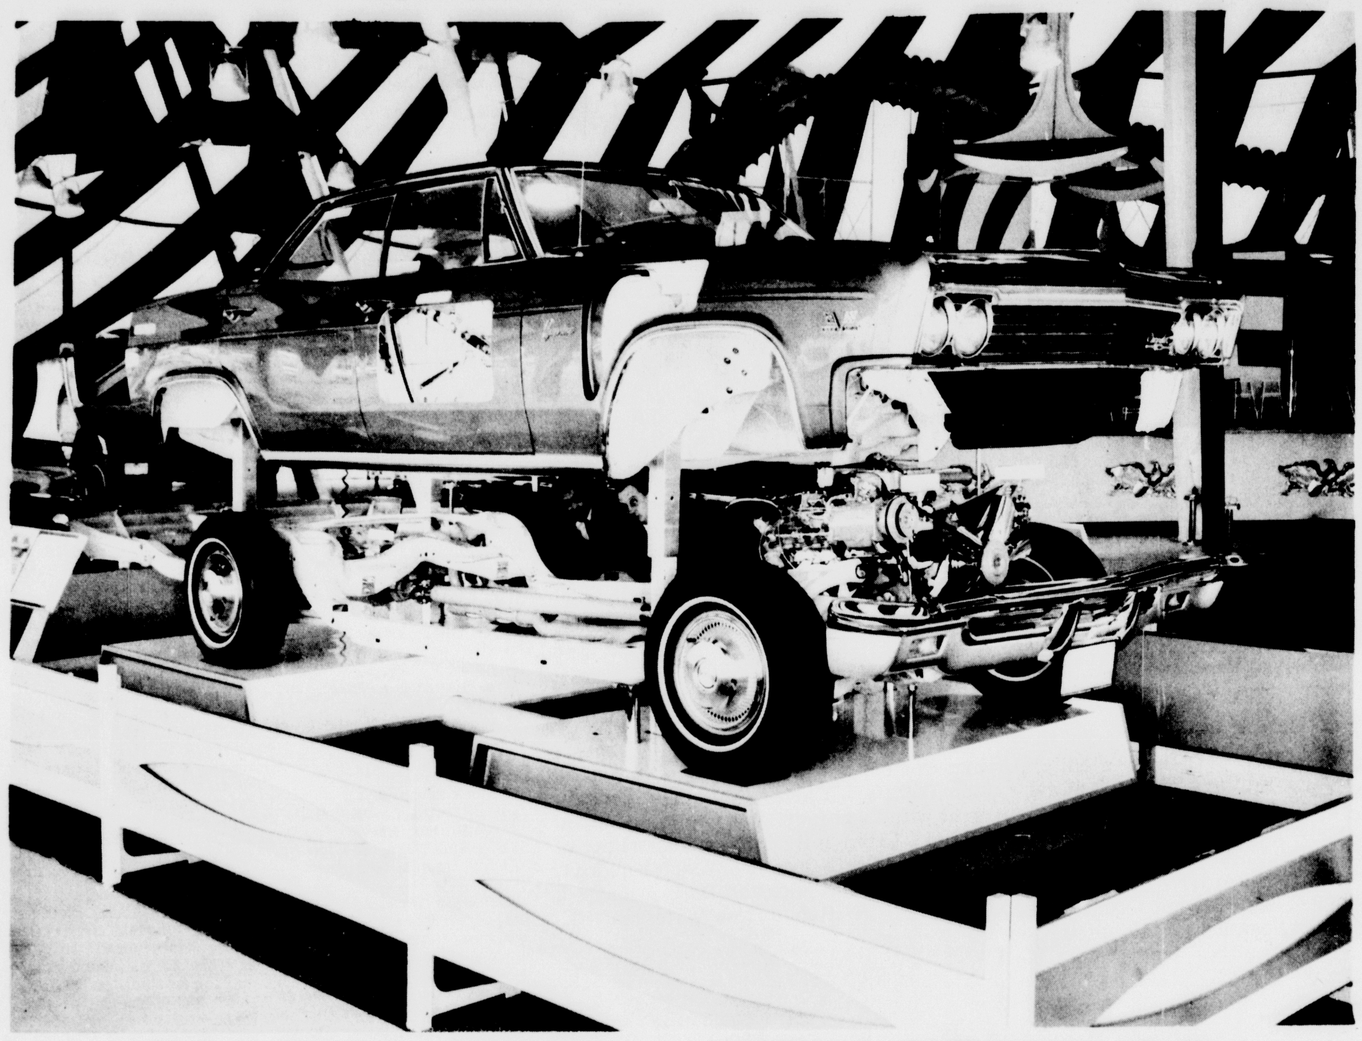
The hereditary theory in the study of criminology, led by Lombroso who held that criminals had common physical peculiarities, was weakened considerably when a 20th century British investigator, Charles Goring, reported finding about as many cases of Lombroso's so-called criminal types among English university students as he did among English convicts.



Everyone at Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet is knee-deep in plans for the big Chevrolet Motorevue Show that will make its debut on Thursday, April 21.

"This show has been packing them in every place it's played," states Garwood and Val Sharp, "and small wonder. There's something for everyone in the family. Interesting and educational automotive displays featuring such items as the Chevrolet Caprice Lift Body, 4-Speed Passenger Car Transmission and a new safety exhibit are just three of many exciting exhibits. Of course, all the exciting new 1966 Chevrolets will be there, too, so everyone can get a close-up look.

Sponsored by Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet, the Motorevue Show will run from April 21 to April 30 at Mitchell-Sharp Chevrolet Co., corner of West Center and Scott Streets, Sikeston.

Eight Men Believe They Have Located Lost Mine

BEND, Tex. AP -- Fifty miles north of President Johnson's ranch, on a rock-choked hill overlooking the Colorado River, eight men think they have found the lost San Saba mine -- legendary bonanza of two centuries ago.

The Spaniards abandoned the mine in 1785, so the story goes, when 2,000 Comanche Indians overan their mission.

Men have searched for the mine ever since.

Now eight men report they have found the ore.

The geologist who spurred the hunt says they found it where Don Bernardo de Miranda said it was: on the Cerro del Almagre -- loosely, the Red Hill.

Miranda, discoverer of the mine, was a lieutenant general of the Spanish Province of Texas in the 18th century. He said the hill was so rich "I guarantee to give to every settler of the Province of Texas a full claim."

Arville Cummins, 45, the geologist, says Miranda was right. The mine may be worth as much as $200 million, he says.

Five dark red boulders once stood where the men think the mine is today. They contrasted sharply with the dull gray dolomite limestone.

"I was curious about them from the very first," says rancher T. S. Lemons Sr., 65, who in 1944 bought 3,300 acres of this rough, remote country, including Red Hill.

A weather-beaten man with bristling gray eyebrows that meet over his long, bent nose, Lemmons said he knew the red boulders had to mean something, "So I brought in some geologists -- some of those smart boys -- to look at it. "They'd look at it and run their hands over it and then go off.

Years passed.

Then in August 1964, Lemons' son, T. S. Lemons Jr., 40, was fishing in the Colorado--almost in the shadow of Red Hill--when he noticed a glint in a rock under water.

He chipped off the shiny part of the rock and put it in his pocket. Some months later he took it to Cummins in Lampasas.

Cummins said the Lemons' rock had gold and sent it to the Colorado Assaying Co. in Denver for an official test.

"It assayed out at $25.90 a ton," he said. "Not really big but worth looking into more."

A five-foot deep hold was dug there last summer. Nothing was found at that depth and the digging was abandoned in favor of digging on Red Hill.

Before they got around to that, however, they found three holes drilled in the limestone wall of a gully on Red Hill.

Finally they came to the dark red boulders on Red Hill. They blasted all but one of them--preserved by the elder Lemons as a momento--and dug where they had been.

At 21 feet it jumped to $29.25 a ton, slightly better than what Lemons found in the river.

The two men decided to form a partnership with two other men and lease the land from Lemons' father, who would get the royalties.

The other two men are Cummins' father, Aaron Cummins, 69, a retired grocer; and R. R. McCoy, 64, Lampasas dirt contractor who had worked with the younger Cummins before.

It took two months just to put a road down the rocky slope to the mine. Then the digging and blasting began again.

Two weeks later, Cummins hit darker ore that assayed at $43.75 a ton.

At 35 feet they hit ore that looked even richer. It was assayed at $467.60 a ton.

The partners have been working from dawn to dusk to get into full production, but have been held back by a series of minor delays.

Scientists estimate that about a million tons of dust from distant space fall on the earth every year. These cosmic particles are so minute that a microscope and special equipment are needed to identify them.

Pilot Show Is Filler

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It may save money for the producers. It may postpone summer reruns for a week. But it is debatable whether it is wise to broadcast a pilot show made only to convince network executives and advertising agencies that they should order up a whole series after seeing the sample.

One of those samples, "Assault," was shown Tuesday night during the hour that ABC normally devotes to "Combat," and except for the camouflaged helmets, it was hard to tell the difference. "Combat" is a long-playing series about the infantry's bitter battle across France two decades ago. "Assault" proposed to tell the same story about Marines in the South Pacific.

It did not find a sponsor, but it is hard to understand why it failed. It had everything that "Combat" has, including pretty much the same script. All that was necessary was to substitute Japanese for Nazis, add a bit of fake philodendron to Hollywood's backlot underbrush to simulate tropical jungle, and hold the final shootout on a beach instead of around a French cathedral.

The president of NBC News, William McAndrews, Tuesday offered ABC and CBS the opportunity to broadcast its special program, "Lyndon Johnson's Texas." The NBC special, with the President acting as guide part of the time, is scheduled for NBC broadcast May 9. McAndrews said the other networks may broadcast the show then or at a later date.

It was a journalistic scoop for NBC, similar to the time CBS had Mrs. John F. Kennedy lead a television tour of the White House. Both NBC and ABC carried the program.

"The Virginian" will be missing a character next season but "The Fugitive" will be gaining one. Dr. Richard Kimble, the hunted man, after all these lonely seasons will be joined by a son whose existence was never even hinted at before. Lee J. Cobb, who has been playing Judge Garth on "The Virginian," will be replaced by John Dehner, originally set to move onto Shiloh Ranch next season as the new ramrod. Instead, he will be the new owner.

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I am sure the residents of Stoddard County would say along with me, that we are losing a very capable representative and trusted friend from the State Legislature.

Mr. Baker's decision not to run for another term puts many of us at a loss. Men like Mr. Baker are very hard to replace.

This letter will express my personal appreciation to him for his fine record in our State Legislature. And for the many kind personal deeds that he has performed for the people of Stoddard County.

May we say thanks Mr. Baker.

The hereditary theory in the study of criminology, led by Lombroso who held that criminals had common physical peculiarities, was weakened considerably when a 20th century British investigator, Charles Goring, reported finding about as many cases of Lombroso's so-called criminal types among English university students as he did among English convicts.

My husband has been collecting clocks for over 20 years. We have 49 clocks in our house and I can't describe what it is like to live amidst this collection of timepieces. I hear chimes, bells, music, cuckoos and ticking sounds day and night until I think I'll lose my mind.

I never know if the telephone is ringing of if someone is at the door because we have clocks that sound like the door and the phone. I can't use a timer on my stove because we have clocks that sound like that, too.

Dear Wife: Nobody can say YOU don't know time on your hands. Sorry about that pun, Hon.

Dear Ann Landers: My mom and dad bought a new house. The house is costing more money than they had planned on spending. Mom and Dad let my aunt and her boy friend move in because they help with expenses. My aunt's boy friend says his wife won't give him a divorce.

The kids at school know my aunt and this man are not married and it is very embarrassing. I told Mom how I felt and she said the main reason she and Dad bought the house was to improve my social standing and that I am ungrateful.

I was happier when we lived in the old house and I would gladly move back if it meant getting rid of this pair. Am I wrong to feel this way? --HEAD DOWN

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from an older sister who was unhappy because the second grade teacher told her little brother there was no Santa Claus. The same thing happened to our little boy, only it was the third-grade teacher who robbed OUR youngster of his fantasy.

Our son was terribly unhappy when he came home from school. I turned to the World Book Encyclopedia for help and found it.

Santa Claus WAS a real person. He was the Bishop of Myra, who lived in an ancient town in Turkey around 300 A D. His name was Saint Nicholas. Saint Nicholas was the kindest and most generous Bishop knowr to the world. He started the practice of giving presents to the needy.

The Dutch called him Sinter Klaus and the settlers brought the custom to the new world. The English picked it up from them. So you see, it isn't a lie after all.--MOTHER OF THREE

Dear Mother: Thanks for your lovely letter. I'll tell Virginia when she comes in.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman whose husband is driving her nuts with his self-taught cello screeching has a couple of things going for her. She only has to put up with the racket when he is awake and at home. Then too, there's a chance he might get tired of the cello and quit. I should have it so good.

Eight Men Believe They Have Located Lost Mine

BEND, Tex. AP -- Fifty miles north of President Johnson's ranch, on a rock-choked hill overlooking the Colorado River, eight men think they have found the lost San Saba mine -- legendary bonanza of two centuries ago.

The Spaniards abandoned the mine in 1785, so the story goes, when 2,000 Comanche Indians overan their mission.

Men have searched for the mine ever since.

Now eight men report they have found the ore.

The geologist who spurred the hunt says they found it where Don Bernardo de Miranda said it was: on the Cerro del Almagre -- loosely, the Red Hill.

Miranda, discoverer of the mine, was a lieutenant general of the Spanish Province of Texas in the 18th century. He said the hill was so rich "I guarantee to give to every settler of the Province of Texas a full claim."

Arville Cummins, 45, the geologist, says Miranda was right. The mine may be worth as much as $200 million, he says.

Five dark red boulders once stood where the men think the mine is today. They contrasted sharply with the dull gray dolomite limestone.

"I was curious about them from the very first," says rancher T. S. Lemons Sr., 65, who in 1944 bought 3,300 acres of this rough, remote country, including Red Hill.

A weather-beaten man with bristling gray eyebrows that meet over his long, bent nose, Lemmons said he knew the red boulders had to mean something, "So I brought in some geologists -- some of those smart boys -- to look at it.

Years passed.

Then in August 1964, Lemons' son, T. S. Lemons Jr., 40, was fishing in the Colorado--almost in the shadow of Red Hill--when he noticed a glint in a rock under water.

He chipped off the shiny part of the rock and put it in his pocket. Some months later he took it to Cummins in Lampasas.

Cummins said the Lemons' rock had gold and sent it to the Colorado Assaying Co. in Denver for an official test.

A five-foot deep hold was dug there last summer. Nothing was found at that depth and the digging was abandoned in favor of digging on Red Hill.

Before they got around to that, however, they found three holes drilled in the limestone wall of a gully on Red Hill.

Finally they came to the dark red boulders on Red Hill. They blasted all but one of them--preserved by the elder Lemons as a momento--and dug where they had been.

At 21 feet it jumped to $29.25 a ton, slightly better than what Lemons found in the river.

The two men decided to form a partnership with two other men and lease the land from Lemons' father, who would get the royalties.

The other two men are Cummins' father, Aaron Cummins, 69, a retired grocer; and R. R. McCoy, 64, Lampasas dirt contractor who had worked with the younger Cummins before.

It took two months just to put a road down the rocky slope to the mine. Then the digging and blasting began again.

Two weeks later, Cummins hit darker ore that assayed at $43.75 a ton.

At 35 feet they hit ore that looked even richer. It was assayed at $467.60 a ton.

The partners have been working from dawn to dusk to get into full production, but have been held back by a series of minor delays.

This spread is brand new.

Until now, when you wanted a peanut butter and bacon sandwich you had to fry the bacon until it crisped, drain off the fat, blot up excess drippings with paper towels, crumble the bacon in a mixing bowl, and add a generous amount of Skippy® Peanut Butter. Then you got a large spoon and stirred until it was well mixed and reasonably easy to spread.

Skippy has changed all that. New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has taken the work and the mess and the cleaning-up out of making a peanut butter and bacon sandwich.

New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has all the crunch, crackle and old-fashioned smokehouse flavor of bacon. But instead of bacon, Skippy has created little crisps of vegetable protein with remarkably true bacon flavor. These, mixed with Skippy, make a tasty spread—perfect for snacks, canapes, and sandwiches, even on meatless days.

So, for all you people who like the taste of a bacon and Skippy sandwich, try them together in new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps.

Try some and Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash!

We're so sure you'll like the exciting taste of new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps that we'll send you 25 cents in cash for just buying a jar—any size!

Simply send the label from a jar of Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps, and the coupon provided here to Skippy Smoky Crisps, Box 57A, Brooklyn, New York 11202. By return mail, Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash.

Cold Storm Weakens

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold and violent spring storm showed signs of weakening today after lashing portions of the West, northern Plains and the midlands. It brought snow, frost and freezing temperatures, hail, rain, strong winds and tornadoes that caused damage in excess of $1.5 million.

Three men were killed in storm-related auto crashes in Colorado and Wyoming and at least five persons suffered minor injuries in a tornado.

A residential section of Overland Park, Kan., a suburb just southwest of Kansas City, Mo., and the Valley View subdivision of Lombard, Ill., west of Chicago, suffered extensive damage from the tornadoes. Other tornadoes touched down in rural areas of north Iowa.

This spread is brand new. It tastes exactly like peanut butter and bacon... but there's no bacon in it.

Until now, when you wanted a peanut butter and bacon sandwich you had to fry the bacon until it crisped, drain off the fat, blot up excess drippings with paper towels, crumble the bacon in a mixing bowl, and add a generous amount of Skippy® Peanut Butter. Then you got a large spoon and stirred until it was well mixed and reasonably easy to spread.

Skippy has changed all that. New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has taken the work and the mess and the cleaning-up out of making a peanut butter and bacon sandwich.

New Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps has all the crunch, crackle and old-fashioned smokehouse flavor of bacon. But instead of bacon, Skippy has created little crisps of vegetable protein with remarkably true bacon flavor. These, mixed with Skippy, make a tasty spread—perfect for snacks, canapes, and sandwiches, even on meatless days.

So, for all you people who like the taste of a bacon and Skippy sandwich, try them together in new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps.

Try some and Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash!

We're so sure you'll like the exciting taste of new Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps that we'll send you 25 cents in cash for just buying a jar—any size!

Simply send the label from a jar of Skippy Peanut Butter with Smoky Crisps, and the coupon provided here to Skippy Smoky Crisps, Box 57A, Brooklyn, New York 11202. By return mail, Skippy will send you 25 cents in cash.

Long Academy Show Most Attractive

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television producers seem to be able to compress almost anything into 60 or 90 minutes with time out for commercials. But when it comes to handing out movie Oscars and television Emmies, the program runs on and on.

Monday night's annual Motion Picture Academy Awards show, occupied two and one-half hours and ended well past midnight in the eastern portion of the nation. And you had to stick with it to the very end to find out that "The Sound of Music" was voted the best picture of the year and that Julie Christie of "Darling" and Lee Marvin of "Cat Ballou" were the best actress and actor.

The long show was the most attractive in TV history because it blossomed forth in color. For the first time women viewers could see that Natalie Wood's gown was green and that Julie Andrews was in a flaming shade of red. And since when looking at the stars, clothes are about half the fun of the show, this proved very satisfying.

Master of ceremonies Bob Hope was his usual irreverent self from his opening crack about the audience — "sitting out there are the stars of today and the senators of tomorrow" — to the presentation of a special gold medal by the academy which caught him unprepared. "I'm caught with my idiot cards down," was the best he could muster.

The long parade of men and women walking up and making speeches is not the most stimulating entertainment in the world.

Dragging out the proceedings unnecessarily with elaborately staged solos of the nominated songs — highly unmemorable songs, too — did not help much either. And, there was no excuse for the long dance number injected in the middle of things.

The most popular program in the new national Nielsen report is "Carol Plus Two," Carol Burnett's special on CBS last month that co-starred Lucille Ball and Sero Mostel. But the most interesting item in the report is that Red Skelton's CBS show passed the perennial champion, NBC's "Bonanza" in the ratings.

Top shows during the two week period ending April 3 were, in order of popularity, Carol Plus Two, The Red Skelton Show, Bonanza, CBS' Lucy Show and Gomer Pyle, ABC's Alice In Wonderland, CBS' Andy Griffith Show, ABC's Batman — Thursday night episode — CBS' Hogan's Heroes and the Thursday Night Movies.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

Mexico City - Flying Saucer weather is here. We have had a long spell and it seems to be getting more tense.

Rural ladies and gentlemen in the Pacific Coast State of Guerrero (where Acapulco is) have seen scads of Flying Saucers lately. All sizes and shapes.

They seem to be drifting around the whole country. A big year for tourism if you ask me.

And the Mexican government has no definite comment. Just a request for official observers to keep their eyes open.

Everybody else's eyes seem to be wide open for the Saucers are seen every few days in some part of the country and many of these devices favor Mexico City.

Possibly the crews come from a planet that's hot and dry so they like it up here in the mountains.

This is the only decent explanation I can find. With all the situations we have around the globe, who would want to fly here from Mars just to be friends? The risk is too great. And nobody can afford to be friends with the human race.

I imagine the Saucer crewmen gather every evening to swap lies about what they have done during the day. Tie their craft to a cloud somewhere and everybody gets out to stretch and boil up a pot of coffee.

"Hey," one of them says, "you guys should of seen the panic we set off today down near Acapulco. They was running every which way."

So a second one says, "We shouldn't be scarin' these poor earthlings like that. They're only people."

And the first one snorts, "So that's why -- they're nothin' but people. And mark my words, Hartley, people with these crazy bombs can be just as dangerous as intelligent beings."

Hartley yawns and replies, "That's why I like it around Mexico City. They got no bombs and nobody is sore about anything. Sunshine and easy living for me."

A recent report has a Saucer going in the drink at Lake Texcoco. The lake being a collection of cracked mud in the dry season and oversized puddles when it rains.

But there she went. Sailed around the airport, a few times, possibly calling the tower on the wrong frequency, and finally splashed in a big pool of rain water and disappeared.

Nobody went out to punch around with poles and see what was there.

The tower merely said it had enough work keeping up with the regular planes flying around.

But a number of the pilots swear they witnessed the landing. Just a big saucer thing that kept losing altitude and finally hit the lake.

Everyone watched and then went on about his business after the splash.

Laugh it up if you want but I think the fellows in this Saucer were tired of things back home. Fed up with flying back and forth from Mars for the last few centuries.

So they decided to come to Mexico and settle down in retirement. Just picked the wrong spot for landing, that's all.

Everybody else's eyes seem to be wide open for the Saucers are seen every few days in some part of the country and many of these devices favor Mexico City.

Possibly the crews come from a planet that's hot and dry so they like it up here in the mountains.

This is the only decent explanation I can find. With all the situations we have around the globe, who would want to fly here from Mars just to be friends? The risk is too great. And nobody can afford to be friends with the human race.

I imagine the Saucer crewmen gather every evening to swap lies about what they have done during the day. Tie their craft to a cloud somewhere and everybody gets out to stretch and boil up a pot of coffee.

"Hey," one of them says, "you guys should of seen the panic we set off today down near Acapulco. They was running every which way."

So a second one says, "We shouldn't be scarin' these poor earthlings like that. They're only people."

And the first one snorts, "So that's why -- they're nothin' but people. And mark my words, Hartley, people with these crazy bombs can be just as dangerous as intelligent beings."

Hartley yawns and replies, "That's why I like it around Mexico City. They got no bombs and nobody is sore about anything. Sunshine and easy living for me."

A recent report has a Saucer going in the drink at Lake Texcoco. The lake being a collection of cracked mud in the dry season and oversized puddles when it rains.

But there she went. Sailed around the airport, a few times, possibly calling the tower on the wrong frequency, and finally splashed in a big pool of rain water and disappeared.

Nobody went out to punch around with poles and see what was there.

The tower merely said it had enough work keeping up with the regular planes flying around.

But a number of the pilots swear they witnessed the landing. Just a big saucer thing that kept losing altitude and finally hit the lake.

Everyone watched and then went on about his business after the splash.

Laugh it up if you want but I think the fellows in this Saucer were tired of things back home. Fed up with flying back and forth from Mars for the last few centuries.

So they decided to come to Mexico and settle down in retirement. Just picked the wrong spot for landing, that's all.

Blight Caused Migration

The great Irish famine of the 19th century was caused by a blight to the potato crop. Between two and three million people died and many others emigrated to the United States, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Carbondale Seeks Center

WASHINGTON AP -- Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., and Dr. William J. Tudor, special assistant to the vice president of Southern Illinois University, Monday asked Congress for money to build a southern corn belt soil and water research center at Carbondale, Ill.

The request was for $500,000 to finance the project and was made to a House appropriations subcommittee.

Dr. Tudor said the southern portion of the corn belt with 30-50 million acres "presents serious problems in soil and water conservation."

This area is centered in the southern third of Illinois with considerable acreages extending into Indiana, Ohio and Missouri.

Dr. Tudor said the university would contribute the land without cost to the federal government if the funds are provided.

Maugham Described As Lonely Writer

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP — Four old friends of W. Somerset Maugham were taking a fond look at the life and times of the famed English author.

The conversation took place at the University of Southern California, and listeners included a curious mixture of academic and show business types. One of the speakers, George Cukor, arrived with a dazzling trio: Lillian Gish, Shirley MacLaine and Mia Farrow.

Reading from his soon-to-be-published book, "Remembering Mr. Maugham," Garson Kanin recalled asking the once-wed Maugham if he had ever proposed marriage more than once. No, replied the author, but he assuaged Kanin's disappointment by adding that the single proposal was not to his wife.

He told of an eight-year affair with a woman named Nan. She disappeared after a fight, and he traced her to Chicago, where he proposed marriage. Although professing her love, she refused. Later he discovered she had been pregnant by another man.

Said Maugham with unaccustomed tears: "I have often wondered what course my life would have taken except for that freakish happenstance."

Clare Booth Luce observed that the picture of Maugham as cold and detached was a false one. "I think it was because of the eyes," she said. "They were like desert stones, dark and glittering and unpleasant to look at."

Maugham's essential loneliness was stressed by George Cukor, who recalled him saying, "It's a lonely life, writing. When you are writing a book, you are entirely preoccupied with your characters. When you cut them out of your life, it can be very lonely."

"Maugham believed the beginning and the end was writing," said Mrs. Luce. "I remember visiting his place on the Riviera and seeing the studio where he worked. His chair faced away from the Mediterranean; he didn't want to be distracted by the view.

"He worked every morning for three or four hours. Then he stopped for lunch; he liked gimlets and stingers as well as martinis. After a nap, he went over what he had written. He once told me that he corrected his sentences more than any modern writer except Proust."

Kanin told of asking Maugham in his last years whether age brought fewer friends and more enemies. "Yes," the author replied grimly, "as sad and unfortunate as that is, it is true."

But then he added as death approached: "No matter what its miseries, like should be grasped.

The program ended as it had begun, with Maugham's clipped voice reading the sentences over which he had labored so lovingly.

Fashion's Motto: Think Young

In fashion, the young look is in . . . and so is the young designer.

Typical of up-and-coming young designers in California are Sharon Moore and Marilyn Schulster. Both are only 22 and pretty enough to be mistaken for models.

They teamed up as designers for a senior class project at UCLA's School of Apparel Design and have been working together ever since. Now planning their fourth collection, they design under the appropriate label of "Like Young." Their styles live up to the label . . . they're youthful-looking yet sophisticated enough to be worn by any fashion-wise woman.

Fabrics play an important role in the creation of each of their designs. The girls often work directly with fabric mills to get the distinctive colors they want. Cotton is a special favorite because it takes dye so well and because, as Marilyn says, "It has the natural quality we like so much." The two follow their designs from patterns to finished garments to make sure their original concept is preserved.

ELOQUENT PICTORIAL JOURNALISM BY AP

By Robert R. Kirsch

One day in the future, a child may ask, "What was it like to live in 1965?" I would give him a copy of THE WORLD IN 1965: History as We Lived It (Associated Press: $3; illustrated), which brings alive through picture and text the annals of that year. Gathered from the work of AP reporters and photographers, generously illustrated in color and black-and-white, this handsome volume repays browsing even for those of us who have just lived through the year.

It was a crowded year, which saw escalation in the war in Vietnam (chosen the top story) and the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson (chosen the top newsmaker of the year) for his first full term; which saw man's first walk in space and the first visit of a reigning pontiff to the United States saw the death of such men as Sir Winston Churchill and Adlai Stevenson, and the assassination of that strange and charismatic character, Malcolm X; which saw the Dominican Republic erupt in revolution and America take on a war against poverty; which saw Watts erupt in the worst race riots in American history and drought dry out the Northeast.

Its chronology reminds us that journalism embraces both history and ephemera, and a spectrum of events which, because they are ultimately a reflection of the people who are involved, ranged from high tragedy to absurdity. It was the year in which India and Pakistan went to war, in which dissent became a way of life to some; it was also the year in which the Dodgers who couldn't, did win the pennant and the World Series; in which Cassius Clay threw a punch at Sunny Liston, ending what purported to be a world championship bout.

We were reminded that technology was fallible in the great blackout in the greater New York area, and of the promise of technology in Telstar and the photographs of Mars sent back by Mariner. It was a year of rising crime and new fads, short skirts and high camp, art from Pop to Op, long hair for young men, short hair for young women. It was the way we lived.

The text is written with the authority and where appropriate, humor. It is, however, the pictures which are most eloquent, some of which were paid by the very lives of AP photographers Bernard Kolenberg and Huynh Thanh My. The former from Albany, N. Y., the latter from Vietnam. Their merged fates reflected the deaths of many an American and vietnamese soldier.

Appendices include a month-by-month chronology, an excellent index, a list of deaths, awards, an assortment of statistics. Those interested may secure the book by sending $3 to THE WORLD IN 1965, AP BOOKS, B x 66, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It is, incidentally, one of the book bargains of the year.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

SAFETY TIPS FOR SPRINGTIME GARDENER

-- One of the beguiling pleasures of springtime for many millions of Americans is gardening. But the gardener must tend himself as well as his garden if the pleasure is not to turn to pain. Here are some safety tips from the American Medical Association for our green-thumbed citizenry:

Remember, one swallow never made a summer, and one 10-hour session the first sunny spring day never made a beautiful garden, but might make a bed-bound gardener. Take it easy at the beginning, take frequent rests, and work at a sensible pace.

Cuts, scratches, and bruises are inevitable for the devoted gardener, but keep them minor by washing them at once with warm water and soap and covering with a clean bandage. Tetanus lurks in the soil, so make certain your immunization (and your family's) is up-to-date.

Power tools, like the auto, can be a boon -- but they can also be a menace if handled carelessly. Learn how to use them properly, follow instructions, and keep your mind on the job. Turn off the power mower if you have to leave it unattended for even a moment. The toes you save may be your child's!

Pesticides can make a silent spring, ruining your soil and silencing bird-song, or they can help make a gay and colorful spring, depending on your use. Read instructions carefully. Pesticides can cause fatal accidents. So store them out of the reach of small children. Make pesticides a boon not a bane.

NO FETAL DAMAGE FROM 'PILL' USE

Asked by a fellow-physician whether prolonged use of oral contraceptives has increased the incidence of prematurity or birth defects, Dr. Richard L. Day, medical director of Planned Parenthood-World Population, wrote recently: "The answer to this is no." Dr. Day then explained that when "pregnancies are repeated in rapid succession there is an increase in prematurity rate and in death in infancy and early childhood.

SELF-AID TREATMENT FOR TEENAGERS

The teenager is often as much a problem to himself as he is to his bewildered parents. He doesn't know why he flies into sudden rages, why he is often close to tears at the slightest reprimand, why he suddenly finds his parents intolerably square. He wonders about his sanity, wonders whether others his age are beset by as many problems.

A new booklet, How Serious Are Your Problems, may help bewildered adolescents gain insight into the problem of growing up.

The pamphlet deals simply and directly with such problems as moodiness, difficulties with parents, rebellious feelings, trouble with schoolwork, and boy-girl relationships.

Obtainable for 25 cents plus 10 cents for postage and handling from The Child Study Association of America, 9 East 89th Street, New York, N. Y., it may provide just the reassurance and support virtually every teenager needs at some time or other.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

". . . My main interest is the arts but I'm not a painter, a sculptor, or a composer. I certainly can't make a living just touring museums and attending concerts . . ."

". . . I like history but I don't want to teach it . . ."

". . .Business is my major but I have so many interests; sports, international affairs, medicine, law, fashion, literature. I'm afraid if I confine myself to one limited career now, I'll always feel I am missing out on a lot of life."

". . . I would like to work in another country but I can't seem to find anything that appeals to me . . ."

College counselors' offices, dormitory "bull" sessions and "Choosing Your Career" lectures series all ring with the same theme. What is new, different and challenging in the professional world? Students who have grown up with new math, intensified language series, Sputnik inspired science lectures, television travelogues, and cold war problems are unimpressed by the unchallenging 9:00 a.m. -- 5 p.m. job. They are fiercely competitive and fearful of becoming mentally senile at the age of 35.

One emerging profession cannot solve youth's battle with society but many students are becoming interested in the changing complexion of librarianship.

The mention of the word "library" conjures up the childhood vision of the Carnegie building on the corner of Solemn and Musty Streets. Stately, 19th Century architecture, it was quiet, damp and dingy on the inside. One little librarian (isn't someone who shelves books and collects fines a librarian?) with pince-nez, a late George Washington hair style and early attic clothing spent the day dusting and saying, "sshhuusshh."

Today's libraries and librarians are entering a transition not unlike that of the teaching profession 25 years ago. New public, school, and university libraries are springing up. They are light, airy, and stocked with the latest maps, charts, microfilms, periodicals, slides, records and copying machines. But the most exciting event is the growth of the library profession. Gone are the librarians who got their stripes and titles by stamping books. They are being replaced by young, well-educated, interesting professionals who are being recognized as society's educational nucleus.

You may be surprised to know that librarians are not always found in libraries. The rapid pace and scientific nature of our society demands perfection and requires that every industry, invention, and organization back up its claims with facts. Thus, librarians have been added to the staff of every kind of concern. A look at the different types of librarians reveals the diversity of the profession.

Advertising and Public Relations--- For every newspaper story or advertisement, television commercial, historical documentary, survey and announcement, accurate information must be compiled. Advertising librarians fulfill many varied responsibilities during the day -- researcher, copywriter, artist, critic, producer.

Science--- Librarians in the field of science range from those working in aerospace to those in chemistry, biological science, electronics, and nuclear science. If biology is your interest, a library position might find you compiling research data in a large food company or recording test results of the latest cosmetics. Aerospace librarians give intellectual foundation to every space launching, they record and store all information gleaned from each flight, and have ready answers for urgent questions during any emergency.

Finance and Banking--- If the world of stocks and bonds intrigues you, a position as a librarian in an accounting firm, a Federal Reserve Bank, a financial trade association or a brokerage firm might appeal to you. You would have to be familiar with collection statistics, economic studies, annual reports, current financial trends, and how they are affected by closely and remotely related events.

Fine and Applied Arts--- Museums and galleries, college and university fine arts departments are badly in need of well-educated librarians. You might work in any branch of the field from design centers of an architect to the archives of a well-known museum. Your work would constantly surround you with the world of the Great Masters.

The list is almost endless. For the student with a liberal arts background, library professions of all types could use his training -- public, university, government or private firms. There are law libraries, medical libraries, government libraries, all badly understaffed.

There are as many different types of specialized training within the profession as there are fields in which to apply them. The business executive would find himself well suited as administrator of a large library. The reference librarian would be in the center of constant activity, meeting people, supplying information to local people and organizations, and perhaps working with students. There is a special need for teacher-librarians in colleges and universities. Again, the doors of variety open to reveal the many possibilities within the library profession.

To qualify as a librarian, a student must complete four years of college and one year in a professional library school accredited by the American Library Association. The schools differ in entrance requisites but most require knowledge of a foreign language and entrance exams. A "B" average is generally accepted as the necessary undergraduate grade point for entrance.

Librarians are so badly needed that most are interviewed and employed even before graduation. Figures range from 12 to 18 different positions open to each graduate; total librarians needed for the entire field reach 18,000.

The salary of a librarian is not for those who plan to get rich quick but it ranks adequately with many of society's respected professions. Starting salaries average $6,000 and, depending on the size of the organization or institution and the type of librarian needed, one might earn $10,000 and up to $20,000. Like the rest of the profession itself, the standards are rising.

The Missouri Library Association will supply additional information about the library profession. Students who are giving careful thought to their careers, as well as how best to use their individual talents, interests, and time will find the library profession challenging and rewarding.

Dexter Pool Discussed

DEXTER -- Harold Green, regional director of parks and recreation from Ann Arbor, Mich., with Lee Fine, Missouri state park director, of Jefferson City, met with city officials and park board officials on Dexter's proposed swimming pool issue. With the two park officials was Len Hall of Caledonia, noted conservationist and writer.

Green presided over the meeting attended by Mayor Melvin Gainer, Bob Robins, Jaycee president, and Bill Swinger and Gary Dowdy, chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored swimming pool project; Mrs. Gene Strickland, chairman of the Dexter park board, and Francis Webb of the park board; Pete Atherton, councilman-elect from ward three where the pool will be located when it is constructed; Joe Vinson, Jaycee member; John McMasters, KDEX representative, Mrs. John Hill, local press representative, and Mrs. V. C. Russell.

Since plans for the pool have gotten under way and plans are in the hands of a planning engineer, the local park board has taken over the project. In meeting with the group, Green was seeking more background information on the site and park system before qualification on the request before matching federal funds for the $100,000 project can be made. Dexter would try for a $50,000 bond issue to raise its share of the financing.

"Qualification of the project does not mean it has been approved," Green pointed out. "It only means the idea has been accepted as practical but it will have to be studied further before funds can be allocated. It can take up to six weeks to be qualified after pertinent information is received on site plans, cost breakdowns on site preparations, an estimate of what the attendance will be, usage from surrounding areas and distance of other swimming pools," he said.

Green also said that Missouri has more projects in the works than any other state as well as having more projects approved. He pointed out the acceptance of the Dexter project depended on its priority in relation to other projects.

Dexter now has five parks in its system with a total of around 65 acres. One area contains a fishing lake covering 13 acres. The proposed site for the swimming pool is in East city park on Municipal Airport property and parallel to city route 114.

Following adjournment of the meeting at city hall, Green, Fine and Hall accompanied city and park officials to the site for an inspection tour.

Soviet-Egyptian Talk

CAIRO AP -- A Soviet submarine, destined for delivery to the Egyptian navy, surprised observers recently by arriving at an Egyptian port with the Soviet hammer and sickle emblem flying from its superstructure.

Normally, Soviet ships marked for delivery to the Egyptians hoist the Egyptian flag when they enter this nation's territorial waters.

The incident has touched off rumors of a possible Soviet-Egyptian naval agreement. The rumors were heightened by two recent Soviet naval goodwill visits to Port Said and the presence in the Red Sea of a Soviet trawler fleet, well-equipped with electronic devices.

Some diplomats in Cairo speculate that President Gamal Abdel Nasser has decided to grant Soviet warships the right to refuel in Egyptian ports.

Such an agreement would give Russia the warm port facilities it has sought through history.

It will eliminate the need for Soviet ships in the Mediterranean to shuttle back and forth to home ports through the Marmara Sea and the Bosporus, where naval movements are watched by Turkey, an Atlantic alliance member.

Some well-informed diplomats brush aside speculation of an agreement granting the Soviet Union refueling rights. Such a step, they argue, would signal the end of Nasser's policy of nonalignment in the cold war--an effective policy which has given him room to maneuver between the Soviet Union and the United States.

You may be surprised to know that librarians are not always found in libraries. The rapid pace and scientific nature of our society demands perfection and requires that every industry, invention, and organization back up its claims with facts. Thus, librarians have been added to the staff of every kind of concern. A look at the different types of librarians reveals the diversity of the profession.

Advertising and Public Relations--- For every newspaper story or advertisement, television commercial, historical documentary, survey and announcement, accurate information must be compiled. Advertising librarians fulfill many varied responsibilities during the day -- researcher, copywriter, artist, critic, producer.

Science--- Librarians in the field of science range from those working in aerospace to those in chemistry, biological science, electronics, and nuclear science. If biology is your interest, a library position might find you compiling research data in a large food company or recording test results of the latest cosmetics. Aerospace librarians give intellectual foundation to every space launching, they record and store all information gleaned from each flight, and have ready answers for urgent questions during any emergency.

Finance and Banking--- If the world of stocks and bonds intrigues you, a position as a librarian in an accounting firm, a Federal Reserve Bank, a financial trade association or a brokerage firm might appeal to you. You would have to be familiar with collection statistics, economic studies, annual reports, current financial trends, and how they are affected by closely and remotely related events.

Fine and Applied Arts--- Museums and galleries, college and university fine arts departments are badly in need of well-educated librarians. You might work in any branch of the field from design centers of an architect to the archives of a well-known museum. Your work would constantly surround you with the world of the Great Masters.

The list is almost endless. For the student with a liberal arts background, library professions of all types could use his training -- public, university, government or private firms. There are law libraries, medical libraries, government libraries, all badly understaffed.

There are as many different types of specialized training within the profession as there are fields in which to apply them. The business executive would find himself well suited as administrator of a large library. The reference librarian would be in the center of constant activity, meeting people, supplying information to local people and organizations, and perhaps working with students. There is a special need for teacher-librarians in colleges and universities. Again, the doors of variety open to reveal the many possibilities within the library profession.

To qualify as a librarian, a student must complete four years of college and one year in a professional library school accredited by the American Library Association. The schools differ in entrance requisites but most require knowledge of a foreign language and entrance exams. A "B" average is generally accepted as the necessary undergraduate grade point for entrance.

Librarians are so badly needed that most are interviewed and employed even before graduation. Figures range from 12 to 18 different positions open to each graduate; total librarians needed for the entire field reach 18,000.

The salary of a librarian is not for those who plan to get rich quick but it ranks adequately with many of society's respected professions. Starting salaries average $6,000 and, depending on the size of the organization or institution and the type of librarian needed, one might earn $10,000 and up to $20,000. Like the rest of the profession itself, the standards are rising.

The Missouri Library Association will supply additional information about the library profession. Students who are giving careful thought to their careers, as well as how best to use their individual talents, interests, and time will find the library profession challenging and rewarding.

Fashion's Motto: Think Young

In fashion, the young look is in . . . and so is the young designer.

Typical of up-and-coming young designers in California are Sharon Moore and Marilyn Schulster. Both are only 22 and pretty enough to be mistaken for models.

They teamed up as designers for a senior class project at UCLA's School of Apparel Design and have been working together ever since. Now planning their fourth collection, they design under the appropriate label of "Like Young." Their styles live up to the label . . . they're youthful-looking yet sophisticated enough to be worn by any fashion-wise woman.

Fabrics play an important role in the creation of each of their designs. The girls often work directly with fabric mills to get the distinctive colors they want. Cotton is a special favorite because it takes dye so well and because, as Marilyn says, "It has the natural quality we like so much." The two follow their designs from patterns to finished garments to make sure their original concept is preserved.

Dexter Pool Discussed

DEXTER -- Harold Green, regional director of parks and recreation from Ann Arbor, Mich., with Lee Fine, Missouri state park director, of Jefferson City, met with city officials and park board officials on Dexter's proposed swimming pool issue. With the two park officials was Len Hall of Caledonia, noted conservationist and writer.

Green presided over the meeting attended by Mayor Melvin Gainer, Bob Robins, Jaycee president, and Bill Swinger and Gary Dowdy, chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored swimming pool project; Mrs. Gene Strickland, chairman of the Dexter park board, and Francis Webb of the park board; Pete Atherton, councilman-elect from ward three where the pool will be located when it is constructed; Joe Vinson, Jaycee member; John McMasters, KDEX representative, Mrs. John Hill, local press representative, and Mrs. V. C. Russell.

Since plans for the pool have gotten under way and plans are in the hands of a planning engineer, the local park board has taken over the project. In meeting with the group, Green was seeking more background information on the site and park system before qualification on the request before matching federal funds for the $100,000 project can be made. Dexter would try for a $50,000 bond issue to raise its share of the financing.

"Qualification of the project does not mean it has been approved," Green pointed out. "It only means the idea has been accepted as practical but it will have to be studied further before funds can be allocated. It can take up to six weeks to be qualified after pertinent information is received on site plans, cost breakdowns on site preparations, an estimate of what the attendance will be, usage from surrounding areas and distance of other swimming pools," he said.

Green also said that Missouri has more projects in the works than any other state as well as having more projects approved. He pointed out the acceptance of the Dexter project depended on its priority in relation to other projects.

Dexter now has five parks in its system with a total of around 65 acres. One area contains a fishing lake covering 13 acres. The proposed site for the swimming pool is in East city park on Municipal Airport property and parallel to city route 114.

Following adjournment of the meeting at city hall, Green, Fine and Hall accompanied city and park officials to the site for an inspection tour.

Soviet-Egyptian Talk

CAIRO AP — A Soviet submarine, destined for delivery to the Egyptian navy, surprised observers recently by arriving at an Egyptian port with the Soviet hammer and sickle emblem flying from its superstructure.

Normally, Soviet ships marked for delivery to the Egyptians hoist the Egyptian flag when they enter this nation's territorial waters.

The incident has touched off rumors of a possible Soviet-Egyptian naval agreement. The rumors were heightened by two recent Soviet naval goodwill visits to Port Said and the presence in the Red Sea of a Soviet trawler fleet, well-equipped with electronic devices.

Some diplomats in Cairo speculate that President Gamal Abdel Nasser has decided to grant Soviet warships the right to refuel in Egyptian ports.

Such an agreement would give Russia the warm port facilities it has sought through history.

It will eliminate the need for Soviet ships in the Mediterranean to shuttle back and forth to home ports through the Marmara Sea and the Bosporus, where naval movements are watched by Turkey, an Atlantic alliance member.

Some well-informed diplomats brush aside speculation of an agreement granting the Soviet Union refueling rights. Such a step, they argue, would signal the end of Nasser's policy of nonalignment in the cold war--an effective policy which has given him room to maneuver between the Soviet Union and the United States.

ELOQUENT PICTORIAL JOURNALISM BY AP

By Robert R. Kirsch

One day in the future, a child may ask, "What was it like to live in 1965?" I would give him a copy of THE WORLD IN 1965: History as We Lived It (Associated Press: $3; illustrated), which brings alive through picture and text the annals of that year. Gathered from the work of AP reporters and photographers, generously illustrated in color and black - and - white, this handsome volume repays browsing even for those of us who have just lived through the year.

It was a crowded year, which saw escalation in the war in Vietnam (chosen the top story) and the inauguration of Lyndon B. Johnson (chosen the top newsmaker of the year) for his first full term; which saw man's first walk in space and the first visit of a reigning pontiff to the United States saw the death of such men as Sir Winston Churchill and Adlai Stevenson, and the assassination of that strange and charismatic character, Malcolm X; which saw the Dominican Republic erupt in revolution and America take on a war against poverty; which saw Watts erupt in the worst race riots in American history and drought dry out the Northeast.

Its chronology reminds us that journalism embraces both history and ephemera, and a spectrum of events which, because they are ultimately a reflection of the people who are involved, ranged from high tragedy to absurdity. It was the year in which India and Pakistan went to war, in which dissent became a way of life to some; it was also the year in which the Dodgers who couldn't, did win the pennant and the World Series; in which Cassius Clay threw a punch at Sunny Liston, ending what purported to be a world championship bout.

We were reminded that technology was fallible in the great blackout in the greater New York area, and of the promise of technology in Telstar and the photographs of Mars sent back by Mariner. It was a year of rising crime and new fads, short skirts and high camp, art from Pop to Op, long hair for young men, short hair for young women. It was the way we lived.

The text is written with the authority and where appropriate, humor. It is, however, the pictures which are most eloquent, some of which were paid by the very lives of AP photographers Bernard Kolenberg and Huynh Thanh My. The former from Albany, N. Y., the latter from Vietnam. Their merged fates reflected the deaths of many an American and vietnamese soldier.

Appendices include a month-by-month chronology, an excellent index, a list of deaths, awards, an assortment of statistics. Those interested may secure the book by sending $3 to THE WORLD IN 1965, AP BOOKS, Box 66, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It is, incidentally, one of the book bargains of the year.

SAFETY TIPS FOR SPRINGTIME GARDENER

-- One of the beguiling pleasures of springtime for many millions of Americans is gardening. But the gardener must tend himself as well as his garden if the pleasure is not to turn to pain. Here are some safety tips from the American Medical Association for our green - thumbed citizenry:

Remember, one swallow never made a summer, and one 10-hour session the first sunny spring day never made a beautiful garden, but might make a bed - bound gardener. Take it easy at the beginning, take frequent rests, and work at a sensible pace.

Cuts, scratches, and bruises are inevitable for the devoted gardener, but keep them minor by washing them at once with warm water and soap and covering with a clean bandage. Tetanus lurks in the soil, so make certain your immunization (and your family's) is up-to-date.

Power tools, like the auto, can be a boon -- but they can also be a menace if handled carelessly. Learn how to use them properly, follow instructions, and keep your mind on the job. Turn off the power mower if you have to leave it unattended for even a moment. The toes you save may be your child's!

Pesticides can make a silent spring, ruining your soil and silencing bird - song, or they can help make a gay and colorful spring, depending on your use. Read instructions carefully. Pesticides can cause fatal accidents. So store them out of the reach of small children. Make pesticides a boon not a bane.

NO FETAL DAMAGE FROM 'PILL' USE

Asked by a fellow - physician whether prolonged use of oral contraceptives has increased the incidence of prematurity or birth defects, Dr. Richard L. Day, medical director of Planned Parenthood - World Population, wrote recently: "The answer to this is no." Dr. Day then explained that when "pregnancies are repeated in rapid succession there is an increase in prematurity rate and in death in infancy and early childhood.

SELF - AID TREATMENT FOR TEENAGERS

The teenager is often as much a problem to himself as he is to his bewildered parents. He doesn't know why he flies into sudden rages, why he is often close to tears at the slightest reprimand, why he suddenly finds his parents intolerably square. He wonders about his sanity, wonders whether others his age are beset by as many problems.

A new booklet, How Serious Are Your Problems, may help bewildered adolescents gain insight into the problem of growing up.

The pamphlet deals simply and directly with such problems as moodiness, difficulties with parents, rebellious feelings, trouble with schoolwork, and boy - girl relationships.

Obtainable for 25 cents plus 10 cents for postage and handling from The Child Study Association of America, 9 East 89th Street, New York, N. Y., it may provide just the reassurance and support virtually every teenager needs at some time or other.

North Again Raided

Following close on the attack Sunday on missile sites near Hanoi, two Navy planes in a low level, radar-controlled attack dropped about 15 tons of bombs on the Uong Bi power plant 14 miles northeast of North Viet Nam's chief port.

The pilots reported showers of explosions and said the lights of Haiphong went out at once. The plant provides 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electricity, including a third of the power Haiphong uses and one-fourth of the needs of the capital 60 miles to the west.

Navy planes raided the Uong Bi plant twice in December before the start of a 37-day bombing pause. After the second raid Dec. 22, it was reportedly almost totally destoyed, but the spokesman said today it apparently had been rebuilt.

Neither Hanoi nor Haiphong has been hit by U. S. air attack, but Amerian planes brought the war close to the capital Sunday with attacks on missile sites 15 and 17 miles south and southwest of Hanoi. Pilots reported both sites were engulfed in flames.

The raid Monday night was carried out by twin-jet A6 Intruders, a subsonic plane designed to deliver big payloads on low-level attacks. They came from the carrier Kitty Hawk and reported only light, ineffective antiaircraft fire, although both Haiphong and Hanoi are said to be ringed with Soviet-built antiaircraft missile sites.

Missouri Press Report

by Edward V. Long

Flood control projects in Missouri will be the focus of attention at Senate and House hearings scheduled for April 25-26.

Representatives from many sections of Missouri are expected to be on hand to testify before the Public Works Appropriations subcommittee of both houses.

Of urgent concern to Missourians is the need for planning funds on a number of new projects as well as continued appropriations for projects already underway.

Major flood control projects for which construction money is being requested include reservoirs at Stockton, Kaysinger, Clarence Cannon (Joanna), Meramec, and improvements on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

The Secretary of Agriculture is now predicting that net farm income in 1966 will exceed $15 billion--around one billion dollars higher than last year.

The new prediction represents an increase of more than $3.4 billion over net farm income in 1960.

Personal income per farmer is up 44 percent over 1960. In comparison, personal income for non-farm workers has increased around 25 percent in the same five-year period.

Cash receipts from livestock and livestock product marketings in Missouri during January-February 1966 totaled $133,797,000 -- up $29,139,000 since the same period last year. Cash receipts from Missouri crops during January-February this year are up $8,610,000 compared with the same period in 1965.

The Senate has just passed a bill to make more flexible the operations of the Farm Credit Administration. The bill will help provide better credit services by adjusting the terms of the loans to the changing needs of the farmer.

At the same time, the bill calls for a long-needed speed up in the handling of farm loans.

There are 24 Federal Land Bank Associations in Missouri. At present, 13,300 Missouri farmers have won loans totaling $109,000,000 from these Associations.

Across the nation 721 Associations are today making $4,000,000,000 worth of loans to 334,000 farmers.

The Farm Credit system was launched by Congress in 1916 and over the years has played an important role in American agriculture.

New Coupon Plan

A revolutionary new manufacturers' coupon program will be introduced to Sikeston housewives this week.

The new program features an exclusive, three-way redemption plan enabling shoppers to participate in a national program for either gifts or cash.

Gift Stars, Inc., a division of Premium Corporation of America, will present Sikeston housewives with the first of three million pass-out coupons in Missouri this week.

The coupons will be bag-stuffed here at major grocers and, when sent to the company's headquarters at Minneapolis, will earn shoppers a bonus coupon of 200 free Gift Stars, a full-color gift catalog, and a saver envelope.

This new coupon program features an exclusive three-way redemption plan whereby consumers can redeem Gift Stars coupons for $2 cash at any grocer, redeem them by mail for gifts, or combine them with trading stamps for gifts at trading stamp centers displaying the Gift Stars emblem. Gift Stars are equal in value to trading stamps.

Another unusual aspect of the program is that it is the first of its kind to make an effort to reward the grocer. If shoppers wish to receive cash for their Gift Stars, they may turn them in to local grocers in units of 1,500 for $2 cash. The 1,500 Gift Stars are enclosed in a special envelope and sealed. The grocer pays the consumer $2 cash, and mails them to the company. For each 1,500 Gift Stars turned in, he receives 50¢ cash for handling.

H. W. Greenough, Executive Vice-President of Gift Stars, Inc., in discussing the program, said it is now three years old and encompasses nearly 30% of the U. S. population in approximately fourteen states.

Greenough said, "Gift Stars benefit everyone. The consumer can have her choice of either cash or free gifts; grocers can benefit from cash redemptions at their store through a handling fee and from the quicker movement of their products which carry Gift Stars.

"This is a loyalty program to certain nationally advertised products, and earns for the products consumer interest and loyalty," he said.

A pilot program was started in Colorado, and surveys indicated that 87% of the [illegible] holds there are saving Gift Stars, prompting the company to develop the program in other states and go national.

Participating food stores in the area are: Malone & Hyde Company, wholesalers.

Governors Endorse Flag Flying

Governor Calvin L. Hampton of Utah; Governor Maurice E. Trimmer of New Mexico; Governor George Wallace of Alabama have each granted permission to quote as follows:

"The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive to every Missourian to fly the flag on national holidays. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began.

Governor Nils A. Boe of South Dakota:

Governor Nils A. Boe today urged all South Dakotans to fly the flag on their homes on national holidsys.

Governor Boe stated, "The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive for all South Dakotans to participate in this observance. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began."

Governor Paul B. Johnson of Mississippi:

"The flying of the flag on national holidays is an opportunity available to every citizen to demonstrate that the spirit of freedom is still as strong in our heart today as it was 190 years ago when our nation was founded. I recommend that every home consider flying the Star Spangled Banner on national holidays or any other appropriate occasion.

Governor John Dempsey of Connecticut:

Our flag, at home and in the far corners of the world, serves as an inspiring symbol of justice and freedom. All Americans should, I firmly believe, display it proudly as a manifestation of patriotism and pride in our heritage.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

ELECTIONS

The troubles of the Pandora's box that was cracked opened in Baker v. Carr, and exposed fully in Reynolds v. Sims, decided at the end of the 1963 term, are now with us in full force. The political thicket has now become a veritable jungle of competing considerations for the lower courts to hack their way through. The spreading litigation has been as voluminous in its quantity as it has been disruptive of orderly legislative and electoral processes. Ample historical research by the late Mr. Justice Frankfurter and Mr. Justice Harlan demonstrated that nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment's legislative history justified such chaos under the guise of constitutional law. The Court, of course, cannot remake history, but it unquestionably can make history. This it did with a bang by ruling in 1964 that all State legislatures must be apportioned on population and nothing else. The tremors from this earthquake are still reverberating, and the legislative wreckage is strewn around the landscape.

Chief Justice Warren's explanation in this case was typical. He relied upon a judicial saturation bombing, by throwing everything that could remotely be found relevant at the offending statute. He said;

"The conception of political equality from the Declaration of Independence, to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, to the Fifteenth, Seventeenth and Nineteenth Amendments can mean only one thing-- one person, one vote."

No doubt the omission of the proverbial Fourth-of-July reference to flag, home, and mother, was an unintentional oversight.

In the 1964 term, the Court continued to review the actions of the lower Federal courts in picking up the legislative pieces of the apportionment explosion. It held that multi-member constituencies did not violate its newly devised constitutional notions, and vacated a district court injunction on the grounds of mootness which had forbidden the holding of the 1964 general election. In the latter case, Justices Harlan and Stewart protested that the lower Federal courts were not being given guidelines "through this treacherous constitutional terrain" to make certain that they "be launched in the right general direction and not allowed to range so far afield as to hamstring State legislatures and deprive States of effective legislative government." They added: "I think that the State of Georgia is entitled to a clear-cut pronouncement from this Court that nothing in its reapportionment decisions contemplated such unheard-of Federal court intrusion into State political affairs as the decree before us envinces."

At the very end of the term, a series of cases from New York turned the entire area of reapportionment procedures into a three-ring circus with several unexpected encores. The curtain arose on the first act in June, 1964, when the U. S. Supreme Court held that New York had violated the Fourteenth Amendment by providing in its State Constitution for a legislature based in part on county structure. It was too late to fashion a different reapportionment plan for the 1964 elections, so the district court ordered that the scheduled elections take place under the New York Constitution whose provisions, in existence since 1894, were suddenly found to be invalid in Washington. Thus, in violation of the New York Constitution, the district court ordered that the legislators so elected serve for one year instead of two. They were told to submit a new apportionment plan to be approved by the district court, run in 1965, again serve only one year, and run in 1966, under the new plan. The Supreme Court summarily affirmed this order, over the dissents of Justices Harlan and Stewart.

A CHILD LOOKS TO THE FUTURE: Julie Alice Dillard, of Santa Rosa, California, almost did not have a future. When she was two-and-a-half, Julie developed Wilm's Tumor, a cancer of the kidney that most often strikes small children. It is frequently fatal. But prompt surgery and radiation treatments saved Julie. She is cured of cancer. Now, nine-and-a-half, she loves to swim, ride, paint and play tether ball. Julie is one of over 1,400,000 Americans cured of cancer.

Missouri Press Report

by Edward V. Long

Flood control projects in Missouri will be the focus of attention at Senate and House hearings scheduled for April 25-26.

Representatives from many sections of Missouri are expected to be on hand to testify before the Public Works Appropriations subcommittee of both houses.

Of urgent concern to Missourians is the need for planning funds on a number of new projects as well as continued appropriations for projects already underway.

Major flood control projects for which construction money is being requested include reservoirs at Stockton, Kaysinger, Clarence Cannon (Joanna), Meramec, and improvements on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

The Secretary of Agriculture is now predicting that net farm income in 1966 will exceed $15 billion--around one billion dollars higher than last year.

The new prediction represents an increase of more than $3.4 billion over net farm income in 1960.

Personal income per farmer is up 44 percent over 1960. In comparison, personal income for non-farm workers has increased around 25 percent in the same five-year period.

Cash receipts from livestock and livestock product marketings in Missouri during January-February 1966 totaled $133,797,000 -- up $29,139,000 since the same period last year. Cash receipts from Missouri crops during January-February this year are up $8,610,000 compared with the same period in 1965.

The Senate has just passed a bill to make more flexible the operations of the Farm Credit Administration. The bill will help provide better credit services by adjusting the terms of the loans to the changing needs of the farmer.

At the same time, the bill calls for a long-needed speed up in the handling of farm loans.

There are 24 Federal Land Bank Associations in Missouri. At present, 13,300 Missouri farmers have won loans totaling $109,000,000 from these Associations.

Across the nation 721 Associations are today making $4,000,000,000 worth of loans to 334,000 farmers.

The Farm Credit system was launched by Congress in 1916 and over the years has played an important role in American agriculture.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

New Coupon Plan

A revolutionary new manufacturers' coupon program will be introduced to Sikeston housewives this week.

The new program features an exclusive, three-way redemption plan enabling shoppers to participate in a national program for either gifts or cash.

Gift Stars, Inc., a division of Premium Corporation of America, will present Sikeston housewives with the first of three million pass-out coupons in Missouri this week.

The coupons will be bag-stuffed here at major grocers and, when sent to the company's headquarters at Minneapolis, will earn shoppers a bonus coupon of 200 free Gift Stars, a full-color gift catalog, and a saver envelope.

This new coupon program features an exclusive three-way redemption plan whereby consumers can redeem Gift Stars coupons for $2 cash at any grocer, redeem them by mail for gifts, or combine them with trading stamps for gifts at trading stamp centers displaying the Gift Stars emblem. Gift Stars are equal in value to trading stamps.

Another unusual aspect of the program is that it is the first of its kind to make an effort to reward the grocer. If shoppers wish to receive cash for their Gift Stars, they may turn them in to local grocers in units of 1,500 for $2 cash. The 1,500 Gift Stars are enclosed in a special envelope and sealed. The grocer pays the consumer $2 cash, and mails them to the company. For each 1,500 Gift Stars turned in, he receives 50¢ cash for handling.

H. W. Greenough, Executive Vice-President of Gift Stars, Inc., in discussing the program, said it is now three years old and encompasses nearly 30% of the U. S. population in approximately fourteen states.

Greenough said, "Gift Stars benefit everyone. The consumer can have her choice of either cash or free gifts; grocers can benefit from cash redemptions at their store through a handling fee and from the quicker movement of their products which carry Gift Stars.

"This is a loyalty program to certain nationally advertised products, and earns for the products consumer interest and loyalty," he said.

A pilot program was started in Colorado, and surveys indicated that 87% of the saving Gift holds there are using Gift Stars, prompting the company to develop the program in other states and go national.

Participating food stores in the area are: Malone & Hyde Company, wholesalers.

Governors Endorse Flag Flying

Governor Calvin L. Hampton of Utah; Governor Maurice E. Trimmer of New Mexico; Governor George Wallace of Alabama have each granted permission to quote as follows:

"The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive to every Missourian to fly the flag on national holidays. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began.

I urge every home in Missouri to fly the flag on national holidays.

Governor Nils A. Boe of South Dakota:

Governor Nils A. Boe today urged all South Dakotans to fly the flag on their homes on national holidsys.

Governor Boe stated, "The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive for all South Dakotans to participate in this observance. I believe the showing of the colors on every home is a step in the right direction in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began."

Governor Paul B. Johnson of Mississippi:

"The flying of the flag on national holidays is an opportunity available to every citizen to demonstrate that the spirit of freedom is still as strong in our heart today as it was 190 years ago when our nation was founded. I recommend that every home consider flying the Star Spangled Banner on national holidays or any other appropriate occasion.

Governor John Dempsey of Connecticut:

Our flag, at home and in the far corners of the world, serves as an inspiring symbol of justice and freedom. All Americans should, I firmly believe, display it proudly as a manifestation of patriotism and pride in our heritage.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

ELECTIONS

The troubles of the Pandora's box that was cracked opened in Baker v. Carr, and exposed fully in Reynolds v. Sims, decided at the end of the 1963 term, are now with us in full force. The political thicket has now become a veritable jungle of competing considerations for the lower courts to hack their way through. The spreading litigation has been as voluminous in its quantity as it has been disruptive of orderly legislative and electoral processes. Ample historical research by the late Mr. Justice Frankfurter and Mr. Justice Harlan demonstrated that nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment's legislative history justified such chaos under the guise of constitutional law. The Court, of course, cannot remake history, but it unquestionably can make history. This it did with a bang by ruling in 1964 that all State legislatures must be apportioned on population and nothing else. The tremors from this earthquake are still reverberating, and the legislative wreckage is strewn around the landscape.

Chief Justice Warren's explanation in this case was typical. He relied upon a judicial saturation bombing, by throwing everything that could remotely be found relevant at the offending statute. He said:

"The conception of political equality from the Declaration of Independence, to Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, to the Fifteenth, Seventeenth and Nineteenth Amendments can mean only one thing-- one person, one vote."

No doubt the omission of the proverbial Fourth-of-July reference to flag, home, and mother, was an unintentional oversight.

In the 1964 term, the Court continued to review the actions of the lower Federal courts in picking up the legislative pieces of the apportionment explosion. It held that multi-member constituencies did not violate its newly devised constitutional notions, and vacated a district court injunction on the grounds of mootness which had forbidden the holding of the 1964 general election. In the latter case, Justices Harlan and Stewart protested that the lower Federal courts were not being given guidelines "through this teacherous constitutional terrain" to make certain that they "be launched in the right general direction and not allowed to range so far afield as to hamstring State legislatures and deprive States of effective legislative government." They added: "I think that the State of Georgia is entitled to a clear-cut pronouncement from this Court that nothing in its reapportionment decisions contemplated such unheard-of Federal court intrusion into State political affairs as the decree before us envinces."

At the very end of the term, a series of cases from New York turned the entire area of reapportionment procedures into a three-ring circus with several unexpected encores. The curtain arose on the first act in June, 1964, when the U. S. Supreme Court held that New York had violated the Fourteenth Amendment by providing in its State Constitution for a legislature based in part on county structure. It was too late to fashion a different reapportionment plan for the 1964 elections, so the district court ordered that the scheduled elections take place under the New York Constitution whose provisions, in existence since 1894, were suddenly found to be invalid in Washington. Thus, in violation of the New York Constitution, the district court ordered that the legislators so elected serve for one year instead of two. They were told to submit a new apportionment plan to be approved by the district court, run in 1965, again serve only one year, and run in 1966, under the new plan. The Supreme Court summarily affirmed this order, over the dissents of Justices Harlan and Stewart.
